FARM BLOC TO ATTACK ANEW

COALITION NOT SATISFIED WITH RATE INCREASE

Encouraged by Numerous Boosts Obtained On Agricultural Commodities In Tariff Bill, Westerners Plan Fresh Drive in Senate This Week for Further Protection for Producer—Another Test of Strength on Hides Duty, Voted on Free List, Expected When Compromise Offered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—The senate farm bloc, encouraged, but not satisfied by many increases already obtained on agricultural commodities in the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, is preparing for a new drive in the senate next week for further protection to agriculture.

Many agricultural items in the bill unconsidered heretofore will be open to discussion in the senate for the first time in the coming week. Members of the farm group have prepared an avalanche of amendments designed to give the American farmer greater protection against foreign importations.

The big drive next week will come on dried milk, whole milk powder, manufactured eggs products, cattle, alfalfa and clover seed, and a number of less conspicuous items in the bill which nevertheless affect thousands of farmers in various parts of thec ountry.

On cattle, the farm interests are seeking duties of 3 cents a pound on animals weighing less than 800 pounds and 4 cents on those weighing more than 800 pounds, in place of the house rates of 2 and 2½ cents respectively.

Want Cheese Rate Boosted.

An attempt also will be made to increase the ad valorem duty on cheese from 35 to 40 per cent, which is in addition to a specific duty of 5 cents a pound.

Up to the present time the only agricultural schedules which have

MOB THREATENS DRY OFFICERS

New Jersey Agents Ask Rescue By Police Reserves.

ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—A mob of 500 persons threatened to lynch six prohibition agents who entered a speakeasy near the Edison laboratory here today. The dry agents were forced to call police reserves.

The agents entered the speakeasy while a crowd clustered about the entrance. When the raiders left, they found the mob had grown to about 500, some of whom shouted: "Lynch them."

The prohibition men reached for their blackjacks and guns to intimidate the leaders, but a section of the mod rushed them and the agents were forced to retreat to a nearby store and telephone for aid.

U. S. Circuit Court Hears Appeal On Peters Trust Case

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—An appeal from a ruling by Federal Judge J. W. Woodrough, Omaha, in which he gave federal courts jurisdiction in the bankruptcy case of the Peters Trust Co. of Omaha, was taken under advisement today by the United States court of appeals.

Judges Kimbrough Stone and Arba S. Van Valkenburgh, Kansas City and Archibald K. Gardner, Aberdeen, S. D., conducted the hearing. The case was brought to the United States court of appeals by C. A. Sorensen, attorney general of Nebraska, who contends that Judge Woodrough's ruling is incorrect.

WOULD OUST RACKETEER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor was in New York today for the purpose of consulting with representatives of local labor unions regarding a means of ousting the racketeer element from unions.

Girl Misses Spanking In Court Because Dad Is Too Ill to Give It

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Illness today was all that saved Marie Staff, 20, arrested for distributing communist handbills, from receiving a spanking in court.

The girl's father, George Staff, told Judge Harold Simandl he agreed with the magistrate that his daughter was a misguided child and he would gladly follow the judge's suggestion to spank her in court, but he was ill and too weak.

Marie went to jail to await the judge's decision as to whether a substitute should be selected to administer the whacking.

300,000 GALLONS OF BEER SEIZED

U. S. Agents Raid Niagara Falls Factory; Nineteen Arrested.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Federal dry agents, headed by Prohibition Administrator Edwin S. Ross, today seized 300,000 gallons of alleged beer in a raid on the Power City Products Co. here.

Nineteen officers and employes of the plant were arrested and released under bail. The confiscated fluid was destroyed.

Before prohibition, the plant, valued at a million dollars, was operated by the Cataract Brewing Co.

DORAN SUSPENDS TWO DRY AGENTS

Removed From Duty Pending Investigation of Shooting Fairbury Nurse.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Suspension from duty of Charles Hindley, and Roy Moon, dry agents, pending an inquiry into the shooting of Miss Nellie Church, 25, Fairbury, Neb., nurse, was announced today by Prohibition Commissioner Doran.

Miss Church was alleged to have been wounded by shots fired from the automobile in which the two federal agents were riding. Doran said a preliminary report indicated the shots were fired after the two automobiles scraped fenders.

County Probe Delayed.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—News that two Iowa federal prohibition agents have been suspended as a result of a shooting in which Miss Nellie Church was slightly wounded reached here today from Washington as county investigation of the affair was delayed over the week-end.

The agents Charles Hindley and Roy Moon, were suspended by Prohibition Commissioner Doran after federal authorities in Chicago had reported the shooting to him.

A county grand jury will reconvene Monday to hear evidence in the shooting which Hindley said occurred when he fired into the ground to halt the machine occupied by Miss Church and three friends. His bullet ricocheted off the gravel road, he said, into the car. No liquor was found in the car.

FLIER'S FAMILY STILL HOPEFUL

Five Weeks Pass Without a Trace of Maury Graham.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Five weeks ago today, Maury Graham, crack airmail pilot of the Western Air express flew his plane into the unknown during a terrific blizzard that raged over Nevada.

Tonight, on the eve of Graham's thirty-sixth birthday tomorrow, Mrs. Graham and their twin children, a boy and a girl of eight, waited, still confident that Graham would be found alive.

Meanwhile buddies of the missing pilot refused to give up the search. Backed by the airways company they were still soaring keen-eyed over the wastelands where the mail plane and its pilot might found.

"Tomorrow's Maury's birthday, Mrs. Graham said, a brave smile on her lips, but her eyes grave. "We will celebrate it, the children and I, and without sadness."

The five weeks search, much of it involving the utmost danger to pilot friends of the missing aviator brought together one of the largest concentrations of air and land forces ever organized as a consequence of an aviation mishap.

DEMOCRATS SEE BIG VICTORY IN FALL ELECTIONS

HOPE TO CAPTURE CONGRESS CONTROL

Fighting Spirit Aroused By Tariff and Farm Relief Success.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Success of senate democrats and western independent republicans in developing live issues, coupled with democratic victories in special elections, centered attention here upon the possibility of a radical shange in the complexion of congress in the November elections, and, beyond that, to the effect of such an overturn upon President Hoover's political future.

A congress under control of his opponents would cause President Hoover considerable trouble. Just as in the case of Woodrow Wilson, whose policies were flouted in the last two years of his administration by a republican congress, it would keep Mr. Hoover from making the record he otherwise might make, and in this way might have a bearing upon his re-election.

Democratic confidence, already lifted by minor victories in Kentucky, Indiana, Virginia and upstate New York, in special, state and municipal elections in recent months, took a still further spurt when Calvin Coolidge's congressional district went democratic this week for the first time since its formation thirty-seven years ago.

Stiff Fight Ahead.

Democratic leaders here are predicting they will capture congress at the elections this fall, and even conservative observers here interpret the signs here and there so

SET DATE FOR SCOTT TRIAL

Denton Bank Robbery Case Up In District Court Feb. 24.

Forest Holtzclaw Will Face Jury In Separate Trial.

Trial of Jack Scott and Forest Holtzclaw on charges of robbery with explosives heads a list of twelve criminal cases set for trial at the next jury in District court following a call of the law docket in District Judge Frost's courtroom Saturday. Thirty-five civil cases were set for trial during the three weeks service of jurors who will report February 24.

The robbery charge against Scott will be the first criminal case tried, County Attorney Max G. Towle announced Saturday. Scott and Holtzclaw having demanded separate trials.

Criminal cases set for trial include a charge of burglary against Graden Radcliffe; hog stealing against Alonzo Greenfield, et al, and forgery against Leonard Johnson. The state's case against Cleo Droud on a liquor appeal is also scheduled to be heard. A jury acquitted her mother during the last panel on an appealed liquor case. Later the state filed perjury charges against the mother and another witness. The perjury charges were not set for hearing during the coming panel.

To Hear Stuertz Suit.

Several important damage suits were set for trial during the three weeks period. The suit of Pauline C. Stuertz, administratrix of the estate of Henry J. Stuertz, who was killed in a fall while working on an apartment building under construction last fall, will be heard. She asked $50,000 in the suit. Ethel Nuetzman's $40,000 breach of promise action against Charles H. Otte,

PITTSBURGH CABLE CAR JUMPS TRACK; FIVE TO HOSPITAL

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Five persons, three women and two men, passengers on the South Twelfth street incline, were injured seriously and six others were hurt tonight when a cable car on the curving Allentown - Pittsburgh incline jumped the track and bumped drunkenly about for fifty feet on its upward course.

The five most seriously hurt were taken to the South Side hospital here. They were Mrs. Helen Dwyer, 24; Mrs. Elizabeth Fisher, 49; Helen Bananzak, 27; Walter Bananzak, 18, and Harry P. Wagner. All were expected to recover.

W. Cameron Forbes, former governor general of the Philippines, has been named by President Hoover to head a commission to study the Haitian problem. The commission will sail for Haiti the last of February.

HOOVER ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON AFTER VACATION

President Ends Six-Day Fishing Trip Off Southern Florida.

Executive Will Be Back In Capital Early Monday Morning.

LONG KEY, Fla., Feb. 15—(INS)—President Hoover and his fishing party left here at 9:30 o'clock tonight for Washington, bringing to an end a week of deep sea fishing off the southern keys of Florida.

On Monday morning, soon after dawn, the executive will be back in Washington. Once again he will leave the warm weather of the south and run back into snow at Washington. Last year Mr. Hoover wintered in Florida only to return to the capital and run into a snow storm. Today's weather reports indicate another drastic change.

When the president left the houseboat Saunterer to board his special car it was the first time he had put a foot ashore in six days.

Fishing Luck Is Poor.

LONG KEY, Fla., Feb. 15—(INS)—President Hoover drew another and final fishing blank today, and he leaves Florida tonight for home

Moore Nearing Crisis of Illness

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—In a darkened room of the California Lutheran hospital here, Alexander P. Moore, distinguished American diplomat, critically ill with a complication of diseases, tonight was battling a high fever which made his recovery doubtful, according to physicians.

His voice gone and his body wracked with pain, the former Pittsburgh publisher also suffered from slight delertium as he neared the crisis of his illness.

During the day his temperature rose to 104 degrees, where it remained practically stationary. His pulse hovered around 120.

"Mr. Moore's condition is extremely grave," declared Dr. P. G. White, who has assumed full charge of the patient. "He has contracted cold and is also the victim of an internal organic trouble in addition to tubercular infections."

M'COOK WOMAN FOUND INSANE

Jury Holds Mrs. Bender Irresponsible When Killed Daughter.

Mother Testifies She Feared Children To Be Taken Away.

McCOOK, Neb., Feb. 15—(UP)—Mrs. Mary Bender, 44, was declared tonight by a coroner's jury to have been so insane that she was not responsible for the slaying of her daughter, Maxine, 11, with a shotgun earlier today.

Maxine was killed almost instantly when the shotgun charge pierced her back and entered her heart. Bud Bender, a son, escaped death when the mother was unable to obtain a rifle before he got out of the house. There was only one load in the shotgun and that was used to kill the daughter.

At the hearing this evening, Mrs. Bender brokenly testified of the fear she had a losing her mind and of living in constant apprehension

HOPES FOR REAL NAVY REDUCTION ARE DIMINISHING

Slash May Be Limited Almost Wholly To Battleship Category.

FRANCE DEMANDS GIGANTIC FLEET

Significance Attached to Hoover's Early Return To Capital.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(INS)—The roseate hopes for real naval reduction—first aroused by the Hoover-MacDonald meeting in October and then sent soaring by the call for the five-power conference in London—have been largely blotted out in the first four weeks of that gathering.

Candid admission was made of this fact in responsible administration quarters today for the first time since the powers assembled in London.

It is held to account in no small measure for President Hoover's decision to cut short his Florida trip and return to the capital where he can keep more intimately in touch with day-to-day developments.

It is now beginning to become apparent to even the most sanguine of the disarmament advocates that what reduction is to be made at London will be confined almost, if not entirely, to a single category—battleships. As for the other categories—cruisers, submarines, destroyers and aircraft carriers—France's demand for a global navy of 724,000 tons, if adhered to, precludes any reduction. In fact, it means building, particularly for the United States.

That there is some water to be squeezed out of the French demand goes without saying. But no one conversant with the situation here believes that sufficient water can be squeezed out to bring the French

FIRE DAMAGE TO LEABMAN STORE TOTALS $20,000

Building Is Threatened Before Flames Brought Under Control.

Fifteen Tenants Driven From Beds; Cause of Blaze Unknown.

Fire of undetermined origin starting shortly before midnight Saturday, damaged the stock and interior of the M. Leabman & Son Clothing Co., 914 P street, to the extent of $20,000, routed fifteen tenants out of their beds in rooms above the establishment and for a time threatened the entire two-story structure before firemen brought the flames under control at 12:30 o'clock.

Grant Mursh, caretaker of the rooming house occupying the top floor, discovered the fire, when he noticed smoke curling up through the ceiling of the store below. Fire apparatus from every station in the city responded to the alarm. Smoke soon filled the rooms and scantily-clad romers hurriedly left their beds and descended to the street.

The flames were confined largely to the rear of the store, burning a considerable part of the stock there and eating their way through the ceiling to a store room on the second floor. Smoke and water accounted for the rest of the damage. Some of the stock can be salvaged according to Mr. Leabman. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Everything In Order.

When the store was closed after 11 o'clock, Mr. Leabman stated, everything was in order. A fire was left burning in a small coal stove in the rear as usual, he stated. Fire Chief Hansen declares that the blaze started in a room to the rear of the store where the employes kept their clothing. It was impossible to determine the origin of the fire until further investigation, he added.

As soon as the smoke cleared from the upper floor, the tenants returned to their beds. No one reported any ill effects from the smoke. A motorist who drove over a hose line was tagged to report in court Monday morning.

Shortly after 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning the flames broke out again and two fire rigs were sent to extinguish the blaze. The hot metal ceiling had ignited wood rafters and the two firemen on duty called for more aid. The flames were combatted with chemicals.

TWO MOTORISTS KILLED.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Two men were killed and a third was perhaps fatally injured here today when their automobile hurtled over an embankment and crashed into a tree during a blinding snow storm. The dead are: Joseph Reber, 40, recently of Williamsport, Pa., and Francis J. Cullen, 35, of Cleveland.

Democrat Wins In Coolidge District

William J. Granfield, an avowed wet, is the first democrat ever to be elected to congress from the Second congressional district of Massachusetts, which includes Northampton, home of Calvin Coolidge. Granfield carried every city and large town in the district in a special election to fill a vacancy caused by the death of W. Kirk Kaynor.

EXTRA SESSION TO BE FIFTH IN PAST 12 YEARS

First, Since Early Days In Nebraska, Called by Neville In 1919.

Solons Summoned Three Times During Terms Of McKelvie.

In deciding to call an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of making changes in the banking system and laws of Nebraska, Governor Weaver has not acted without precedent. While special sittings of the state lawmakers are unusual, there are four precedents for such action within the last twelve years.

The first one to be held since the early days of Nebraska's statehood was in 1918, when Governor Keith Neville summoned the solons to Lincoln to enact a series of measures designed to aid the national government in its prosecution of the war against Germany and its allies. Several corrective bills were included with these.

In 1919, there were two more special sessions, called by Gov. Samuel R. McKelvie. One of these did nothing but ratify the amendment to the federal constitution, previously submitted by congress, giving women the right to vote. The second was to meet the emergency

Steamer Aground On West Coast

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—The steamship Admiral Benson of the Admiral line went aground near the mouth of the Columbia river today with sixty-five passengers and a crew of forty-five aboard, according to meager advices received here by the Mackay Radio company.

The vessel is believed not to be in immediate danger, although weather reports indicate a heavy fog in the vicinity of the accident.

Point Stevens and Point Adams coast guard stations have sent power boats to stand by the stricken vessel until the coast guard cutter Redwing can get up steam and go to the Benson's aid.

YES WE DO HAVE BANANAS—AND THEY GROW HERE

You may think we're nutty, but nearly nine dozen bananas were picked from a banana tree at the Lincoln state hospital Saturday.

The fact is, they were grown in the institution's greenhouse, where the banana tree has been nursed and petted along for three years by the greenhouse superintendent, N. E. Martin. What is more, Mr. Martin has several more banana trees flourishing in other tubs which are due to bear next year and the year following. A banana tree, he explained, does not bear until it is three years old, and then dies as soon as the fruit ripens.

The tree which yielded its fruit Saturday bore one bunch which contained approximately one hundred bananas. They are only about half the size of the fruit on the market, but the taste is identical with the southern product.

The tree grew steadily until it was nine or ten feet in height. The fruit set on last September and, as the bunch grew in size, the tree gradually bent over until it nearly touched the ground. Instead of picking the fruit green as is done for commercial purposes, it was allowed to ripen on the tree.

AN INTERVENTION WARNING SOUNDED BY SOVIET PRESS

Moscow's Attempt to Exterminate Religion Within Its Borders Results in Growing International Movement of Protest—Pope Receives Prompt and Powerful Support From Church of England—Resentment Expressed In France, Germany, Mexico, Italy, Rumania, Greece, India, South Africe.

LONDON, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Resentment against certain phases of the soviet attempt to carve out a new communistic civilization in Russia crystalized during the last week into a growing international movement of protest.

The soviet press recognized the movement by warning communists that the capitalist nations were preparing to intervene in Russia and that the danger of a war against the soviets was entirely real.

The feeling abroad received its greatest impetus a week ago when Pope Pius denounced the soviet attempt to exterminate religion and called on the world to pray for the Christians in Russia. The pope received prompt and powerful support when the Church of England lined up behind him.

Criticism Widespread.

Within the last few days the criticism of Russia has found active expression in England, France, Germany, Mexico, Italy, Greece, Rumania, India and South Africa. The soviet experiment, which has inter-

TOOHEY IS TAKEN TO HASTINGS FOR TROBOUGH TRIAL

Sheriff Raymond L. Crosson of Adams county was in Lincoln Saturday to return Jesse Vern Toohey, serving a term for robbery in the state penitentiary, to Hastings, where he will be the state's witness in the retrial of Sidney Trobough for the murder of his wife December 23, 1928.

Trobough was convicted on the charge and sentenced to eighteen years for second degree murder. The Supreme court remanded the case for retrial on error in the District court procedure. Toohey was a roomer in the Trobough home at the time of the murder, and Trobough was convicted principally on the former's testimony. Since the trial, Toohey was convicted for participation in a number of central Nebraska robberies.

Escaped Colorado Convict Retaken

CANON CITY, Colo., Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Leo W. CHARGE M'CANN FAILED TO STOP

Complaint Grows Out Of Accident in Which Mrs. Fritts Hurt.

A complaint charging Peter McCann, farmer living at Fifth street and Irving avenue, Belmont, with failure to stop following the accident last Saturday evening in which Mrs. H. M. Fritts, 1345 Butler avenue, was injured, was drawn yesterday afternoon by Deputy County Attorney Farley Young. The complaint was mailed to Municipal court to be received there Monday.

Mrs. Fritts is still under the care of her physician, she stated Saturday night. She sustained nose and head injuries, and is to be subjected to X-ray examination the first of the week, she said. She was struck a few minutes after she and her daughter, Virginia, had alighted from a bus and started to walk to their home. Virginia was not injured. Mrs. Fritts was assisted to her home by other motorists.

Drawing of the complaint came as the result of a week of investigation by Lieutenant of Detectives Robert Davis. According to Lieutenant Davis, Amos Harris, 1854 Holdrege street, who followed the car as it disappeared from the scene of the accident on North Fourteenth street near the fair grounds, obtained the license number of the car, but depended upon his memory to retain the number and reported it incorrectly. He later made a change in the number and identified the car as the one he followed. Lieutenant Davis stated Saturday night.

REOPEN NELIGH BANK THURSDAY

Antelope State Is Reorganized With $50,000 Capital.

NELIGH, Neb., Feb. 15—The Antelope State bank which was closed last October has been reorganized with capital of $50,000 and will open for business next Thursday. During the period of receivership, the bank not only has earned more than enough to pay operating expenses, but has paid $50,000 of indebtedness and has increased cash, collected on loans of nearly $25,000.

L. K. Moore, of Stock Yards National bank of Omaha, is the new president and Ford Hovey, James B. Owens, and G. H. Yates of Omaha are stockholders.

At the time it ceased business, the Antelope State bank had about $350,000 in deposits, including some public funds secured by depository bonds, it was learned here. When it resumes operations, the deposits will amount to $150,000 or more.

A large amount of notes and real estate, classed as slow and doubtful assets, has been taken out of the bank. This property will be turned over to a committee of the depositors, who will share pro rata in whatever money is realize upon it. It is expected that the salvage price will be enough to repay the depositors the greater part, if not all, of what is due them. Depositors the greater part, if not all, of what is due them. Depositors holding more than 35 per cent of all claims against the bank have signed the agreements to accept a 50 per cent reduction in their accounts.

As Rogers Sees It

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 15—Flying to Claremore, and run into a snowstorm here and got set down. Some of the "wild jackasses," after six solid days of braying, were finally haltered by public opinion, and a twitch put on their upper lip to the score of Hughes 52, Jackasses 26. I hope Mr. Hughes don't prove as mean as they insinuated. They say he is all for the rich; that if appointed he would take the liquor away from the poor and give it to the wealthy. Henry Ford has always had more common sense than anybody. The minute a boy comes out of college he is going to take him and educate him so he can make a living. If he can do that it will make him our greatest living American.

Yours, WILL.

CITIZEN HEADS CRIME CLEANUP

Randolph to Lead Campaign Against 'Higher-Ups' in Chicago.

Secret Committee Hopes to Send Gang Leaders 'Up the River.'

CHICAGO, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Robert Isham Randolph, Chicago's soldier-engineer who is out to clean up crime, is no "blue nosed" reformer, but he and his secret committee mean to hit "hard, swift and sure" when they get into action, he said today.

The new president of the association of commerce, who suddenly found himself the head of a powerful and secret committee shortly after his election, is after the "higher ups."

"We hope to send some of the 'higher ups' in gangland and racketeering up the river," Randolph said, "for without leaders gangsters and racketeers lost most of their power. To destroy their organization is to destroy the gangs and to destroy the gangs is to destroy crime, or at least reduce it to a minimum."

Has Soldier Background.

A Virginian by ancestry, Chicagoan by birth and civil engineer by profession, Randolph brings to his double-barreled job the viewpoint of a soldier, for he served first as a private in the Mexican border mobilization and then as a colonel in an engineer regiment in France during the World war. He has retained something of the bluntness of a soldier.

Randolph made no effort to discount crime conditions in Chicago, but called attention to the other side of the picture.

"I am not discounting our conditions one iota," he said, "but statistics prove that among cities of 100,000 or more Chicago ranks seventeenth in murders, not first as many believe. The honor, if you would call it that, goes to a southern city with crime deaths of 55 per 100,000 persons. Chicago has 15."

far as indication of a stiff fight ahead.

Democrats have harmonized their factional differences somewhat by burying them in a common offensive in congress on such issues as the tariff and farm relief. In the senate they joined forces with western independent republicans and the consequent success on the tariff and farm relief has given them a fighting spirit.

There appears no prospect of democrats winning an actual senate majority at the coming elections, but they expect to make some gains, thus strengthening their present power.

Problem of House Control.

There would have to be an overturn of fifty seats to give them control of the house. However, they might perhaps gain enough to give the independent republicans there, consisting largely of Wisconsin delegation, a balance of power, thus giving opportunities for a coalition such as dominated the house at the outset of the Coolidge administration.

All members of the house are up for re-election. There are thirty-five senatorial contests, three special elections in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Kansas, in addition to the thirty-two who regularly come up for re-election this year.

Politics will begin actively along with the spring rains, the primaries beginning with Illinois on April 8, and continuing through September 16.

figures within the scope of Britain's traditional two-power policy and at the same time permit any reduction.

Already the administration's hopes apparently are beginning to turn more toward stabilization than appreciable reduction.

If stabilization or limitation can be attained in those categories not covered by the Washington treaty—even though the limitation figures be high—the way will be paved for tackling the problem anew five or six years hence when conditions may be more propitious and the Kellogg anti-war treaty is possessed of more weight.

France's alternative to her big navy is, of course, the personal security pact. That is outside the pale for the American delegation in London, for there is no doubt as to what would happen to a treaty brought back from London containing any obligation on the part of the United States to mix in Mediterranean affairs.

Doomed to Defeat.

Even the sincerest friends and greatest admirers of the League of Nations, the World court and similar institutions in the senate concede the impossibility of obtaining ratification of any treaty which commits the United States to any line of action in Europe or European waters.

DEALERS JOIN TO FIGHT RADIO INTERFERENCE

Seven Lincoln radio dealers joined the Radio Interference League Saturday morning, as the league started a membership drive. The fees collected from the memberships are to be used to equip interference locators. These locators are operated by members of the Lincoln high school Radiolinks.

At the present time ten calls have been answered by the members of the club, and in each instance the interference detectors have proven successful. The league has its offices at the Y. M. C. A. building, and urges all radio operators to report any interference with their sets.

created by tha outbreak of mob violence in Omaha which resulted in the partial destruction of the courthouse by fire and the lynching of a negro prisoner.

The last time the legislature convened on the governor's call at a time other than its regular sitting was in 1922, when Governor McKelvie brought its members together primarily to reduce appropriations voted in the previous year, and incidentally to act on half a dozen other matters.

No Pay Drawn In 1918.

Except for the wartime session of 1918, the legislature passed bills each time for the payment of its own salaries and expenses. At that time, the senators and representatives came to Lincoln and performed their work at their own expense as a matter of patriotic duty to their country.

In each extra session of 1919, salary and expense bills were passed for the aggregate sum of $11,600. In 1922, after the salary scale had been raised under the new constitution, it required $19,040 to cover the cost of the session. This time it will undoubtedly be more.

More important bills were enacted at the 1918 special diet than in any of the others. The program as laid down in advance by Governor Neville, which was carried out practically to the letter, included these things:

A law to enable Nebraska soldiers in the United States army to vote in the state election, and providing for the canvassing and counting of their votes.

A moratorium of debts owed by men in the military and naval service.

Bills to define and punish the crimes of sedition and war sabotage.

Repealing the Mockett law for compulsory foreign language instruction in the common schools.

Submission of a constitutional amendment requiring voters in Nebraska to be American citizens.

Legalizing the home guards organization.

Providing for mineral leases on state school lands to encourage the development of the potash industry as a war measure for increasing production of farm fertilizer and munitions for the army.

Two minor corrective acts.

Business of Later Sessions.

The first extra meeting of the solons in 1918, as before stated, confined itself to the passage of a joint resolution ratifying woman suffrage. The next one, which came a month or two afterward, passed a bill enabling Douglas county to vote bonds for the reconstruction of its fire-damaged courthouse, together with one authorizing the city of Omaha to contract indebtedness for meeting such an emergency. This latter enactment also boosted the pay of the city's firemen and policemen.

When the legislature met in 1922, it was to lop off $2,000,000, more or less, from the biennial appropriations made at the preceding regular session in 1921. These had been widely criticised as extravagant, and the same lawmakers who had authorized the expenditures proceeded to pare them down as suggested by the governor.

Another matter of considerable importance which they acted upon was the establishment of separate reformatories for men and women. In 1921 a bill had been put through creating a reformatory to segregate minor offenders from other prisoners at the penitentiary, but it made no segregation between the sexes.

In the same special session state banks were relieved from furnishing surety bonds to cover deposits of public money, on the theory that the guaranty fund was ample protection. A bill also went through permitting them to take advantage of the provision for receiving cash advances from the federal war finance corporation, to be reloaned to farmers.

Two acts relating to publication of legal notices in newspapers and one making available the proceeds of the state capitol tax levy for the first two years completed the schedule of business at the 1922 session.

with his poorest record in years. One medium sized sailfish, landed on Monday was the only real catch he made during the whole week.

Tonight he and his party will leave the housboat Saunterer, which has been their base during the short noliday and board the special cars, which were brought in and placed on a siding this afternoon. It will be the first time in six days the president has set foot on shore.

The big fish just weren't biting today, although the water was choppy and there was a brisk breeze, indicating good fishing weather. All Mr. Hoover got was his picture taken, having brought the photographers along as his guests in one of the presidential fishing boats.

SOVIET RUSSIA CRITICSED BY MANY NATIONS

ested the world since the revolution of 1917, appeared to be attracting more international attention than at any time in the ensuing thirteen years.

The religious issue was only a part of the picture. Widespread foreign protests against the soviet activities against counter revolutionaries at home coincide with increased charges of communist plotting in other countries.

Claim Issue A Domestic One.

Whether the activities of the soviets have increased recently, or the simultaneous protests from other countries were merly coincidental could not be determined. The soviets, however, point out that they have been conducting an anti-counter revolutionary campaign for years and that their anti-religious activities are merely a part of it. The situation has many possibilities of trouble, since the soviet union declared the matter is entirely domestic and refuses to brook outside interference.

If governments should join the clergy in protesting to Russia the matter would certainly be serious. The Catholic bishops in Ireland appealed to all governments of Christian states "to put an end to this barbarous persecution."

The executive council of the Free State church joined the Catholic-Episcopal movement.

FACULTY MEMBERS GIVE CHARTER DAY TALKS OVER RADIO

The sixty-first anniversary of the founding of the University of Nebraska was observed Saturday evening with a two-hour radio program broadcast from the university studios of station KFAB.

Personal greetings from nineteen faculty members to former students were extended in two and three minute talks. Speakers included Chancellor-Emeritus Samuel Avery, Dr. L. A. Sherman, Dr. Laura B. Pfeiffer, Dr. H. H. Waite, Clara Conklin, Elizabeth Reese, Dean G. A. Grubb, Dean O. J. Ferguson, Prof. C. A. Robbins, Dr. D. D. Whitney, Prof. R. D. Moritz, Dean W. W. Burr, Dean R. A. Lyman, Dean H. H. Foster, Dr. H. H. Marvin, Dr. J. E. Kirshman, Dr. J. E. A. Alexis, Dr. F. E. Henzlik and Prof. Paul H. Grummann. Theodore C. Diers, director of the university studios located in the administration building, was announcer.

The broadcast was opened at 10 p. m. with the ringing of the old "U" hall bell, which was repeated every half hour. Other entertainment consisted of music by the University of Nebraska band, William T. Quick directing, and the girl's octet, Hermann T. Decker directing. The broadcast was concluded with the playing of "There Is No Place Like Nebraska" and "The Cornhusker" by the band.

DECISION DELAYED IN POWER ACTION

Fremont's Request to Restrain Competitor in Light Field To Be Decided Thursday.

FREMONT, Neb., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—After hearing arguments today in the attempt of the city of Fremont to obtain a temporary restraining order against the Nebraska Power Co. to prevent the latter from interfering with Fremont's electric light and power service to North Bend, District Judge F. L. Spear continued the case until Thursday.

Judge Spear expects to announce a decision at 10 a. m. Thursday as to whether he will issue a temporary restraining order.

A general denial that it was attempting to monopolize the power field in eastern Nebraska was made by the Nebraska Power Co. in its arguments today. The Omaha company also denied that it is contemplating purchasing the Fremont municipal plant.

Ask $75,000 Damages.

Fremont also asks $75,000 damages on the contention that the power company caused to be broken contracts the Fremont municipal plant had with Cedar Bluffs and Arlington to furnish them power.

As another move in its fight against the Nebraska Power company, the city of Fremont late Friday filed injunction proceedings to restrain the North Bend council from accepting the contract of the Nebraska Power Co., which the people approved at a special election January 28.

As a result, the North Bend city council Friday night deferred action on accepting the contract of the Omaha firm to buy the North Bend electric system for $110,000 and to furnish North Bend power. Fremont contends, in its petition, that it has a contract with North Bend to furnish light and power until 1938 and that the Nebraska Power Co. is seeking to break the contract.

FARM BLOC TO ATTACK AGAIN

been considered in the senate are those to which the senate finance committee recommended amendments.

A recapitulation of the situation today showed the farmers have succeeded in most cases where they sought increased duties, but were defeated in a fw of the most important battles.

Many increases were obtained on wool, poultry and dairy schedules, fruits and vegetables and meats, but the farmers' demands on fats and oils, hides, blackstrap molasses, casein and starches were not met.

The farm bloc suffered what was probably its outstanding defeat on the hides schedule.

Hides Left On Free List.

A tariff of 5 cents on raw and 9 cents on dried hides was sought, but, unable to get this much, the leaders voted hides to remain on the free list.

There will be another test of strength on this issue, however, as Senator Oddie, republican, New Mexico, has prepared a compromise based on duties of 4 and 8 cents respectively.

On casein the farmer organizations sought a tariff of 8 cents in place of the present duty of 2½ cents, but got only 5½ cents. They will make another fight for this objective.

Another contest yet to be finally decided in which the farm organizations are interested is on the sugar duty. The professional farm representatives sought a duty of 2.4 cents a pound on Cuban sugar, though they were not supported in this by the farm bloc. The senate voted to retain the present rate of 1.76. Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee, will ask for a vote on a compromise of 2 cents.

M'COOK WOMAN FOUND INSANE

of being taken away from her children. She believed that people were endeavoring to take her children away from her.

"I loved Maxine and couldn't go on in the world this way," the mother stated at the hearing.

Had Nerve Attack.

According to Frances Bender, Maxine's sister, the mother had a violent attack of nerves Friday.

"I'm afraid I'm going to harm Maxine," Frances quoted her mother as saying at that time. Max Bender, the husband, testified that Mrs. Bender's nerves became unsteady about five years ago. For the past several days he had feared to leave her alone with the children, neighbors said.

Maxine and her mother were doing the house work just before the shooting occurred. Bud summoned Mrs. M. Beard, a neighbor woman, after the shooting and she found Maxine slumped against the door as she had fallen when the fatal charge struck her. According to Mrs. Beard, the mother sobbed hysterically, "I did it, I'm to blame."

According to County Attorney Fred Hanson, Mrs. Bender probably will be taken before the county insanity board for a hearing.

BEERY MUCH BETTER.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—The condition of Noah Beery, prominent motion picture actor, was said to be "very much better" tonight at the hospital where the actor underwent an operation for appendicitis. Due to complications it had been feared that Beery might not recover, but doctors said they were much encouraged by his improvement during the day.

His Stomach Ulcers Healed

M. H. Ramstead, a Wisconsin business man, reports that he secured a simple home treatment which quickly healed him of stomach ulcers, gas pains, indigestion and constipation after many years of suffering. He says he was so bad he was put on a strict diet, had begun to lose weight and could not get a good night's sleep. Now though years have passed, he still is in the best of health and can eat anything he wants. Mr. Ramstead is so grateful for his own recovery that he wants every sufferer to try this splendid treatment without cost or obligation. If you suffer, just send your name and address to M. H. Ramstead, Dept. 710, Box 925, Milwaukee, Wisc. He will tell you all about his own experiences and send you a full size $1.00 treatment free. Write him today.—Advertisement.

now deceased, is also slated to be heard.

Two cases will follow up suits heard during the past jury panel. In one, Everett Rathbun is asking damages of Wert Breck for injuries received when a motorcycle and sidecar in which he was riding crashed into Breck's truck. Suit by the administrator of his wife's estate, against Breck, was heard during the last jury.

Suit of E. F. Schulze against Max Kobalter arises out of the same accident in which Grace May was injured. She was given $10,000 by a jury in District court late Friday. Sylvia Caans' action against Woodrow White, which resulted in a drawn jury the past week, will be heard again.

Two matters will be disposed of before the jury is called. Arguments will be heard Monday in a contested compensation case brought by Earl Marler against Grainger Bros. Judge Frost heard the testimony before the last jury assembled. On Friday, Feb. 21, the suit of Purl H. Munk against the second Presbyterian church, will be heard. This is also a compensation case.

Nobile Is Denounced In Report

Official Finding Says Airship Commander 'Failed in His Duty.'

ROME, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Umberto Nobile, whose name was acclaimed throughout Italy when the dirigible Italia circled the North Pole in 1928, was denounced by an official investigation commission today as having "failed in his duty as a general and commander" when the airship was wrecked in the ice fields of the Arctic.

The tragic circumstances of how eight men and nine rescuers lost their lives in one of the worst disasters in the history of Arctic exploration were reviewed in the commission's report, which said:

"Nobile, after the catastrophe, by saving himself first on Capt. Einar Lundoerg's machine (airplane) and abandoning his companions on the ice pack to a fate which might have been mortal, failed in his duty as a general and commander."

The committee, which spent a year gathering evidence, also found that Nobile "proved himelf by his conduct to have limited technical ability and to have lacked the ability to command."

Given Entire Blame.

It further placed responsibility for the expedition on his shoulders and criticized his attitude toward collaborators and rescuers.

"Following investigation of Nobile's character," the report said "it appeared, when tested, that he showed a rather conceited and selfish nature, and also was ungrateful to those who helped him in his plans, even those who lost their lives to rescue him."

THREE ARRESTED IN LIQUOR RAIDS

Quantities of Alleged Liquor Confiscated By Police Saturday Night.

Three persons were arrested in liquor raids Saturday night by state and city officers.

A couple who gave their names as Neil Dalton, 28, and Adam Beck, 36, was arrested in an apartment at 648 South Twelfth street at 10:30 o'clock. About a gallon of alleged alcohol and a gallon of alleged whiskey was seized.

Two other men were in the apartment when officers raided it. From one of them police say they seized another pint of alleged whiskey. Six other men entered the apartment while police were there. The names of all the men were taken, but none was held.

When police were about to leave with their prisoners the telephone rang. Lieutenant of Detectives Davis directed Beck to answer the call and after some conversation took the phone himself. The person calling was attempting to order a pint of alcohol, according to Lieutenant Davis.

Another young man knocked at the door while officers were there but excused himself saying that he had entered the wrong apartment. Police took his name.

Charges of possession for purposes of sale probably will be filed against Miss Dalton and a federal charge of conspiracy may be placed against Beck, according to Lieutenant Davis.

Deputy Sheriff Bailey and Officers Frank and William Robbins and Graves arrested Carl Stiever, 22, and confiscated two gallons of alleged whisky and a gallon of alleged alcohol, when he entered a garage between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets and L and M. Stiever was booked on a charge of illegal possession of liquor, and Lieutenant Davis said that a charge of illegal possession for purposes of sale will be filed Monday. Stiever gave his address as 1505 O street.

Girl Nearly Recovered From Attack of Crying

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Miss Violet Michael, 18-year-old New Bedford girl, who sobbed continuously for three days and intermittently for three more, was almost completely recovered tonight according to her physican, Dr. Earl R. White.

"Miss Michael probably will have a slight attack of sobbing tomorrow morning when she wakes up—it is more prevalent after she awakens from a sleep—and then I expect the diaphragmatic spasms to decrease altogether," said the doctor.

AWAIT ALCOHOL RING VERDICT

Twelve Oklahomans To Hear Fate In Trial of Fraud Expose.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—At 9 o'clock tonight, with no verdict, further consideration Pottawatomie county liquor conspiracy went over until 9 o'clock Monday.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Twelve citizens of Oklahoma's oil belt awaited word from a federal jury foreman here tonight with the same eagerness an oil prospector displays when expecting reports from his drillers seeking pay sand.

The twelve are charged with conspiracy against federal liquor laws. The government claimed they were principals of a syndicate in the oil fields which allowed whisky to flow in with the abandon of a wildcat gusher.

The dozen defendants are the last of over 100 persons, ranging from dance hall "dollies," roustabouts and floaters of the oil fields, to city and county officials allegedly involved in a pay off and "protection" conspiracy which cloaked a widespread whisky ring of the great Seminole oil region in Pottawatamie county.

CUSTOMS GUARD WHITE ACQUITTED

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Emmett J. White, border customs guard, tonight was acquitted of murder and manslaughter charges for the killing of Gust Henry Virkkula, Big Falls confectioner.

The jury reached its verdict after more than four hours of deliberation. The jury was composed of one woman and eleven men.

ABOUT PEOPLE

Thirty-two members of the Students Volunteers got a literal as well as descriptive taste of India Saturday night at an entertainment at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Fawell, Methodist university pastor. Indian food was served and talks on the eastern country were given by local missionaries who have served there and by I. Jog, native Indian who is a graduate of Iowa State college. Dr. E. Thompson, a former Indian missionary, aided in the preparation of the eastern dishes, and also spoke on Indian conditions.

Former Police Chief Of Alberta is Slain

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 15—(UP)—Archibald Johnston, 52, wealthy sportsman and former chief of police at Alberta, was murdered in his office here today.

His assailant later held A. S. Cox, manager of the office building, at bay with his pistol and escaped. Johnston was reported to have been operating a book on horse racing and the alleged activity was seen as possible motive for the murder.

Planes Rescue 63 From Glass Bottomed Boat When It Hits Sand Bar

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15—(UP)—Four Curtiss-Wright amphibian planes were used to rescue sixty-three passengers from the New River, a glass bottomed excursion boat off Miami Beach, when the vessel struck a sand bar today.

The passengers were taken off the vessel without difficulty when it struck the bar and broke the glass in the bottom. The hold quickly filled with water and the boat was settling when radio calls brought planes and several small boats which were at anchor in Biscayne bay.

The Curtiss-Wright planes made several trips to the bar. All the passengers were brought to shore here and sent to their homes. No injuries were reported.

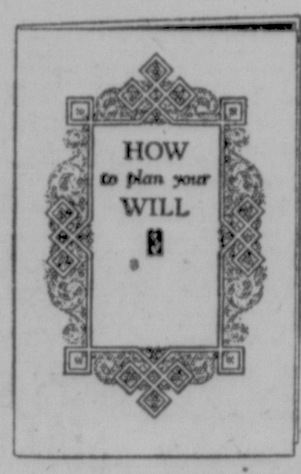

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver, 999-3319 E. Third St., Milwaukee, Wisc., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. He also needs men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money making offer.—Advertisement.

TRADE SHOWS STEADY TREND

Advance In Stocks Continues, Although Market Is Irregular.

By W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Trade and industry showed a steady and general trend toward improvement during the past week, although the pace of activity continues to be of slow and painstaking character. There are still discordances between the many records of production which have come to light in recent days, but there is little doubt but that the more favorable evidences are in the majority.

Among the industries, steel continues to play the most prominent part. The gain in mill operations was less rapid this week than in January, but plants at Chicago were working at 90 per cent of capacity, while eastern centers were at about 75 per cent; the average for the entire industry being 79 per cent, compared with 77 per cent in the preceding week and around 90 per cent a year ago. The activity in the middlewest was largely the result of continued heavy buying of steel, but it is chiefly of a hand-to-mouth character. Steel prices are firmer and scrap quotations have again advanced.

The advance in stocks has continued, although the market has become more irregular. Many issues which had been prominent in the first fortnight of the advance have made little headway during the past week. Other issues which have previously lagged behind have been bid up sharply, with such old seasoned market leaders such as U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, and New York Central taking their place in the vanguard of the advance at different periods of the week.

A Policy of Caution.

Reports from the automobile industry point to a further slight expansion of operations by makers of cheap cars, but a continued policy of caution in the higher-priced field. One favorable factor has been the record of registrations of new passenger cars in Illinois, which revealed much better figures than had been expected.

Building has not, as yet, shown any signs of responding to the stimulus of low money rates. Reports to Bradstreet's from 192 cities on the value of new building for which permits were issued during January revealed a decrease of 9.2 per cent from the preceding month and of 48.7 per cent from the like month a year ago. New York City showed a gain of 29.5 per cent over December, but a loss of 63.7 per cent from January of last year. Building materials are generally moving slowly.

Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended February 1 showed a large increase over the preceding week, with total loadings of 898,894 being 36,273 cars above the week previous, but 48,260 cars under the same week in 1929 and 27,368 under the corresponding week in 1928.

New Bank Rate Cuts.

An even more sharply defined trend toward easing in world money markets has developed, with further reductions in bank rates here and abroad. Prevailing conditions present a decided contrast to the tension that existed before the speculative collapse last Autumn, and funds at New York have been available at relatively low charges. A 4 per cent quotation for call loans this week marked a maintenance of the favorable position of borrowers, while accommodation for the fixed maturities was to be had at a range of 4½ to 5 per cent.

The commodity markets, principally wheat and cotton, continue to move erratically although it appears that further decline of these all important factors has been checked.

Bank clearings are still further reduced, the total this week at all leading cities in the United States as reported to Dun's Review showing a decline of 29.3 per cent from that of a year ago.

Business failures for the week ending February 13, as reported by Bradstreet's Journal, New York, number 572, which compare with 471 last week, 405 in the like week of 1929, 433 in 1928, 479 in 1927, and 516 in 1926.

Wheat Prices Decline.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Weakness in outside markets and continued slack export demand figured in a break of 1¼c in closing wheat prices today. Offerings were scattered and support moderate. Corn dropped ½ to ¾c and oats ¼ to ½c.

Favorable weather conditions over the belt and weakness in wheat depressed corn. Oats trailed other grains with a featureless trade.

For the week wheat was off ¾ to 1½c, corn 1⅜ to 1⅞c and oats ¼ to ⅝c.

Wheat was erratic during the week with the majority of the trade inclined to go easy pending farm board operations. May acted tight, selling up to $1.24½c or 8c above the low point last week. After orders were filled, however, all futures were inclined to lag owing largely to weakness in Liverpool and Winnipeg markets. No important export business was noted during the week.

Weather over the winter wheat belt was unfavorable, but had little effect as conditions are not such to cause any alarm. Russian shipments continued heavy, unsettling conditions in foreign markets to some extent.

Continued favorable weather conditions, which resulted in a heavier movement, influenced lower corn prices. Outside support was extremely light. Shipping demand was moderate.

Hogs Close Higher.

Hogs closed 15 to 25c higher than a week ago and 15c better than a year ago. Marketings of swine around livestock circles declined moderately at most centers this week, influencing higher prices. Dressed trade in eastern wholesale markets recorded some improvement and this also was a factor here. Top reached $11.40 during the week, the highest since last September. Today's top was $11.15 with choice heavy at $10.80. Receipts for the week were 209,000 against 208,000 last week and 243,000 a year ago.

Unusually light receipts at most market centers figured in a material upturn in cattle prices here. Compared with a week ago, steers sold mostly 50 to 75c higher; mixed yearlings 50c to $1 higher; cows steady to 25c higher and heifers 50 to 75c up. Arrivals for the week were 57,000 compared with 36,000 last week and 42,000 a year ago.

Steers topped at $15.25. Beef cows sold at $6.50 to $10.50 and heifers moved largely at $8 to $12. Good calves were 50c higher with top at $15.50. Matured steers brought $14.25 and mixed yearlings $13.00.

Under pressure of heavy receipts, fat lambs continued their downward price trend. Prices are 50 to 75c lower than a week ago and from $5.00 to $5.50 lower than a year ago. In fact, values are lowest in nine years. The best shipping lambs closed at $11.90, with most of the good lambs at $11.50 to $11.75. Arrivals for the week were 65,000 a year ago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Cotton closed 2 points lower to 7 higher today with a light trade. Higher temperatures were noted over the belt. March closed at 15.68; May 15.90; July 16.18; October 16.34 and Dec. 16.50.

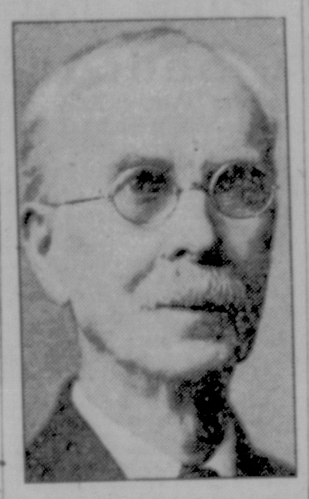

The market closed 45 to 61 points higher than a week ago.

Prices were lower early in the week, with heavy selling on weakness in outside markets and disappointing new from dry goods markets. Favorable weather over the belt for farm work also affected the market. Buying support was light especially from outside sources. Later the market rallied with trade buying and favorable private reports from dry goods centers. The census report on January consumption was disappointing.

LINDBERGHS GOING TO FRISCO.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife, the former Anne Morrow, plan to fly their new low-winged monoplane to San Francisco "some time next week," it was stated at the J. L. Maddux home today, where the Lindberghs are house guests.

WHICH Securities Shall I Buy?

Reliance International Corporation securities provide the answer to this pexplexing question

IN SPITE of all the prevailing facilities for supplying investment advice of one kind or another, the investor finds himself confronted with the old problem of what to buy or what NOT to buy. So profuse is the material available to him that frequently he becomes lost in a maze of data, with the result that instead of purchasing the security he really wants he accepts a substitute.

A short-cut to selective investing may be had by purchasing the securities of RELIANCE INTERNATIONAL CORPORATION, an investment trust of the general management type having the benefit of the services of Reliance Management Corporation and of a National Advisory Committee working with the management.

It is unnecessary for the investor to endeavor to analyze a mass of market information in order to determine what security he shall buy. RELIANCE INTERNATIONAL CORPORATION is eminently equipped to render this service to the investor.

Girls To Attend a Banquet

Y. W. C. A. Affair Planned For February 18, Part of National Program.

Tuesday, February 18, the Lincoln Y. W. C. A. Business Girls club will join with similar groups in a nationwide banquet. The affair here will be held at the First Christian church. The theme is "Wings." Miss Evelyn Nunamaker will preside. There will be greetings from the president of the National Business Girls assembly, read by Miriam Clark. Rachal Clark will give the invocation, written by Mrs. Hanna, national president of the Y. W. C. A., for this event. Irene Weveneth will bring greetings from the national assembly, and there will be messages from many other associations.

The menus will be in the form of many colored butterflies. Smaller butterflies will be suspended from the chandeliers, and will flutter over the bouquets and bowls of nuts. The Y. M. C. A. board of directors have been invited, as well as the presidents of Axis club, Altrusa and the Business Women's league.

Valentine Party.

At the Thursday night club supper, Bob Whitmore and Bob Cummings played their ukuleles and sang and yodeled. Oak Smith announced the numbers. Miss Evelyn Addler of the university Y. W. C. A., told the girls of her experiences in the industrial experiment in Chicago, this summer. A discussion followed on what Lincoln business and university girls may do in helping improve conditions for factory workers.

A Valentine party was held later in the evening at the Y. M. C. A. The gymnasium was decorated with hearts and red paper streamers. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wolf, Mrs. Wendell Smith, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Parmelee, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Staver and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Loncor were chaperones. During the intermission, Mrs. Jasper George sang "The Sweetheart of the Y. M. C. A." and Miss Miriam Clark was presented as the girl given this honor. Virginia and Mary Elizabeth Hall gave a group of dances. Alta Adams and Frank Fuller were in charge of the party.

Axis Club.

Axis club will meet at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday night at 6:15. Following the dinner the business meeting will be held. Miss Erma Johnston, program chairman, announces that the program will be a varied one. Miss Grace Bebb visiting teacher in the Lincoln schools, will tell of her work. Several musical numbers have been arranged, and Miss Margie Wilson will give a shop talk.

Axis council met at the home of Miss Goldie Kurtz, chairman of the educational committee, Thursday night. Those present were Dr. Margaret Hammond, Fay Sherwin, Lillie Peterson, Margaret Sutton, Frances Fickes, Margie Wilson, Bess Richards, Erma Johnson, Grace Trott, Kate Field, Loretta McClellan and Mildred Bryan. After the business meeting, at which plans for Business Women's week, March 10 to 16, were perfected. The hostess served refreshments.

About twenty-five members of Axis club drove to Crete for the district meeting, Sunday. After the program the guests were taken to the rooms of the Crete club, where tea was served.

Tuesday, March 11, the Omaha club will have as speaker at an evening banquet, Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, former president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's club. Axis members have been invited to attend. Any who can go are asked to telephone Dr. Margaret Hammand, not later than March 8.

B. P. W. Club.

The dinner of the Business and Professional Women's club of Lincoln, Thursday night, was suggestive of Abraham Lincoln and his birthday. A statue of the great emancipator and his log cabin formed the centerpiece, flags with bowls of early spring flowers lending an additional touch of beauty. The statute was a gift from Mrs. Elizabeth Walters. The committee in charge: Miss Emma Hedges, Mrs. Elizabeth Walter, Mrs. Henrietta Berggren, Mrs. Lola Carney, Mrs. W. L. Minor, Misses Clare Toland, Charlotte Roberts, Leona Stafford.

Miss Edith Lucile Robbins of the Robbins studio, gave a review of "Carmen" with music from the opera. A business meeting followed.

Guests were Miss Joan Syster of Philadelphia; Misses Iva Hess, Bertha Paul of Aurora; Salome Rymal, Ruth Zimmerman, Mrs. Elizabeth Scott, and Miss Lyda Hafer, a former member. A new member, Miss Margaret Burrows was presented. Miss Burrows will be one of the Good Will company the coming summer to visit abroad.

Notes of the Club.

The next meeting will be a birthday dinner, February 27. Mrs. Gladys VanCamp and Miss Clara Arons are in charge.

March 13 the Business and Professional women join Axis club in a banquet at the Lincoln hotel.

Book review club meets February 26. Miss Blanche Williams will review "Trowsers of Taffeta," by Margaret Wilson.

League Gives Party.

The Y. W. C. A. Recreation league, headed by Miss Eloise Spencer and Miss Ruth Pratt, gave a Valentine dance and program to forty members at the Y. W. C. A. Friday evening. Valentine appointments predominated throughout the room, and Valentine games, dances, and puzzles were played and solved. Preceding refreshments at 10 o'clock a varied program was offered which consisted of a tap dance "Singing in the Rain," and "Liza Jane," by Opal Lockard, Blanche McClelland, and Lena Lanfear; a reading by Elvena Rosane, and a skit dance, "Arkansas Traveler," by Emma Horn and Eloise Spencer. The orchestration was furnished by Madeline Jackson, piano; Gertrude Giermon, violin, and Lillian Martin, cornet.

Valentine day brought with it a host of parties for University students this week end. Red hearts and streamers decorated many chapter houses Friday and Saturday. Among the larger parties was the A. T. O. formal last night at the Lincoln hotel. About 250 couples, including Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bergsten of Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Allen of Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cheney of Glenwood, Ia., Mr. and Mrs. Archer Payne of Red Oak, Ia., Merle Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Russell of Cmaha, attended.

Among the chaperones were Miss Pauline Gellatly, G. R. Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Dodds, Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Chenoweth, and Mr. and Mrs. Gayle Walker.

Many House Parties.

Among the Valentine house dances of the week-end were those of Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Chi, Farm house, Alpha Sig, Omega Beta Pi, Sigma Phi Sigma, Alpha Chi Sigma, Phi Kappa, and several sorority parties. The fifth all-University party Friday evening at the coliseum was in the form of a Valentine affair. The Co-ed Follies Saturday evening entertained the University women from 7:30 to 9 o'clock.

Xi Psi Phi had a formal party Friday evening. About 275 couples attended the dance, which was held at the Lincoln hotel, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Killian, Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Schmidt, and Dr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Griess.

"Hard Times" Costumes.

Omega Beta Pi pledges entertained at a Valentine party Saturday evening, which was attendded by thirty members of the active chapter, their guests, and about twenty-five Omaha alumni, including Floyd Nelson, Carl Hilly, Herbert Staubitz, Donald Alderson, Lloyd McNeille, Norman Witte, Lyman Heine, Robert Callison, and Bruce Henderson.

All guests attended in "hard times" costumes. Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Low and Mrs. Daisy Callison chaperoned the party.

Pledges Are Hosts.

The Sigma Phi Sigma house was the scene of a gay Valentine dance Saturday night when the pledges entertained sixty-five couples. The orchestra played from between two large hearts. Streamers of red crepe completed the decorations. Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey W. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Klinebecker chaperoned the party.

The out of town alumni included John Jones of Kansas City; Joe Sedlacek and Oliver Deal of Omaha; Verle McBride of Oakland; Hubert Stamp of Yutan, and Murray Dilley of Friend.

Valentine Day Dance.

Alpha Chi Sigma celebrated Valentine day with a dance at the chapter house Friday evening, attended by twenty-five couples. Valentine decorations were used throughout the house. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Boschult and Mrs. Louise Perrine were chaperones.

Sig Chi House Party.

About fifty couples attended the Valentine dance at the Sigma Chi house Saturday evening. Mrs. Cora Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Bengston, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ferguson were among those who chaperoned the party. The house was decorated in red and white.

Farm House Dance.

Don Ray of Omaha, Cecil Means of Curtis, and Dorcy Barnes of Mitchell, S. D., were among the alumni who attended the Valentine party at the Farm house last night. Mr. and Mrs. Ray P. Thalman and E. C. Scheidenhelm chaperoned the dancers.

Fifty Attend Tea.

A party for all freshman commission groups was given Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at Ellen Smith hall. Games and dancing occupied the afternoon. The rooms were attractively decorated in a scheme suggestive of Valentine day, and the refreshments also carried out this motif. Grace Kathan sang and Anne Amsden played. About fifty girls attended.

Carnival Aspect.

Alpha Gamma Rho active chapter members were hosts to about thirty-five couples at a house dance last night. Flood lights, balloons and confetti, lent a carnival aspect to the party, and vocal solos by Grace Kathan were featured at intermission. Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Eagle and Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Cole chaperoned the dancers.

Hearts For Invitations.

Heart shaped invitations were sent by Alpha Sigma Phi to invited guests at their house dance Saturday evening. Valentine decorations were used throughout the house. About fifty couples attended.

COUNTY SCHOOL BOARDS TO MEET

Taylor Will Address Gathering at Court House Monday.

Problems relating to hiring of teachers, making of school reports, school laws and school health will be discussed by speakers and in round table groups at the county court house Monday when members of rural school boards from over the county gather at the request of Miss Charlotte Alexander, county superintendent of education.

Charles Taylor, state superintendent of public instruction, will discuss the kind of teachers to hire. He will speak in the afternoon. A discussion on teacher employment problems will be held in the morning. Other subjects which will be considered in the morning discussions are methods of making reports from school boards to the county superintendent, requirements for free high school tuition and elementary transfer requirements. The library law will also be discussed.

Value of Parent-Teacher associations to the county's schools will be discussed by Mrs. Nells Hansen, Mrs. E. W. Frost, and Mrs. Charles Waldren. Miss Chloe Baldridge, director of rural education will discuss the county pageants.

Two health talks will be given at the afternoon meeting following the address of State Superintendent Taylor. Miss Helen Noyes, extension agent of the agricultural college will speak on health projects for rural schools. Dr. R. H. Sawyer, county physician, will tell what to do in case of contagious diseases.

A luncheon will be held at noon, with board members and their families bringing their own lunches. The meeting is the first attempt to get the county's school board members together for instruction in some of the duties of such boards and a discussion of problems they all face, according to Miss Alexander.

Valentine Party For Shut-ins

Inmates County Farm and Orthopedic Hospital Guests At Programs.

When the civics department of the Lincoln Woman's club met in Faculty hall, Friday, Mrs. J. H. JJohnson reported on the county farm program. She said that little Elizabeth Hawkins, impersonating a valentine, gave several readings, and distributed candy hearts to the inmates. Mrs. Eugene Levy presided.

Volunteers for Red Cross work were asked to assist next Tuesday in making garments for children in the flooded districts of the south. Mrs. Fred Bricka, Mrs. Guy Parcell, and Miss Lincola Groat volunteered to assist in Americanization classes. The speakers were Mrs. Fred Easterday and Mrs. Leroy Davis. Mrs. Easterday spoke on "City Wide Recreation," telling of eleven playgrounds supervised for a period of eight weeks, with a total attendance of more than seventy-one thousand. An increase in attendance has been shown every year since the city and the board of education combined efforts. Besides the playgrounds the recreation board conducted a reading room at the Park school in connection with the F street playground.

Mrs. Easterday stressed that it is instinctive for a child to want to play; it is nature's provision that through play there is a normal physical growth which means health and happiness; it is the duty of the community to provide safe play space and leadership. She said that the placing of three piles of yellow sand in the yards of the children's missions in Boston, in 1886, was the first effort at outdoor playgrounds in the United States. From this beginning the movement has grown until in 1928 more than one million men, women and children daily made use of the recreational facilities provided by 872 cities.

The Lincoln recreation board, of which Mrs. Easterday is secretary, hopes to make the recreational system of the city a factor in developing a better city by using the parks and athletic fields for community-wide athletics and programs for young people.

Orthopedic Entertainment.

Mrs. Davis spoke on the National League of Women voters. She stated that it is not a woman's party nor a club. It does not limit its membership to certain groups. Not inclusive nor exclusive, it concerns itself with women as voters, and invites to membership all women who wish to be responsible, voting citizens. It is not allied with any political party. It is not opposed to any political party. It is not partisan; it is independent. It recommends that its members enroll as voters and affiliate with the political standards of their choice. She brought out that the league approves standards, efficient governments and public welfare in government which it hopes eventually to see transformed into custom or written into law. It stands for law enforcement, but believes that in a democracy good government can be achieved only through good citizenship. It helps women to make good use of their citizenship.

The Orthopedic entertainment committee under Mrs. H. M. Rathburn, entertained the children with a Valentine party. The hospital was gaily decorated with streamers and red hearts, the ceiling being draped with festoons of red and white and the stage with myriads of red hearts. The decorations were all made by the children. The program follows:

Trio from the University School of Music, Marcel O'Brien, violin; Marjorie Beatty, cello; and Bernice Barnard, piano. Pupils of Dorothy MacKenzie, Betty Harris, Mildred Curd, Betty Mueller, Leatrice Poska, Pauline Johnson Helen Gardener, Bernice Allen, Donnetta Curtis, Jannet Harris, Margaret Price, Arlydale Lundberg, gave a dancing program. Mrs. Emma Schloss and Mrs. George Condra were hostesses, assisted by Mesdames E. A. Wood and Eugene Levy, and Misses Goldie Lindquist and Janet Kohn.

VALUABLE PAPER GIVEN TO LIBRARY BY CRETE WOMAN

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., Feb. 15—Recently the secretary to the librarian of the congressional library at Washington, in a letter to Mrs. B. G. Miller of Crete, expressed a desire for her copy of the Christian Palladium, which was published in February, 1845, at Union Mills, N. Y., by the editors, Rev. Jasper Hazen, John Ross and Oliver Barr. Mrs. Miller immediately complied with this request and submitted her copy of the Palladium which was inherited by her from her great grandfather, Rev. Hazen, who was the son of a Revolutionary soldier.

There are but two other copies of this book known to be in existence. One is owned by the Antiquarian society of Worcester, N. Y., the other is in the Theological school at Meadville, Pa., which was organized in 1844.

The Christian Palladium contains an article advocating an international tribunal at that time, almost a century ago. The article was written by Rev. Elder Millard of West Bloomfield, N. Y., and was entitled: "Wars National Evils, The Christian's Duty". The following is an extract:

"But it may be urged that individuals have other means of redress for wrongs besides fighting. So have civilized nations: and this fact has been more than once proved in reference to our own nation. We have at least twice submitted matters of difficulty to a third power; once in relation to England and once in regard to difficulties with France. In both instances, the result was both fortunate and honorable.

"I most solemnly believe that civilized nations may institute a congress to which international difficulties may be safely referred without ever resorting to arms. Why should not the trial be made? And why not the United States take the lead in this noble work of philanthropy and mercy?"

JOHNSON COUNTY HOLDS CORN SHOW

(Special to The Star.)

TECUMSEH, Neb., Feb. 15 — The fifth annual Johnson county corn show was held in Tecumseh this week and was well attended. Exhibits of both corn and grasses was below normal, due to a short crop here in 1929. Prof. P. H. Stewart of the state agricultural college judged the corn and spoke on corn growing and club work.

Prof. H. J. Gramlich was the principal speaker at a banquet for livestock men and spoke of the future of farming. O. O. Waggener of the state agricultural department spoke of feeding corn to hogs, how to get the most out of corn, and conducted a round table at which many farmers and feeders took part. The corn show was conducted by Harry E. Huston county agricultural agent, and it was sponsored by the Tecumseh chamber of commerce.

Johnson County Fair Dates September 16-19

(Special to The Star.)

TECUMSEH, Neb., Feb. 15—The management of the Johnson county fair has decided to hold its third free fair this year. The plan seems to be satisfactory. The dates for holding the fair have been placed at September 16 to 19, inclusive, just one month later than the fair has been held the past two years.

Get the Facts About This New and Different Medicine That Has Won More Than a Million Friends.

An Effective Medicine For Stubborn Cases

MR. W. C. DRAGER,
1535 H St., Lincoln, Nebr.

"The very quick and splendid benefits I have obtained from the use of Miller's Herb Extract, known as Herb Juice, prompts me to make this statement that others may benefit by it also," said Mr. Drager. "Herb Extract has given me more relief than any medicine I have ever taken. I only hope that I will always be able to buy another bottle when the present one is used up. I have taken five bottles and have found it to be the most agreeable and thorough system cleanser and regulator of any medicine ever used. It has relieved me of indigestion, gas on stomach and rheumatism in my hips, sides, knees and ankles which has given me trouble for years. Am feeling better in every way than for a long while, hence I gladly recommend this wonderful medicine to everyone affected with similar ailments, in fact I really welcome the opportunity to give credit where credit is due."

You do not need any pills with this medicine. It is a real medicine within itself. See the special representative, direct from the Laboratories, at his headquarters at Harley Drug Co., 11th and O Sts., Lincoln, Nebr., where he is now meeting the local public daily explaining the merits of this great medicine.

Hello Lincoln! Don't go 'way; read on. A common impression exists in this community that delicatessen store prices are high. Maybe so. But not at the Lincoln Delicatessen, 1439 O street. Popular prices prevail here. For example, for 19c we are offering you the choice of large Heinz or Monarch catsup. M. J. B. coffee, 39c lb. (last chance). Delicious cream cheese, 22½c lb. Meat, tender and luscious. Fresh ground beef, 15c lb. Our steaks and chops will surely please. Our fruit department is prepared to take care of your needs. Prices good today. Come on down to the Lincoln Delicatessen, 1439 O street. B5585. Free delivery all day.—Adv.

Wertz Answers Johnson—George W. Wertz Saturday addressed a letter to the city council in which he takes exceptions to the statements of A. G. Johnson, plant engineer of the water and light department, answering a previous communication by Wertz, criticising the purchase of a turbo-generator. Wertz says in his answer that he has had twenty-seven years experience in steam engineering work, six years being at the water plant. "City records should show that I must have been doing other work than lathe operating, as my pay was $1 more per day than the first engineer," Wertz writes. Wertz disputes virtually every statement in Johnson's statement. He asks why Johnson did not make these changes years ago. His principal objection to the new equipment, he states, is that too much small machinery is being added to the plant.

Obituary

JOHN WESLEY MARSH.

John Wesley Marsh was born in State Center, Ia., May 1, 1876, and came to Nebraska as a small boy with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marsh, who settled in Johnson county, near Crab Orchard. They later moved to Vesta, Neb., where Mr. Marsh lived for many years. He was a stationary engineer and worked for different paving companies on road work. He was employed with the local thresher companies of Lincoln for several years, and will be remembered as the roller man for Abel and Roberts Construction Co. of Lincoln. He helped pave many streets in Lincoln and other towns. In 1911 he was married to Mrs. Nellie Oakes of Lincoln. Since then he had been employed by paving companies in different parts of Nebraska until about five years ago when he located at Vesta to be near and care for his aged mother. She passed away in May, 1928. Mr. Marsh had been ill for about two years with heart trouble and diabetes and passed away at the St. Elizabeth's hospital, Monday, Feb. 10, 1930. He leaves to mourn his death, his wife, Mrs. Nellie Marsh and a stepson, Thomas Oakes of Chicago, Ill., and many friends. He was liked by all who knew him, and was faithful as a husband and companion. He was a member of the First Baptist church of Lincoln. Rev. Clifton H. Walcott officiated at the funeral service on Friday, February 14, 1930. Burial was at Wyuka.

CURTISS TO SPEAK AT COUNTY MEET

Lancaster Community Gathering At Agricultural College Next Friday.

John C. Curtiss, member of the state railway commission, will be the principal speaker at the next community meeting for Lancaster county farmers and their families, J. F. Purbaugh, county extension agent announced Saturday. The gathering, which will be the second county community program of the year, will be held at the student activities building at the college of agriculture at 8 o'clock Friday, Feb. 21.

More than 300 attended the first program held January 31, according to Purbaugh. The programs are held to develop home talent and to encourage development of community recreational efforts. Mr. Purbaugh and his assistant, Mrs. Blanche Hill, lead the groups.

Community singing at the program next Friday will be led by Rev. Glenn Marshall of Havelock. Austin Finlay, a farmer living north of Waverely, will give two readings. Mary Catherine McLaughlin and Florence Morgan of Havelock will give a dance. The Hickman male quartet, composed of John Borrigter, E. L. Hickman, Al Kuster, and Marion Craig, will sing. Mrs. S. Kuster will be their accompanist.

STATE ANALYST URGES USING OF CERTIFIED SEED

Miss Elva Norris, state seed analyst, is urging Nebraska farmers to demand certified and labelled alfalfa seed when they purchase their supply for spring planting.

In a bulletin published Saturday, she pointed out the danger of obtaining a crop heavily mixed with weeds, or perhaps no crop at all, should the seed fail to germinate.

The Nebraska Crop Growers association, operating through the state agricultural college, and the Verified Seed service of the U. S. department of agriculture, are making it possible for farmers to obtain a high quality seed.

The Nebraska seed law requires that agricultural seed offered for sale in the state must be tagged and labelled as to purity, germination, and weed seed content.

"Farmers should demand the label and then study it carefully," Miss Norris commented.

She also urged that farmers purchase their grass, clover and alfalfa seed early, and keep it in a store house or granary until planting time, explaining that late orders are apt to be filled with a poorer quality seed.

NICKEL CREATES FRESHMAN PRIZE

$500 Fund Established By University Graduate.

Creation of a prize of $25 to be presented annually to the freshman man or woman who had made the greatest triumph over heavy odds in the obtaining of an education was announced Saturday by Chancellor E. A. Burnett of the University of Nebraska. The prize is offered by Walter J. Nickel, a graduate of the university now living in Chicago.

According to the announcement Mr. Nickel has placed $500 in a fund known as the "Walter J. Nickel Fund," the income of which will be used as a prize for freshman students. No restrictions are made as to sex, color, or course of study followed by the student. This is the first prize which has been secured by university officials for benefit of university freshmen.

Mr. Nickel has informed authorities that as the income will not be available for the class of 1930, he will contribute $25 additional for this purpose.

Mr. Nickel was born in Hebron and was graduated from the University in 1916. He served during the world war, and is at present secretary-treasurer of the Bankers Box company in Chicago.

1795 Coin Believed Clue To Exploration Parties In Nebraska

A silver coin, bearing the inscription "Respublica Solodoren," and dated 1795, which was found near Fairbury, Neb., may unlock the doors to a new clue of early exploratory parties in Nebraska.

Pencil rubbings of the coin have been sent the University of Nebraska for possible identification by Bertha Akin, Fairbury school teacher, who is calling for exhibits of foreign money to be displayed to a Latin class, was attracted by this odd coin brought in by one of the students.

The origin of the coin has not been definitely decided as yet, according to E. E. Blackman, curator of the state historical society, who is puzzling over the rubbings and sketches.

From the rubbings, the date, the inscription, a crown, a large cross and letter S, and the amount of the coin "20 Baz" are distinguishable. The coin has been bent so as to prevent perfect rubbings. It is slightly larger than a half-dollar piece.

The spot where the coin was picked up is near the point where, some years ago, a boy found an old bronze Spanish sword hanger. The sword hanger is now in the possession of the historical society. The coin was found in a little tributary valley to Rose creek, near Fairbury.

Cornhuskers Soon On Mark for Spring Gridiron Drills

Bible Drafts Plan For Busy Campaign

Squad of 18 Varsity Lettermen, Plus Liberal Lineup of Freshmen, To Turn Out Early In March.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

University of Nebraska football candidates of 1930 will assemble Monday, March 3, to don the moleskins for a month's spring drill, according to present plans of Dana X. Bible, head coach of the pigskin sport at the Cornhusker institution. Bible expects a full attendance of gridiron aspirants, the practice schedule being arranged to follow the close of the basketball campaign and be out of the way by the time outdoor spring sports are slated to get under way.

Month of Drill.

One month's intensive drill is on tap for the Nebraska squad. During this period Bible hopes to get a good slant on Cornhusker prospects for the 1930 season, sort out the most desirable material and group several combinations that will be "ready to shoot" when the gong sounds for opening practice in September.

The first formal get-together of the grid squad has been called for next Thursday evening at the "N" club room, at which time Bible will outline plans for the spring work. Prior to the opening outdoor drill, the Nebraska coach will hold several group meets at which the candidates for the various position will be given a chalk talk on fundamentals.

Five Assistants.

Coach Bible will have the help of five assistants during the spring drill. This quintet includes B. F. Oakes, varsity line coach; Ed Weir, varsity end coach; Bill Day, varsity "nubbin" coach; Charley Black, assistant backfield coach, and Capt. R. G. Lehman, freshman line coach. "Choppy" Rhodes, although busy with his baseball squad, may be on hand for some assistance with the gridders.

Among the players not expected to return for the 1930 roundup are eleven who will be graduated next spring, have completed their three years' competition or for other reasons are not slated to return. This group includes George Farley, Clark McBride, Willard Witte, Harold Peaker, Clair Sloan, backfield men; Adolph Lewandowski, end; Raymond Richards, George Ray, tackles; all of whom have seen three years with the Scarlet and Cream. Paul Morrison, center, and Bernard Marquis, quarterback, are married and not expected back in school. Gaylord Burgeson, guard, also is not slated to return.

String of Lettermen.

Lettermen expected to report for the spring drill are Robert Young,

TEAMS LINED UP FOR 10-PIN FEST

Hundred Quints On List For State Carnival of Maple Mauling.

The fifteenth annual Nebraska State Bowling association tournament is scheduled to open next Friday with upwards to 100 teams competing over the new drives at the Lincoln Bowling parlors. The tourney is scheduled to continue through to March 3.

P. A. Brown, tournament secretary, is out with the prediction that the 1930 ten-pin carnival will be one of the most successful in Nebraska bowling annals. The business of pounding maples has been enjoying a big boom in all sections of the state and the annual classic will bring together the best in the commonwealth.

The Omaha delegation already has assured Secretary Brown that 27 teams will make the trek to Lincoln. This includes six teams from the stockyards who will roll March 2 and bring along a band to make their presence known in the capital city.

Beatrice will be in with six teams, Grand Island with five, while Falls City, Nebraska City, Columbus, Norfolk, and Stromsburg also have assured representations.

Omaha teams include Glaser's Provisions, Nebraska Seed Co., John Flynn & Co., Klopp Printing, Elks No. 39.

Out-state teams list Fairmont Creamery, First National bank, Nielsen's, Lebsack's, Birks of Grand Island, Sherrel Recreation of Norfolk; American Legion of Stromsburg; Long Drugs of Nebraska City, Rex Nos. 1 and 2 of Columbus, Consolidated Coal, Ideal Cleaners of Falls City.

Lincoln Entries.

The Lincoln roster Saturday night included Crancer Radios, Pepperberg Cigars, Phillips 66, three Burlington league teams, Hussong-Rogers, Chris Beck's Miller Tires, Scoreboard, Lincoln Hotel, Lindell Hotel, Cornhusker Hotel, Neon Sign, John Hancock Insurance, University Iowa-Nebraska Power, Fenton B. Fleming Jeweler, Union Fire, Postoffice, Knights of Columbus, Cushman Motors, Ben Simon & Sons, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Nebraska Buicks, J. I. Case & Co., Modern Cleaners, Garvey Products, Security Mutual Life, Woodruff Printing, Central Cafe, Schmitt's Auto Tinners.

Husker Athletes Perform At Home

University of Nebraska basketball and track teams will display their wares before home audiences this week. The Cornhusker tossers will meet Iowa State college at the coliseum Saturday night and the varsity track squad will meet Iowa State in an indoor meet at the Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon.

The Cornhusker wrestling squad will travel to Ames for a Friday meet with Iowa State, while the varsity swimmers will appear at Iowa university, Saturday, Feb. 22, and at Drake university, Monday, Feb. 24.

ELDER SPRINTS TO NEW INDOOR MARK

BROOKLYN, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Jack Elder, former Notre Dame football and track star, set a world record for running 60 meters indoors when he won a special sprint at that distance in seven seconds in the Metropolitan association A. A. U. indoor games tonight. Elder flashed in ahead of Jimmy Pappas, unattached, and Frank Hussey of the New York Athletic club.

The record had been held at 7 1-5 seconds by Karl Wildermuth of Georgetown and Bob McAllister, New York's "flying cop."

Elder also won the 50-yard dash, first event of the sprint series. Hussey was second at that distance and Pappas third. Elder's time was 5 3-5 seconds.

Gridders Accused Plundering Store

ASHLAND, Ky., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Three former football players, two of them from the University of Wisconsin, were manacled together here late today and returned to Colon, Mich., where they are wanted on charges of stealing valuable furs from the J. O. Burke store.

The trio, Joe Kresky, former Wisconsin guard; H. Green (Gene) Rose, former halfback, and Peter Abraham, who played with the Chicago Bears and the Green Bay, Wis., Packers, were identified earlier today by Deputies James Correll and Guy Clipfell, who arrived from Centerville, Mich., near Colon.

JAYHAWKERS NIP OKLAHOMA QUINT

Kansas Edges Ahead In Frenzied Rally, Win 25-23.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Feb. 15—(UP)—The University of Kansas basketball team remained at the top of Big Six conference tonight, nosing out the University of Oklahoma, 25 to 23.

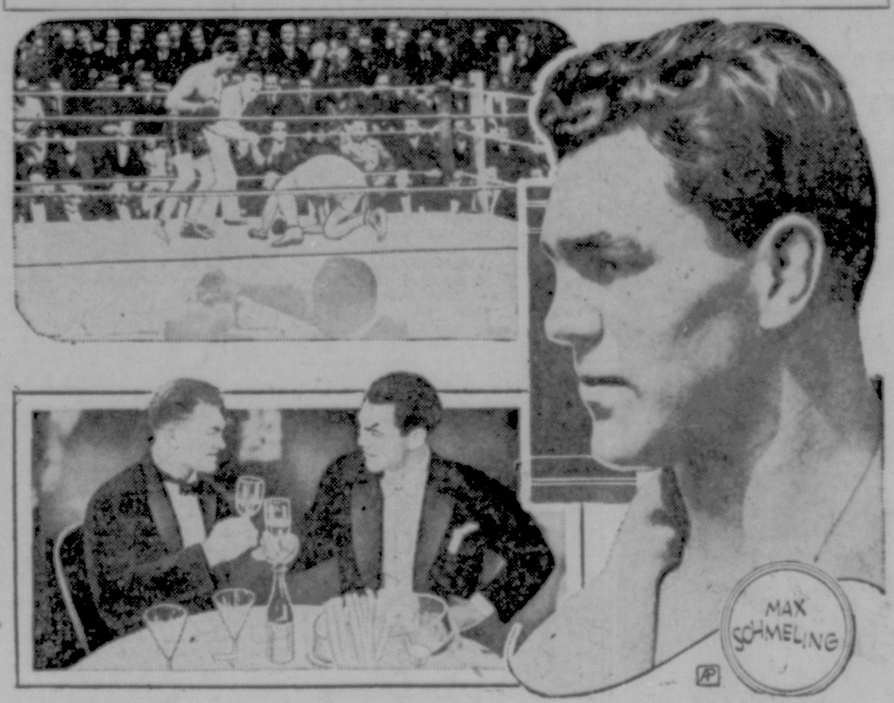

Oklahoma had been leading the Kansans 22 to 17 with only six minutes left to play. Then the Kansas fireworks broke lose. Ransom and Bishop of Kansas tossed in a succession of field goals and free throws to better the Oklahomans in a wild period of "anybody's ball, and everybody shooting."

Bishop of Kansas—whose native state is Oklahoma—won the game for the Jayhawkers with a short hook shot a minute before the gun. Coach Hugh McDermott substituted desperately in the last minute with instructions to all to shoot the moment they got the ball. Score:

BROWNIES TURN BACK TECH FIVE

Masterson Enters Fray To Clinch Victory For Lincoln.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 15—(Special)—Big Bernie Masterson saved Lincoln high school from a possible defeat at the hands of Omaha Tech in a hair-raising court duel at Tech Saturday night. Masterson, suffering from an injury to his ankle sustained Friday against Central, sat on the side lines and watched a dtermined Tech qintet forge into a 16 to 12 lead in the third period.

Coach W. H. Browne sent his husky center limping into the fray and the Links rallied to pull the game out of the fire by a 30 to 23 margin. Masterson's control of the certer tip and his welcome five points came just in the nick of time and gave the capital city lads their seventh Missouri Valley conference win and kept their slate clean in Nebraska games. Lincoln had cinched the conference flag Friday night by defeating Central, 21 to 14.

Tech Off In Lead.

Coach Jim Drummond's Techsters shot into an early lead by registering six points in less than two minutes shortly before the close of the first period and led at the whistle, 6 to 3.

Martin's two field goals and one free throw helped the invaders draw up on even terms and the half ended, 9 to 9.

Tech started another splurge in the third period. Morse started it by sinking a goal from midcourt and Griffith followed with a pair of free throws. Witte got a long goal, but Mather immediately duplicated the feat and then Ayres and Kearnes both scored on a double foul to give Tech a 16 to 12 advantage.

Masterson Turns Tide.

The Maroons were playing a fast, aggressive game and Witte and Ayres could find no loophole for shots at the ring. Then Masterson entered the fray and Tech's chances flew out the window.

Masterson got the tip-off which Jones had been taking regularly for Tech and this seemed to throw the Maroon defense out of gear. Ayres was loose three times in a row for easy goals and Lincoln shot ahead, 18 to 16, before Tech could catch its breath.

Kadereit's free throw and Griffith's wide shot gave the Omahans

HUSKERS AHEAD IN TANK COMPET

Nebraska Easily Victor In Swimming Meet With Kaggies.

Capturing seven firsts in eight events and tying one Big Six conference record, Rudy Vogeler's University of Nebraska swimmers triumphed over the Kansas Aggie natators in the Lincoln high school pool Saturday afternoon, 50 to 25.

The Nebraska effort which tied the conference mark was in the medley relay, which was easily won by the Cornhuskers when Cotter, anchorman, sailed across the finish line just three minutes, 39.8 seconds after the first man took off. The other members of the trio were Mockler and Chaloupka, who splashed in the order named.

The small crowd was treated to a thrill in the 440-yard free style, when Hestbeck, U. of N. swimmer coasted in to victory with a lead of more than 60 yards over Hansen of the Aggies, who was second. Salvatore Amato was high point man with 10 tallies, closely followed by Buckmaster, who scored nine. Buckmaster won the only Aggie first in the 100-yard free style. The summary:

The Meet Summary.

160-yard relay—Won by Nebraska (Young, Sutherland, Cannon, Amato.) Time, 1 minute 26 seconds.

200-yard breast stroke—Won by Chaloupka (N); second, Peterson

Brass Tacks by Cy Sherman

THE University of Minnesota has pulled itself out of its coaching muddle—temporarily, at least. Fritz Crisler, first aide to Pa Stagg at Chicago U., has accepted the Gopher proffer and will succeed Doc. Spears, who, resigned recently to direct gridiron affairs at Oregon.

Choice of Crisler by President Coffman and the Minnesota athletic council kicked up an uproarious commotion in the Gopher camp, where numerous alumni joined members of the varsity squad in opposing Crisler and urging the selection of Bernie Bierman, Minnesota alumnus and coach of proved ability at Tulane U., New Orleans.

Gopher football men, it seems, had such an acute attack of hates and likes that they wired warnings to Crisler that he should not accept, but the young man from Chicago has had the nerve to go through with it and, on that score, is worthy of a fair trial; he should be commended for his courage, if not for his judgment.

THE criticism, if any, should be reserved for President Coffman, rather than for Crisler, who, according to all reports, is a young fellow of fine character and young coach of equally fine promise.

As matters stand, the Minnesota president has bowed his neck to force an unwilling public in the Gopher camp to accept his will. He may get away with it, yet failure by Crisler to make good on his job will reflect on the new coach, rather than on the man most responsible for the turmoil.

The long and short of the Minnesota situation is that the Gopher authorities are striving to grow blue grass by planting weed seeds. The Spears vacancy called for a head coach of known ability. Football at Minnesota U. is the big league article and it deserves to have a big league coach.

Crisler, given time and a fair chance, may measure up to the job, but he is stepping into a hostile situation, accepting a salary that is niggardly in comparison with the athletic department's income and

ON LAST LAP OF CAGE CAMPAIGN

State High Basket Teams Drive Up to End of 1930 Race.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Nebraska high schools are on the final lap of the 1930 basketball campaign. For the schools of less than 100 enrollment, this is the final week of scheduled competition, the smaller quints meeting in district tournament competition, Feb. 27, 28 and March 1.

The larger schools do not plunge into the tourney race until the weekend of March 6, 7 and 8, but a majority of these teams have only light contests on tap for the week preceding the tourney splurge.

The big game of the week for tourney dopesters isthe Hastings-Lincoln clash, billed for next Saturday on the capital city court. Early showing these two teams indicate that each will come in for a considerable play in tournament dopesheets and the final tally on the scheduled game will be awaited with interest.

Tigers Have Fine Record.

Coach Dwight Thomas' Hastings team, a tourney finalist last year and apparently a champion until a St. Paul rally swept the Tigers aside, has made its presence felt during the 1930 season. The Tigers, with a good supply of veterans, have compiled one of the best records of the season in the interscholastic circle.

The same may be said of the Lincoln five. The capital city machine has improved as the season has worn along and apparently is striving to reach its peak at tournament time.

Again declining to engage in state championship competition, Omaha teams have been forced to center their attention largely on the chase after the city title. That race is reaching the show-down stage.

North vs. South.

During the coming week, Omaha North will apoear at South, Central meets Benson and Creighton Prep, while Tech tangles with the young Bluejays. Each game has important bearing on the city race.

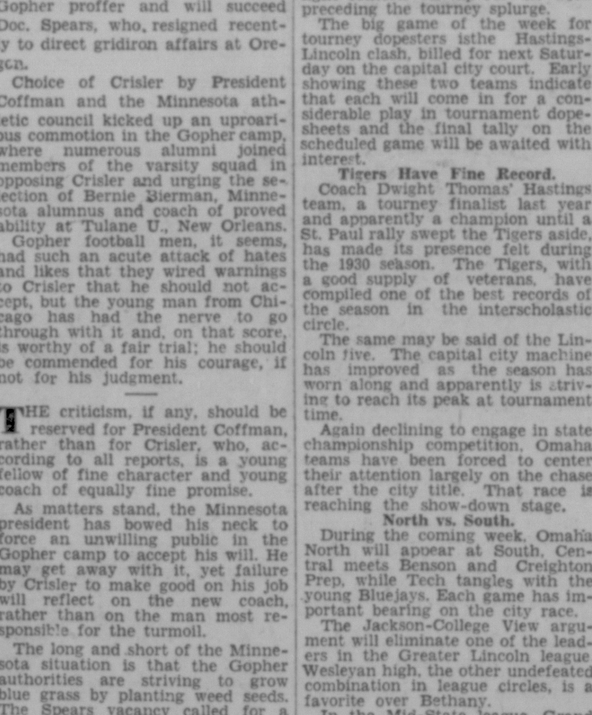

The Jackson-College View argument will eliminate one of the leaders in the Greater Lincoln league Wesleyan high, the other undefeated combination in league circles, is a favorite over Bethany.

In the Mid-State league, Grand Island tackles York and Kearney, while Fremont invades Columbus. The Discoverers have had a rather hectic season — looking poor at times, but clicking in sensational fashion to dish out first defeats to the strong Hastings and Kearney quintets.

The Southwest league approaches the final stage, with the leading

NEBRASKA BAGS BASKET BATTLE

Husker Cagers Revenged On Tigers For Early Season Defeat.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The University of Nebraska basketball team won a thrilling game from Missouri before a crowd of 3,500 at the coliseum Saturday night, 34 to 31. The Cornhusker tossers took the lead late in the first period and were never headed, although the Tigers cut loose with a string of sensational baskets in a last-minute effort to pull the game out of the fire.

The Saturday night victory brought Coach Charley Black's hoopsters in with a strong bid for second position in the Big Six race and all but eliminated Missouri from title consderation. A string of setbacks for the Kansas Jayhawkers might swing Nebraska into a cut of the championship spoils should Nebraska survive its remaining games without a reversal.

Thriller All the Way.

The Nebraska-Missouri clash was a thriller all the way through. Handicapped by inability of Maclay to get the tip-off, the Cornhuskers fought an uphill fight and played the entire route without a substitution.

With the Tigers getting the tip, the Nebraska five was forced for the most part to retrieve the ball from the bankboard before starting its plays and "Dutch" Witte and Steve Hokuf performed brilliantly in this function. The Dutchman, in fact, played one of the best games of his career, while Hokuf's guarding of the elongated Huhn mussed up Missouri's plans to score at close range. Witte and Hokuf also contributed their share of the points, the former cashing in for three baskets in the first half.

Fisher the Main Cog.

Morris Fisher was the big cog in the Nebraska scoring machine, in spite of the fact the former Lincoln high athlete was given some close guarding by the Tigers. Morris counted five field goals, four of which were scored after he had spun or dribbled away from a Missouri guard.

Baker's shot from mid-court was the first score of the game and his second long archer sent the Tigers, 4-1, in the lead. With the first period half gone, Missouri had an 8-5 lead. Witte was loose to dribble in for a short shot and Fisher tipped a follow-in through the hoop to send the Huskers in front, 9-8.

Grace Rings the Bell.

Welsh's short shot returned the lead to Missouri, but only for a short while. Grace cocked one at long

IOWA BEATEN IN DUAL MAT MEET

Hawkeyes Worsted, 17-11 In Grappling Compet With Huskers.

University of Nebraska wrestlers made it a clean sweep of the day for Cornhusker athletes by winning a 17-11 victory over the University of Iowa in a Saturday night match at the coliseum. Coach Johnny Kellogg's grapiers won one fall and four decisions in the first six matches to clinch the meet.

Kosowsky, Nebraska 115-pounder, opened the meet by pinning Mueller of Iowa. Gilcrist, Iowa heavyweight, scored the only Hawkeye fall when he flattened Adams of Nebraska. Adams, who weighed only 172 pounds conceded the Iowan over 50 pounds, yet wrestled the first two minutes on even terms and had a time advantage during the second extra period.

Simic Loses Decision.

Soyner, Iowa 155-pounder, spilled the dope when he earned a decision over Adolph Simic, Big Six conference champion. Soyner went behind at the start and stayed there until he had rolled up a sufficient time advantage.

The University of Nebraska squad meets Iowa State at Ames Next Friday.

Summary of Meet.

115-pound class—Kosowsky (N) won from Mueller (I) by fall with head scissors and wristlock in 7 minutes 1 second.

125-pound class—Weber (N) won from Jones (I) by decision with time advantage of 6 minutes 23 seconds.

135-pound class—Rees (N) won from Aurie (I) by decision with time advantage of 9 minutes 49 seconds.

145-pound class—Margaret (N) won from Whitten (I) by decision with time advantage of 6 minutes 10 seconds.

155-pound class—Soynor (I) won from Simic (N) by decision with time advantage of 1 minute 36 seconds.

165-pound class—Robertson (N) won from Coughlin (I) by decision with time advantage of 5 minutes 39 seconds.

175-pound class—Jarrad (I) won from Hunt (N) by decision with time advantage of 8 minutes 46 seconds.

Heavyweight class—Gilcrist (I) won from Adams (N) by fall after 3 minutes 30 seconds of first period with half nelson and bodyhold.

Rich Pickings For Knockout Knights

Garden Crowd Lines Up String of Fist Celebrities and Plans Pull Two Millions At the Box Office.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Feb 15—(I. N. S.)—Madison Square Garden, through its matchmaker, Tom McArdle, broke down and confessed abjectly today that it is about to promote four prize fights into a matter of $2,000,000, three of them involving world's championship title and the fourth deciding the moot question of "heavy heavyweight" supremacy.

Thus, does the Garden's claim to absolute dominance, a delusion these 13 months since Rickard's death, take on the semblance of reality, at last.

College View Hi Defeats Milford

College View handed Milford a 38-23 defeat Saturday night on the College View floor. The Robsonmen got away to a good lead in the first half, which ended 26-9 in their favor. Milford came back to outscore its opponents in the second half but was unable to pull up on even terms.

The play of the last quarter was marred by roughness, making it necessary for a player of each team to be ejected from the game. Milford showed speed and passing ability in its offense, but the height of the College View players stopped the visitors' under-basket work.

Eno of College View with 18 points took high scoring honors. Muir, Milford forward, was largely responsible for the third period scoring spree of his team.

College View will meet Jackson high Wednesday night on the Irving junior high court. The reserve teams of these schools will play a preliminary game. The score:

Crete Too Classy For Junior Jays

OMAHA, Feb. 15 — (Special) — Coach Pop Klein's Crete high basket chasers weren't very hard pressed to establish superiority over Creighton Prep Saturday night at the Hilltop and won, 22 to 19. The classy aggregation of gunners from Saline county led all the way and found relatively easy sailing to go out and get points when needed.

Klein's men set up a man-for-man defense that sparkled. Stone and Fahrnbruch showed good guarding, and Stone was eagle-eyed to hit six field goals for point honors of the game. Murray for Creighton was as good a goaler as ever, but his floor work slumped. Score:

Behold the Program.

The multi-million dollar program only a portion of which is definitely closed, calls for the following:

Sammy Mandell, champion, versus Al. Singer, challenger, for the lightweight championship in July.

Jackie Fields, champion, versus Jimmy McLarnin, challenger, for the welterweight championship in August.

Primo Carnera versus Victorio Campolo for the what-is-it title at a date to be named later.

Max Schmeling versus the Sharkey-Scott winner for the heavyweight championship on June 26.

Last But Not Least.

This last is the only member of boxing's big four that involves neither negotiation nor proviso. It is as certain as the whimsies and the caprices of this life can make it. If Sharkey wins at Miami, the fight with Schmeling may do three-quarters of a million dollars worth of business. If he doesn't it won't. A heavyweight championship fight will always pay off in grown-up money, at that.

Fields and McLarnin haven't been "squared" yet, but the Garden finally feels that it is getting somewhere with a couple of fighters who don't want any more than 100 per cent for their trouble.

Ready With Real Money.

McArgle said his last offer was $100,000 which pair could divide to their fancy. This fight, a potential $300,000 enterprise, would have been made long ago, except that Fields, being the champion, wants the regular champion's cut of 37½ per cent while McLarnin, being the attraction, wants more money than Fields or he won't play. In other words, he wants the title somewhat less than he wants wahat he calls his "rights." McLarnin, a small god to the muggs here, will sell out any ball park, if dropped down in a title bout.

Singer Great Card.

Singer, with an East Side following like Leonard's, is another $300,000 fighter, if they get him in a championship. He already is lined of, according to McArdle, and the latter says that Mandell will be all ready when the time comes.

Samuel has made what might be called complicated money out of his title only once and, assuming that it wouldn't distress him unduly if he did it again, Singer is his great chance.

I don't know who would win the prize fight but, with Singer in there nobobdy would lose—financially. Singer has averaged $81,400 in his last seven fights here. McLarnin's average, through four fights is $79,500. You don't go wrong with that kind.

Carnera and Campolo.

Nor do you with a pair like Carnera and Campolo, providing nothing untoward happens to either in the meantime. Campolo, who is all signed up with the Garden indefinitely, must get by Johnny Risko at Miami or he won't be worth a trip to the nickelodeon. John is inclined to be very untoward, at that.

As for Carnera, they will keep that gentleman out of all encounters of an unpleasant nature until the time is ripe. The time is becoming a little sun-tanned now. If they can keep it that way, the fight will do a half million easily. In fact, this will be one time when a so-called easy half million won't be hard to get.

Huskers All But Double Missouri Total In Indoor Meet.

BREWER FIELD HOUSE, Columbia, Mo., Feb. 15—(Special)—Jumping into a lead when its sprinters finished first and third in the 60-yard dash opener, the University of Nebraska track team piled up additional points in every event and defeated Missouri here tonight by a 68 to 38 score. This was the first meet ever held at Brewer Field house and it was the first meeting between the Tiger and Husker indoor teams.

In only four of the twelve events did Missouri outscore the victors, while the Cornhuskers made a clean sweep in the high hurdles, Smutney, Thompson and Petz finishing in order, well in front of the Missouri entries.

The feature contest of the evening was the 880-yard run in which R. Swartz, Missouri and Ostergaard, Nebraska, were pitted against each other. The Husker entry repeated the performance he turned in at the K. C. A. C. meet, winning by 10 yards.

The Missouri mile relay team turned in good time and finished the event 20 yards ahead of the Nebraskans.

Summary of Meet.

60-yard dash—Won by Smutney, Nebraska; second, Welch, Missouri; third, Petz, Nebraska. Time, 6.4.

Mile run—Won by D. Swartz, Missouri; second, Garvey, Nebraska; third, Etherton, Nebraska. Time, 4:36.6.

Edgren Rates Wrestler as Easy Mark for Fist Slinger

Brands 'Strangler' as 'Publicity Chaser' In Challenging Stribling

By ROBERT EDGREN.

For several years Strangler Lewis, wrestler, and champion at the time, managed to get a little ballyhoo in dull seasons by challenging Jack Dempsey to meet him in a "mixed match." This meant that either could do anything he was able to, to the other, but Dempsey must wear padded gloves. The general supposition was that Dempsey would try to hit Lewis and box according to Queensberry rules, while the Strangler would duck low and reach for the boxing champion's ankles. Lewis claimed that all he needed to beat any boxer was to "get his hands on him." Dempsey always laughed at the challenge. If he had accepted, it's likely Lewis would have discovered a pressing necessity for a trip to Africa.

Hard Times Hit Grapplers.

But lately Lewis has fallen into hard times in the grappling game. He lost his title to Sonnenberg, and in many "return matches" Sonnenberg has consistently batted Lewis out of the picture.So Lewis, according to news accounts, thought of the old time publicity gag and challenged Young Stribling to meet him in a mixed match. Also according to news acounts, Stribling accepted.

Sometime in the future, perhaps the near future, Stribling may meet Lewis in a free-for-all battle, nothing barred. The only hitch is finding a place where such a bout can be pulled off, outside a Mexican bull ring. It's doubtful it would draw a crowd, because, if on the level, such a match probably wouldn't last more than half a minute or so. And if it were only "another of those things" it wouldn't even be funny.

Stribling Deserves Credit.

But suppose that Stribling and Lewis do meet in a mixed match, boxing vs. wrestling. In the first place, there never was a wrestler who could take a punch on the chin. Wrestling develops thick, stiff necks that don't break the shock of a blow by giving with it. And nobody denies that when Stribling feels sure he can beat the other guy to the punch he's one of the best sockers in the game.

He socked that big Carnera a couple times in London and Paris; sat him down hard, like a ton of bricks, at least twice. Anybody who can clip Carnera and drop him flat on the seat of his pants can hit. Sharkey knew Stribling could hit. That's one of the main reasons why last winter's event at Miami was a bust. Both were trying to win on points.

Good With Either Paw.

Take Willie Stribling's best right hand sock, or left hand sock, for instance, and let it collide with Lewis' chin, and Lewis would hit the canvas so hard he'd bounce all the resin into the air.

Of course Lewis might not stand up to be socked. He might take a wrestler's privilege of going to the mat, and come in at Stribling like a monkey, on all fours, which would keep him below the most effective hitting range. Probably his first attack would be a diving tackle for Strib's knees. He'd figure on staying below hitting range and going for Strib's legs. But he might do a lot of diving around and floundering on the floor. Young Stribling isn't slow on his feet and it's doubtful that any fat wrestler could catch him if he really wanted to keep away.

Has Plenty of Nerve.

And then there's another possibility. Stribling may turn out to be a better wrestler than Lewis. What a kick that would be. He surely knows and uses all the wrestling tricks that can be used without going to the mat. And he's a strong guy. They brought him up in a circus, didn't they?

If Stribling meets Lewis, and is thrown with a wrestling hold, nobody will be much excited about it. But if he meets Lewis and pastes Lewis on the chops and flattens him for the count it will be great ballyhoo for the King of the Canebrakes. We'd have to hand it to him for having plenty of nerve, in a way. You couldn't drag Jack Sharkey, or any of the other title-chasers, for that matter, into any such fool proposition. They wouldn't consider it dignified, with the chance of being downed and sat upon and laughed at.

I don't know but that Stribling, by his showing against the giant Carnera in England and France, has shoved himself back ito the limelight as a championship "contender." If there is any rush by Sharkey, Schmeling, or the others, to fight Carnera, it hasn't been given out for publication. They all seem contented to say that Carnera is "a big bum" and let it go at that, without trying to prove the truth of their statement. And none of them is so very anxious to fight Stribling either. Perhaps because he is such an expert wrestler—perhaps becausecause he hits too hard.

BOBBY JONES SAYS

BY BOBBY JONES.

Present Open Champion.

THE fact that this year the Walker cup match will be played over the Royal St. George's links at Sandwich recalls the instructive, though not wholly agreeable, day our men spent there in 1926. A competitive golfer has to put up with all sorts of weather and has to ride it through, for to take shelter during a medal round means instant disqualification.

Through 14 years of tournament play I have seen at least my share, but I have never seen anything even remotely approaching that day at Sandwich while playing for the St. George's Gold Vase. To the American players, a dragon breathing fire, or anything else bearing a promise of warmth, would have been a welcome sight.

I remember my thoughts on awaking that morning and looking out from my window over a very turbulent English channel and hearing the wind whistling under the sash of the window. I had heard of the boisterous weather of the channel coast, but somehow I had not pictured it in connection with golf. Now the connection was becoming entirely too close for comfort.

Under ordinary conditions, or rather I should say, under conditions which we Americans regard ar ordinary, St. George's is not an unusually difficult course. True, the first nine is tricky and deceiving and the serond nine is rather long, but, on the whole, scoring there is not a test of meticulous accuracy. But when the wind blows in true Sandwich fashion, the problem is something else entirely.

A PROBLEM TO STAND UP.

THERE were in the field this day all the members of the American team, all the members of the British team, and almost every other amateur of prominence in Great Britain. On a practical round the previous day, I had scored a 73 with little difficulty. Yet the fine field, 80 was the low score of the morning round and 78 of the afternoon, Major Charles Hezlett doing both and winnnig the medal.

I had always regarded with annoyance a wind of sufficient force to back up a tee shot 20 or 25 yards. Not only did the Sandwich glale blow the ball back at the player, but it made a problem of standing up long enough to hit the ball. The player was forced to lean against the wind in order to retain his balance, and during the swing he felt that the club would be wrenched from his hands. I recall, as an example of the increased difficulty of playing, that the Sahara hole, which we had all reached the day before with a drive and number three iron was played that day with a full drive, a shot up short of the vast bunker, a brassie across and a chip or run-up to the green.

A PUTT IN REVERSE.

ONE really amusing thing happened to one of our players—I think it was Jesse Guilford—whose approach to the ninth green had come to rest shakily upon the crest of a ridge which skirted the right edge of the putting surface. Jesse, preparing to putt, placed his putter on the turf behind his ball. The putter blade shut off the wind and the ball once it had started to roll, continued into the rough. The putter had then to be exchanged for a mashie-niblick, a necessity which added not a bit to Jesse's enjoyment of the day.

Bobby Jones in golfing mode and mood. He has mapped out a strenuous golfing career this year.

A moderate wind provides a fine test of skill. The player who best controls his shots and displays the most resourcefulness in overcoming the difficulties opposed by the elements, in wind-play demonstrates a clean-cut superiority.

But I am not sure that the same thing is true when a real gale is blowing. It seems to me then that the real test is of temperament, rather than skill, the reward going to him who plods along unruffled and unexcited, refusing to become angry with himself or the results of his efforts.

The man who can appreciate that 80 is a good score under such conditions is far ahead of the ambitious one who attempts to subjudge the elements and return his low 70s score in spite of them.

MAX COMING TO BATTLE WINNER

Schmeling Agrees Be On Mark for June Fight In New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Max Schmeling has accepted terms to meet the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott match, the German heavyweight advised Commissioner William Muldoon of the New York state athletic commission by cablegram today.

Schmeling said he expected the fight to be held here late in June for the world heavyweight championship.

Tentative arrangements were completed several weeks ago for the winner of the Sharkey-Scott match to meet Schmeling under the promotion of Madison Square Garden for the benefit of the Hearst Milk fund at the Polo grounds June 26.

Because of the charity angle, Schmeling is expected to be reinstated by the New York commission when he applies for a license.

Schmeling was suspended last summer when he failed to meet Scott at Ebbets field, according to terms of a contract made by his former manager Arthur Bulow.

Chief Topic at Miami.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Whether Phil Scott or Jack Sharkey holds the advantage in training condition for their fight here Feb. 27 was an increasingly important topic of conversation today.

An official report on the condition of the Briton was considerably less favorable than for Sharkey, but Jimmy Johnston, Scott's trainer was not worried.

Johnston believes Sharkey is too finely drawn too far in advance of the scrap and as for his own man, said:

"You can rest assured that four or five days before the fight Phil will be in more perfect condition than Sharkey."

More Soft For Primo.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Primo Carnera, whose size has made him famous in boxing circles, arrived here late today and retired with his entourage to a suite of 11 rooms in the city's est hotel. He will fight John Erickson, known as "Man Mountain," here Monday night. The "Man Mountain," who weighs only 198 pounds, slipped into town todav unnoticed while his opponent with 90 pounds advantage, was heralded by a large crowd that delayed the transport of his eight trunks to his hotel.

MULE SHOE WORKS WHEN AGGIES WIN

MANHATTAN, Kas., Feb. 15—Missouri mlue shoes are good luck only when used against Missourians.

Such is the belief of A. H. Freeman, former captain of the Kansas Aggie football squad and member of the basketball squad.

Last fall, after the Kansas State team had defeated Missouri, 7 to 6, in football, Freeman picked up a small mule shoe from the Missouri stadium field and brought it back to Manhattan with him.

When the Aggies played Kansas university here February 5, the shoe was brought to the sidelines, but failed to do its duty and the university won by three points. Against Missouri here Friday, the shoe was again on deck, and this time it functioned perfectly.

Freeman will be one of the Aggie baseball pitchers this spring and the shoe is going right along with him when he visits Tigerland.

North Carolina's basketball five has plenty of height. "Punny" Harper, center, is 6 feet 6 inches; Sandy Dameron, center and forward, is 6 feet 5 and three other regulars stand over six feet.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15—The glooms held forth today in the training camp of Phil Scott, the English heavyweight, while joy unconfined ran riot at the headquarters of Jack Sharkey of Boston. For officials of the local boxing commission, after examining the two heavyweights for their battle here Feb. 27, declared the Bostonian was in splendid condition and Scott far from being in "the pink."

The medicos said Sharkey was in the best condition exhibited by any boxer they ever examined.

"Soft in the body, sluggish in blood pressure, lacking proper coordination of mind and muscle and poor chest expansion with lung power weaker than it should be," read the report on the Briton.

Jimmy Johnston, director of the English heavyweight, explained Scott's condition by saying it was just what he had strived for, stating he had had the Briton working out only moderately so that he would gradually acclimate himself.

"You may rest assured that four or five days before the fight Phil will be in better trim than Sharkey, who now is down to fighting weight and must lay off workouts to avoid going stale," Johnston said.

SPRAGUE-MARTEL WINS FROM EAGLE

EAGLE, Neb., Feb. 15—Coach K. A. Carver's Sprague-Martel basket tossers pulled ahead of Eagle in the last minutes of play last night, 18-14. Eagle led 12-7 at half time.

Wendelin of Sprague-Martel gave an exhibition of fine all-around play, scoring eight points. Grage scored the winning basket, while Winkler set the pace for Eagle. Sprague-Martel plays Hickman at Martel next Friday. Score:

American league clubs will look over several young catchers at the training camps in March. This is particularly true of Detroit, which is retaining Bill Hargrave, Bubbles' younger brother, and Mervyn Shea on its roster and adding Hayworth, recalled from Toledo, Steinecke, purchased from Seattle and Rensa, purchased from Toronto.

Boston has recalled Asbjornson and Connolly from Pittsfield and is trying out Orace Powers, a free agent. Asby was one of the leading batters in the Eastern league, while Connolly batted but .262 in 108 games.

Cleveland has bought Bud Frank from Terre Haute, where he caught 63 games in '29. New York has recalled Arndt Jorgens from Jersey City and purchased W. J. Karlon from the Springfield club of the Eastern league, in addition to having purchased Bubbles Hargrave, capable veteran, from St. Paul.

St. Louis has added no young receivers, but has purchased Hungling, a veteran from Buffalo. The only rookie catcher on the Philadelphia roster is Clay Mattox, grabbed right off the Virginia Poly campus. The Washington club has acquired no new catcher. Neither has Chicago, but the White Sox may buy a backstop from one of the leading double-A league clubs.

Bill Rogell, who goes to the Detroit Americans from St. Paul, earned the reputation last season of being one of the best hustlers ever in a Saint uniform. He was married shortly after the season started and proceeded to take a different slant on the game than he had when with the Red Sox in 1927 and '28. Many A. A. writers considered him the best all-around infielder in the circuit.

Ernie Smith, veteran minor league shortstop that the White Sox purchased from Birmingham, accepted close to six chances in each of his 156 games, last season, having 392 putouts and 500 assists. He also batted over .300.

The New York Yankees have sold sold Infielder Julian Wera to Jersey City this time on an outright release as the brilliant little fellow had been put out on option twice. Wera is a competent infielder and good hitter.

Good throwing arms are possessed by several of the outfield recruits to be tried out by American league clubs this year. Oliver of Little Rock, selected by the Athletics, tossed out 19 men, the same number killed off by Outfielder Powers of New Orleans, purchased by Cleveland Spencer Harris of Minneapolis, to be tried by Detroit, has 20 assists, while Allen Cooke of the Saints, who goes to the Yankees, threw out 17 men.

ALL STEAMED UP OVER RING JOUST

San Francisco Ready To Turn Out Enmasse to See Feb. 22 Fight.

BY GEORGE D. CRISSEY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—Fighters usually change their names for box office purposes, but just now the true names of Jackie Finkelstein, known as Jackie Fields, and Raeffaela Giorranna, known as Young Corbett III, are due to pay real dividends.

Fields, the welterweight champion, and Corbett, idol of Columbus avenue, San Francisco, fight a 10-round non-titular bout here Washington's birthday and it is predicted that Recreation park will be jammed to its capacity. The fight is what promoters call a "natural."

Appeals to Foreign Born.

It is estimated San Francisco has 150,000 Italians in the Columbus avenue and North Beach districts and it is likely plenty of Bank of Italy securities will be wagered on the Young Corbett, the Italian youth from Fresno, who is a great favorite with local Italians.

Persons of Jewish descent furnish another large block of San Francisco's cosmopolitan population, the estimated figure being 100,000.

The bout has a direct appeal to two races which are representative of a quarter of a million persons. That alone assures the financial success of the fight.

Battlers In Training.

Fields is training at the Royal Athletic club and his daily performances draw large throngs. He appeared to be in excellent condition today, weighing 149 pounds.

Corbett selected South San Francisco, an industrial town just outside San Francisco, as his training place. He plans to enter the ring at 148 pounds.

Because of a reputation for hitting harder, Fields is a favorite in betting, but Corbett, a left-hander, has a tricky and awkward "for the other fellow" style of boxing.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN

by "Columbus"

AT various times during the winter months we have been indebted to the state of Maine for readable items and now we have another. Harriet Silk, 2:28¼, by Bingen Silk, 3, 2:07¼, is the fastest yearling trotter bred in Nebraska and has been so given in our tables of statistics.

That mare is owned by the well known Maine horseman Frank Fox, breeder, owner and race driver. A promising young trotter in the Fox stable by Guy Silver, 3, 2:14¾, son of Guy Axworthy, 2:08¾, is out of Harriet Silk, and that mare will foal shortly to the same stallion.

RED HERR, p., 2:03¼, by Lewis Herr, p., 2:17¼, was destroyed last summer after breaking a leg while running in a pasture near Winfield, Kan., home of his owner, R. C. Johnson. Red Herr is one of the few horses pacing a mile in 2:07¼ at Lincoln, somethig he did in 1926, when he won so easily from Airy B., p., 2:07¼, and other good pacers.

Readers of The Star recalling that race have a mental picture of the ease with which Red Herr came from behind at the three-quarter pole to win in a jog from Airy B. It was evident that afternoon that the big pacing gelding might easily have paced a mile in 2:06, had it been necessary.

THE writer has watched all the fast pacers of the past 30 years racing at Kansas and Nebraska meetings and can only recall one mile appearing so easy as the one in 2:07¼ paced at Lincoln by Red Herr, and that mile was paced at Hutchinson, Kan., by Dick Allen, 2:07¼, which gained his best record at the time referred to.

Dick Allen raced at Lincoln in 1907, winning in straight heats and pacing his miles in 2:11, 2:09¼ and 2:08½, the latter the track record at the time in a race.

In his race at Hutchinson, 1909, Dick Allen was racing against Beaut Kennedy, 2:08¼, and Kewanee Riley, 2:08, and in the heat we are thinking of was trailing that pair of fast pacers when the three-quarter pole was reached, when his driver pulled Dick to the outside and that Dakota-bred gelding floated by his opponents as though they were tied to a post, finishing the mile at his ease with the time 2:07¼.

BINGEN WATTS, 2:09, fastest trotter sired by Bingen Silk, 3, 2:07¼, is owned at Bismarck, N. D., by Mrs. C. K. Bryan, secretary-manager of the fair and racing association at that progressive town.

If Bingen Watts stands training he will be raced at early meetings held in North Dakota, where the first meetings in the entire west are held each year. And isn't that strange? Naturally one would expect harness racing to start each season at some southern town.

The very opposite condition is found. Racing in the extreme northern sections in early summer and racing at extreme southern towns in the late fall.

NEBRASKA trainers racing through the Kansas and Oklahoma circuit of 1930 may find themselves contesting for money at Wichita after candle light, as the indications now point to night racing over the half-mile track located on the Stearns farm, north of Wichita.

Late last fall Miami, Okla., tried harness racing by electric light and the plan proved so successful that Wichita may try it in July.

Quite a number of Nebraska trotters and pacers have been raced each season at Kansas meetings and there appears to be no reason why that custom should not prevail in the future, as purses are more valuable than at Nebraska meetings, if one omits the state fair meeting in Lincoln.

ROY DAVIS, formerly of Missouri and favorably known to older patrons of the harness horse in Nebraska, has operated a high-class riding academy at various places in California several years, first at Oakland and during more recent times in Beverly Hills, near Los Angeles.

Mr. Davis owned, trained and raced trotters, as well as pacers, while living in Missouri and after moving to California. He still owns a few trotters, among them one that Arlie Frost had at Omaha, as a yearling, in 1925, when that Wisconsin trainer raced at the Ak-Sar-Ben meeting that season.

That trotter, now a six-year-old, will be raced at California meetings this season and with him the Nebraska-bred pacing mare Cecil Bingen, by Gold Bingen, 2:21¼, dam by Ivan The Great, 3, 2:14¼. This mare, a product of Midway Farm, Kearney, is six years old and accredited with extreme speed and perfect manners. The latter we can easily understand as so many of the Gold Bingens were, and still are — horses possessing excellent manners. And by the way that stallion was recently sold by Mrs. E. D. Gould, Kearney, to John Skeen, Kenesaw, Neb. We wish he might have gone to some established breeding farm, as he is a high-class sire fo racing speed.

THE Horse Review Futurity Stake, first raced for in 1894, is the oldest event of its kind in operation in this country. During the 36 years since that stake was raced, the sum of $415,635 has been distributed among breeders and owners of trotters and pacers, with the west gaining its share.

As might be expected Midway Farm, Kearney, furnished a larger number of money winners than any other establishment or breeder in this state. The largest individual money winner among Nebraska-bred colts was Alta Axworthy, bred by A. L. Thomas, Benson, winner of the two-year-old trotting division in 1903 and the three-year-old trotting division in 1904, something that no other western-bred colt or filly has ever done. The net winnings of Alta Axworthy amounted to $5,750.

Other Nebraska owners sharing in the stake money given by The Horse Review are C. D. Bell, Omaha, owner of Gold King; L. O. Johnston, Lincoln, owner of Billy Johnston, and L. C. Kinney, Bushnell, owner of Impetuous Palmer.

E. D. GOULD, Kearney, mentioned previously, won a portion of the Review Stake money with Bingen Silk, Daisy Todd, Lady South, Flower Forbes, Gold Worthy, Goldie King, Al Maxey, Gold King and Kinney Silk.

Other western breeders, or owners that may be named as winners of some portion of the money offered in the stake referred to are J. C. Adams, Phoenix, Ariz.; E. T. Barnette, Pasadena, Calif.; H. H. Budget, Long Prairie, Minn.; W. A. Clark, Butte, Mont.; Marcus Daly, Hamilton, Mont.; G. H. Estabrook, Denver, Colo.; Henry Exall, Dallas, Tex.; N. Harper, Numa, Ia.; H. E. Hopper, Indianola, Ia.; Morris Jones, Red Oak, Ia.; Col. John Donovan, St. Joseph, Mo.; Frank Loomis, Minneapolis, Minn.; George Loomis, Minneapolis, Minn.; J. McCollister, Lone Tree, Ia.; W. H. L. McCourtie, Dallas, Tex.; E. J. Mason, Oskaloosa, Ia.; J. R. Mathews, St. Louis, Mo.; F. C. Niles, Kansas City, Mo.; O'Brien & Wernert, Louisiana, Mo.; Gov. Leland Stanford, Palo Alto, Calif.; Cliff Rose, Creston, Ia.; W. L. Rossing, Bode, Ia.; J. K. D. Shaffer, Drumright, Okla.; O. H. Sholes, Holyoke, Colo.; S. Simpson, Minneapolis, Minn.; Dr. W. M. Trotter, Maxwell, Ia.; F. L. Wacholz, Forest City, Ia.; J. D. Welsh, Kansas City, Mo., and R. B. Whiteside, Duluth, Minn.

THE fact that not a dollar of the Review Stake money ever went to a Kansas breeder or owner is something not easily understood, especially by readers of The Star. The explanation is that for some unknown reason Kansas breeders have never patronized the stake as they should, or might. And, again, those who did never developed the speed of the colts named.

All states adjoining Kansas were benefitted to some extent by the distribution of the Review money and, considering the west as a unit, that section did very well, 10 states sharing in the division of money.

It must be remembered that a large majority of the great breeding establishments of America are located east of the Mississippi river, and that gave the east a decided advantage when the Review Stakes were raced. Ten states, all situated east of the Mississippi river, led Nebraska in way of winnings, with New York heading the list with $82,208.

That may be explained easily when one considers the amount of wealth invested by New York owners in trotters and pacers, and their ability to purchase high-class material, as well as race them. More winners were bred in Kentucky than in any other state, with Pennsylvania second.

LIKE all other true Futurity Stakes, the one promoted by the Horse Review is open only to mares already with foal. The last Review Futurity, No. 37, is for mares due to foal in 1930 and the first nomination made by a Nebraska owner comes from J. M. Woita, Weston, owner of that good three-year-old trotter of 1929, Lee F. J., 2:10¼, by Frisco June, p., 2:01¼, dam Shirley Harvester, by The Harvester, 2:01.

Mr. Woita's nomination is Dorothy Perkins, by McKinney Boy, which is heavy with foal to Arion Guy, 1:59½. Mr. Woita's mare is dam of Shirley Harvester, 2, 2:09¾, a trotting filly owned and raced in 1927, by Warren Dennis, David City, and sold that winter to the same party to whom he recently sold Scott Abbe, 2, 2:12 pacing. There are two mares named Shirley Harvester, by The Harvester, but only one has a record, the other being owned by Mr. Woita.

THIS is as good an opportunity as we will have to introduce a letter written by By Shively, training at Littleton, Colo., for the Middlefield Farm. By was a former York boy, going from that place to the Spanish-American war with the Nebraska regiment that saw service in the Philippines.

"I was reading in a Lincoln Star something you wrote about colt racing. Very few colts, western-bred I mean, have raced hard at two and three years old and matured into good aged horses. I can think of only two and they are Betty Ann Maxey and Chancellor Cigar, the former bred in Nebraska, the latter in Kansas.

"Judge Maxey will never sire another Betty Ann Maxey, in my judgment, and why? It would require a lot of space to give my reasons. I was disappointed in several Judge Maxeys, notably Albia Maxey, 2:07¼; Golden Fred, 2:07¼, and Al Maxey, 2:10¼, a trio of pacers that flashed the first year raced but were not so much in later years. My experience with the Maxeys is that when you get them strung out, or in a tight place, they get big-gaited and are easily beaten. Betty Ann Maxey was a great race trotter."

MART DORAN of Lincoln, whose father was one of the early horse-shoers of Beatrice, writes as follows concerning shoers in Lincoln:

"It is not so many years ago that we had a lot of horse-shoers in Lincoln and now there are only three shops where horses are shod. Thirty years ago I recall there were 23 shops in Lincoln where horses were shod daily and in some shops several men worked. I believe my father was as good a shoer as ever lived in this state. There are still good shoers to be found and among them are Dave Baker, known to Lincoln owners, as he has operated a shop at times out at the state fair grounds; Henry Terbush, located most of the time at Smithville, Mo.; Charley Wilbourn, shoeing for Longview Farm and Walt Brittenfield, near Kansas City, Mo., and George Covington, whose home is in Kansas City and who shoes mostly runners. Curley Holmes and Dick Nash, both dead, were good shoers, and both are known to Lincoln horsemen."

MR. DORAN'S letter reminds us that a handsome case, filled with horse shoes, is owned by the University of Nebraska. Those shoes were turned, a term used to designate horse shoes made by hand, by Mr. Doran when he was 20 years old. The ordinary horse shoes are factory made and so much cheaper than hand-turned shoes, that farmers and others using heavy horses, use them.

Saddle horses, as well as runners, pacers and trotters, require shoes made to fit each foot, as well as to meet the requirements of the trainer or owner. For that reason, expert shoers (or farriers, as the English always call them) are in demand and command good wages. It is an interesting sight to stand by and watch an expert farrier turn a shoe out of a slender bar of steel. Not only is it interesting, but fascinating to a true friend of the horse.

The shoeing shop at a great race meeting is a gathering place for men deeply interested in the horse of pleasure and the writer has passed many a pleasant and instructive hour watching the farrier at his work.

range to regain the advantage and baskets by Fiser and Hokuf had Nebraska away 15-10 when the first hal fended.

Maclay's basket opened the second half. Missouri then developed a hot streak and, in less than three minutes was only one point behind with a 16-17 score.

The two teams then traded baskets until with 10 minutes to play Nebraska's lead was only 24-22. Grace, Witte and Fisher pushed the total to 34-24, a lead which stood up under a sensational long range barrage flashed by Missouri and which threatened to turn the tables.

Welsh and Baker.

Welsh and Baker were the driving rods of the Missouri play, the former providing the scoring punch and the latter controlling the tip and working effectively at taking the ball off the Nebraska backboard.

The game, itself, was one of the most interesting of the Nebraska home season, each team handling the ball in smooth fashion, while the work of the officials—John Wuif and V. S. Egan—was the best seen on the Nebraska court this year. Score:

Debaets-Beckman Win Six-Day Grind

CHICAGO, Feb. 15—(U. P.)—The battle Gerald Debaets and Tony Beckman staged for first place in the six-day bicycle race at the Chicago stadium gave them a well earned victory tonight. They won the race on points, being tied for first at the finish with Alfonso Succhetti and Paul Brocardo, the Italian-French pair.

When the six days of pedaling had finally ended, shortly after 11 p. m., the two leading teams had marked up 2,332, miles and nine laps, but Debaets and Beckman were credited with 580 points against the 165 for the second place teams.

GIANT PILOT IN SIGHT OF RECORD

Muggsy In Line Lose His Sixth Straight Shot At Pennant.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(I. N. S.)—The New York Giants, or that fragment thereof which is on speaking terms with the management, was rolling onward today toward San Antonio, where they will see what can be done toward helping John McGraw break another record. The Giants and their officials are always helping John do something he doesn't care to do. Provided they succeed this time, the record he will break will be strictly his own. He must win the 1930 pennant in the National league or suffer the ignominy of being out of first money for six successive seasons, a McGraw record. As to that, everybody seems to fear the worst.

Gather As They Roll.

Anyhow, the boys are on their way and, like a snowball, they are gathering fragments as they roll. They don't need fragments. They need several complete parts. Indeed, the suspicion lingers that the Giants feel another of those impulsive trades coming on, whereby a star ball player is exchanged for a man who finally makes good in the International league.

There is no real reason for believing that such is the case, but, then, there was no real reason for believing that Grimes would be traded for Vic Aldridge. That was a superb transaction.

Perhaps Cooking a Trade.

It was supposed to have been made over McGraw's enraged head, so maybe the alleged chief in the alleged "kitchen cabinet" is cooking another one. The man usually blamed for the Grimes-Aldridge deal is Secretary Jim Tierney, it being noteworthy that James also was held to be at fault when the club neglected to exercise an option on Hack Wilson, who is the centerfielder McGraw has been looking for ever since. Anyhow, it is pleasant to note that the night watchman at the Polo grounds never was seriously involved in either of these charges.

Deals That Were Comical.

However, it is a fact, not fancy, that somebody is almost feloniously to blame for a lot of comical deals that have been made by the Giants during recent years. McCray, for example, assumed responsibility for the Hornsby deal for Hogan and Welsh, but everybody believed that, in so doing, he simply was "playing the game." It was too funny for one man to have put over all by himself, anyhow. The deal was made and there was no use bleating about it, so John didn't.

He assumed the onus for this one, but didn't have to with the O'Doul-Leach trade of last year. There really wasn't any onus attached to this because nobody could foresee that one good ball player would become great overnight, while, as suddenly, another would become very ordinary.

Had Fresco Once.

The fact that the club has needed a second baseman and that Fresco Thompson was its property for a couple of hours in 1927 also can be written off as an act of destiny.

But, in the face of this magnificent record, will the club consider a trade now? Doubtless it would consider anything that would rid it, with profit, of the pestiferous presence of Mr. Freddy Lindstrom. This fretful young man was supposed to have entered a holdout pact or conspiracy with Travis Jackson and Bill Terry, but the latter signed yesterday, which is a very favorable circumstance. It leaves only three places open in the infield.

Demands Real Money.

Lindstrom, they say, wants $20,000 and my experience teaches that this must be true. I have heard of men before who wanted $20,000. Anyhow, they would trade him in a minute if they could get what they want, the only difficulty being that the man that they want hasn't been playing third base since the days of Jimmy Collins.

So the Giants are rolling onward today and where they are finally going no one knows. Doubtless McGraw will make the supreme effort of his life to preserve his record intact, but, then, I seem to recall "supreme efforts" being made by McGraw ever since 1924. Somehow, the man who once won practically all of the time can't stop losing under a regime that has become barely tolerable to him.

(Special Equipment Extra)

LEADS all low-priced sixes in performance and value

In tested quality, in the smartness and individuality of its design, in speed and pick-up, in luxurious comfort—the new Chrysler "66," priced at $995 and upwards, definitely leads all low-priced sixes in every phase of performance and in value.

The advanced character of its engineering is evidenced by its modern 75-horsepower engine with counter-weighted 7-bearing crankshaft, Invar Strut pistons, impulse neutralizer, mechanical fuel pump instead of a vacuum tank, rubber engine mountings, and numerous other typically Chrysler engineering features.

A new riding ease is achieved through an entirely new type of rubber spring shackle, noiseless and never requiring lubrication. Another exceptional asset is the safety of the famous Chrysler internal-expanding four-wheel hydraulic brakes.

Note, too, its French-type roof and steel quarter panels at sides and rear—characteristics of the latest trend in finest coach work. Point after point, feature after feature—emphasize conclusively the fact that the new Chrysler "66" is the major value of all the lower-priced sixes. Demonstration and comparisons furnish the proof.

Figures Show Ruth Worth Every Cent He Asks of Yankees

Ruppert Outfit Reaps Fat Profit From Home Runs Babe Has Socked

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—And now pranceth up Ed Barrow, sometimes called "The Brains of the Yankees," who deposeth and sayeth, and likewise submits figgers to prove that, whereas and wherefore G. Herman Ruth has done much for baseball, the Yankees have done plenty for G. Herman.

"In a 10-year period," burst forth Ed, "the Yankees have paid to Ruth a sum beyond $500,000, ladies and gents—and that's money in Asia, Africa, and Brooklyn, as well as the United States.

Simple Arithmetic.

"The slightest nudge of a pencil against paper, plus use of the simplest form of arithmetic known as division, will prove to your astonished optics that Ruth has averaged close to $55,000 per year while a member of the Yankees, which is one of the reasons why Colonel Jacob Ruppert, my boss, may he ever be right—but, right or wrong, my boss—is averse to paying the $85,000 stipend demanded recently by Ruth. We have, as I view it, done quite right by our little Nell—I mean G. Herman."

The immediate reaction to the oratory of Ed Barrow, in person, and not a talkie, is to mutter:

That Other Side.

"Odds bodkins, the gent is right. Why, the Yanks have indeed paid fabulous money to Ruth! How does that bloke, already recipient of more than half a million, manage to get snooty, over a new offer of $75,000. Why, he's—yes, sir, he is—an ingrate!"

But in view of the fact that the human system can have as many contrary reactions as soldiers had cooties during the war, and because there are always two sides to almost everything but a triangle, then and therefore, be it:

Resolved, that we gaze at what G. Herman has done for baseball in general and the Yankees in particular, while the Yankees were doing so prettily for him.

What the Figures Show.

"G. Herman has figured in at least 1,300 games for the Ruppertites. With him, the Yankees won six pennants. Without him, they might not have snared so much as one."

The difference between a flag winner and an also-ran is no less than 300,000 paid admissions annually. It is more than that. But we'll be conservative about this and call it a mere 300,000 per year or 1,800,000 for the six bright and years of bunting raising by the Yankees.

At $1 per head that meant an intake of $1,800,000, of which the Yankees got at least $1,100,000,

That Irrestiible Appeal.

Moving from there one finds that Ruth alone because of his irresistible box office appeal, drew at least 100,000 more customers to the parks each year, pennant or not than the Yanks would have snared without him. And 100,000 a year for 10 years is a bare 1,000,000 customers and likewise a mere $1,000,000, of which the Yankees kept about $650,000,

Thus the presence of Ruth in a Yankee uniform through 10 years grossed the Yankees about $1,750,000 more than would have happened if G. Herman had become a pretzel maker or a cheese sampler, Indebted to Ruth.

The Yanks took their extra $1,750,000—the figures are low—and and they gave G. Herman $500,000 or threabouts and thus had a net profit of $1,250,000, due solely to the signs of the Zodiac which caused Ruth to burst forth with home runs in behalf of Colonel JJacob Ruppert and the various Yankee et ceteras.

In conclusion, it can be said that (even though the saying of it may cause Ed Barrow to snap at his finger nails), that the Yankees could pay G. Horman $85,000 until 1945 A. D. and still remember G. Herman as a benefactor, even though he never again hit anything, but a tobaggan or an umpire's scout!

FIGHTER BANNED IN GOPHER STATE

VonPorat Suspended For Running Out of Bout With Snyder.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 15—(UP)—Otto Von Porat, Norwegian contender for the heavyweight boxing crown, today was suspended in 32 states belonging to the National Boxing association.

The Minnesota boxing commission took the action when Von Porat asked a second postponement of his bout with Angus Snyder of Wichita, Kas., which was scheduled for Tuesday night. The board refused to grant the second request and when Von Porat would not appear the commissioners suspended him. Dr. Andrew Sverson, chairman of the commission, announced the suspension.

Von Porat had signed a contract to meet Snyder, but informed Jerk Doran, promoter. Friday night that he could not fill the engagement. The Norwegian heavyweight said his hands are not in shape to meet such a strong opponent.

Accused of Running Out.

"We believe Von Porat ran out on the match," Dr. Sverson said. "Snyder has been recognized as a formidable fighter in his workouts here and Von Porat must have heard of it."

The Minnesota members said they would ask the Illinois boxing commission at Chicago to furnish X-rays of Von Porat's hands as evidence in the case.

Duke Horn, California heavyweight, was substituted for Von Porat to meet Snyder.

An ancient rivalry between the cities of Washington and Baltimore will be revived this spring by three ball games between the Orioles and Senators, one in Chattanooga and one each in Baltimore and Washington.

In 37 years of football Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn has won 146 games, lost 85 and tied 16.

Lexington Minute Men slated to appear on McCook maples. McCook, the runner-up, engages North Platte this week, while Gothenburg plays at Holdrege.

The Republican Valley league is due for a shakeup, with Alma meeting Franklin and Bloomington. Minden entertains Bloomington in the other league game.

Wymore plays Pawnee City and Beatrice in the southeast features, while Crete appears at Fairbury.

Imperial vs. Venango.

The Imperial-Venango game is the big noise in the southwest. Each team is undefeated. Chappell plays at Lodgepole and Sidney at Potter in South Platte Valley region headliners.

In the western conference, Minatare meets Mitchell, Gering goes to Alliance, Bridgeport to Sidney and Scottsbluff to Bayard. Crawford will take another try at stopping Chadron in the Northwest conference. Chadron appears to have the title in its pocket.

Dannebrog, Loup Valley leaders, meet Wood River and Loup City. The Arnold-Broken Bow game on the latter's court should be a thriller. Arnold pulled the previous game out of the fire in the last few minutes of play.

Leigh will try its hand at stopping Creston, one of the leaders in the northeast section. West Point at Norfolk and Wakefield at Wayne are other important contests.

In the southern league, Nelson is at Harvard and Geneva at Superior in the only conference contests.

Several county tournaments are on the books for this weekend. Mead will enter the Saundres county tournament a favorite. Clay Center and Harvard have a slight edge in the Clay county classic and Dawson has the best record of the Little Ten teams in the Richardson county loop. Games this week:

Brass Tacks

ability to pay, and the odds are heavy that he will fail to click.

PRESIDENT COFFMAN'S case is not hard to diagnose. He has, I fear, the slant of numerous other university prexies who hold a secret aversion for the idea that a first-class football coach is entitled to a first-class salary.

Having that grudge, they generally resort to the experiment of engaging a young coach and then salving the public by explaining that the new mentor will "grow up" and eventually prove himself equal to the demands and responsibilities of his position.

The plan works out occasionally, but as a general proposition it fails, especially at schools as prominent, educationally and athletically, as Minnesota. In fact, the history book is well splattered with instances in which this school or that has paid dearly in sadness for its folly in selecting one of those untried coaches who surely was destined to "grow up" on and with his job.

THE esteemed president of Minnesota U., I suspect, would disdain advice from a source as base and vulgar as a scrivener for the public prints. Nevertheless, even a university president is not so exalted as to be superior to all suggestions. He doesn't seem to realize it now, but some day in the future he may get so well acquainted with the special problems arising from college athletics as to recognize the truth of the following assertion:

A big league coaching position should be filled by a coach of tested ability; a coach of character, as competent to build upstanding, square-shooting young men as to drill them in his sport; a coach so worthy that the university which engages him deems it a privilege to pay him handsomely for his services.

The smaller colleges, lacking the financial resources of the larger schools, may well be asked to develop the young coaches and then pass them along to the broader field in the institutions of first rank. That is the custom in the sphere of commerce and industry; it should and might well be the accepted rule in college athletics.

INFORMATION is oozing out of the Rocky Mountain conference region which indicates that John "Choppy" Rhodes, varsity baseball coach and freshman football mentor at the University of Nebraska, may be having opposition in his ambition to land the head coachship at the University of Wyoming.

Poss Parsons, sports editor of the Denver Post, has taken up the cudgels against the choice of Rhodes and urges the Laramie school to investigate the desirability of other candidates. Mr. Parsons fathers the following comment in the Post:

"It seems that Wyoming U. in its search for a new athletic director and football coach hasn't considered many of the applicants. John (Choppy) Rhodes high-pressured the athletic officials into all but signing him last week, when he was on the ground at Laramie. The coach will be named Feb. 24, when the trustees hold their annual meeting. Of course, if Rhodes is the man they want, that is all there is to it. However, there are also many good men who have applied who should be given a little consideration. I know that 'Dutch' Bergman, who has been Spears' first assistant at Minnesota, inquired about the position. Bergman is a former Notre Dame star and an experienced coach. He, for one, should be investigated before the final contract is signed."

TO suggest that Editor Parsons is "jabbing" Rhodes surely doesn't miss the mark, as his remarks were published under the heading "Jabs" in the Denver newspaper. Speaking for myself, I trust his "jab" is successful in its purpose and that "Choppy" is not chosen.

Wyoming U., as a matter of fact, is a graveyard for coaches; in recent years it has had more changes of athletic mentors than any other school in its region.

Having seen "Choppy" win his spurs as a Cornhusker athlete of unusual ability, later developing into a capable coach at his alma mater, I wish that he might be spared the mistake of even giving serious consideration to the Wyoming vacancy.

If the Laramie authorities really prefer Bergman to Rhodes, let them have him. They would, in truth, be doing "Choppy" Rhodes a kindness by taking the former Notre Dame halfback. "Choppy" has been getting along famously as a member of the coaching staff at Nebraska, so a switch to Laramie, as I view it, would be equivalent to a demotion, rather than the promotion which undoubtedly will be coming to him in event he awaits the arrival of a genuine opportunity.

THE cunning manipulators of the heavyweight wrestling trust, meaning the clique headed by Billy Sandow and Strangler Lewis, are poised to pull another rabbit out of the professor's hat. After a weary public refused to put up with the racket which maintained the Strangler as the "champion," the Sandow crowd yanked the strings in its Punch and Judy show and boosted Big Munn to the throne.

Unfortunately for the trust, the sucker public failed to take Munn seriously, so a quick shift was made and, presto, Gus Sonnenberg was brought forward and soon established as the king of the bone-crushers.

The former Dartmouth guard and his butting act, described by the trust's press agents as the "flying tackle," held the spotlight for a time, but obnoxious challenges by Pesek, Londos and even Clarence Eklund induced a decision to develop another synthetic champion, wherefore one Everett Marshall, a Colorado youngster just out of college, has been shoved into the spotlight and soon will be hailed as Sonnenberg's successor.

BY way of explaining how the Sandow-Lewis trust performs its tricks, I republish a dispatch from Los Angeles to Collier's Eye of Chicago, as follows:

"LOS ANGELES—With Gus Sonnenberg on the shelf for at least three months on account of an operation, out of favor with the ruling powers in most of the states and keeping his backers in mortal fear somebody might cross him up anyway and take away what feeble claims he has to the synthetic title and with most of the other grapplers either being in bad or having lost their popular appeal, the gentry in control are about ready to spring a new champion.

"Everett Marshall, a young, athletic, fine-looking fellow who hails from a small town in Colorado and has a university background similar to that of Sonnenberg, built up by attendance at Denver university and the University of Iowa, is the champion-elect.

"He was brought to Seattle to wrestle and when Ed Lewis saw him he was so struck with him he arranged for him to be sent to Los Angeles, where he has been ever since. Now the same methods that built up others in the same string are being used with the apparent idea of springing him in the east soon as the new wrestling hope.

"MARSHALL has the ear marks of being a fair wrestler. He still is far from championship class, but already is considered by the fraternity as superior to Sonnenberg and he looks the part. He will weigh about 215 stripped, is about 5 ft. 10 in. tall and is around 23 years old. He has been going over big here and it looks as if he is being prepared to step in and take up the gauge, where Sonnenberg, Lewis, Plestina, Stecher and others have been compelled to drop it, because of official and public disfavor. None of the official mandates have been directed against Marshall, because he is just rising to the horizon.

"Considerable amusement has been aroused among the wrestling fraternity over the so-called elimination tournament at Kansas City, because all the wrestlers entered are from the same stable and it doesn't make any difference which one wins."

Rubber a Prominent Factor In Building Modern Automobiles

Although steel and wood still predominate in the construction of modern motor cars, rubber is gaining increasing prominence. Most car owners would be amazed at the varied uses manufacturers make of rubber in building motor cars, and all for the purpose of eliminating vibration, insuring quietness and providing for the comfort of the motorist.

Approximately 450 pieces of rubber, representing forty to sixty pounds of this material are used in every Chrysler car, exclusive of tires. Three years ago, only ten to fifteen pounds were used in the average automobile.

Among recent achievements are the use of rubber engine mountings to absorb engine impulses rubber spring mountings to insulate road shocks fabricated body shims to eliminate squeaks and rattles; special centifugal rings on impulse neutralizers; hydraulic brake parts; wire insulation and many others.

The importance of this material in automobile construction long ago caused Chrysler engineers to establish a rubber laboratory where a corps of trained men has adopted a rigid code of specifications covering all types of rubber.

New Willys Six Is Major Achievement Company's History

With leadership in the low priced six cylinder field assured by its 65-horsepower development and speed of 72 miles an hour, the new Willys six brings to this class a beauty and harmony of design comparable only to the car's remarkable performance, and is considered by observers as Willys-Overland's major achievement in twenty-two years of automobile manufacturing.

Trim radiators, long sweeping body lines and tailored rear quarters produce an effective streamlining that suggests the car's great speed, while rich new colors and luxurious upholstery and fitments complete an effect of quality unusual in a car selling under $1,000.

The DeLuxe sedan and roadster, which are equipped with wire wheels, gain added smartness by the mounting of the spare wheel in the right front fender well.

Closed models, the DeLuxe sedan, standard sedan, coach and two and four passenger coupe, appear in Leone blue of almost midnight hue, that is accentuated by the tatoosh cream striping and black moulding. The popular sagebrush or botanie green, is used for the four passenger roadster.

Western Storage Battery Company In New Location

The Western Storage Battery station commenced business Monday morning in its new modern quarters on the northwest corner of Seventeenth and N streets. Its previous location was at 1731 O street. J. Lawson Robb is owner and manager.

Work on the new station, a one-story brick structure, was begun last September. The company has been in business in Lincoln since 1914. There will be no change in personnel of his staff, Mr. Robb declared.

The Western Storage station is unique, Mr. Robb explains, in that, while most other battery stations were adding other lines of business, his station has maintained an exclusive battery business. He believes his to be the only exclusive battery station in Lincoln.

The Western Storage Battery company, distributors of Willard batteries, operates in seventy-four counties of Nebraska. It has warehouses and service stations also at Hastings and North Platte.

NASH CRANKSHAFT DESIGNED TO CUT CENTRIFUGAL LOAD

Nash engineers have taken advantage of the engineering principle that removal of a few pounds of material from the crankshaft of a motor car reduces the centrifugal load in the crankshaft by more than three tons to provide snappy acceleration and vibrationless running in the Twin Ignition Eight.

Here is how it is done. Conventional crankshaft design employs solid crankpins, although this solid construction does not affect the rigidity of the crankshaft, and despite the fact that carrying the weight of the crankpins is one of the initial tasks of the crankshaft. Nash crankshaft design, on the other hand, calls for hollow crankpins, and the removal of a few pounds of metal from the centers of the crankpins not only makes provision for vibrationless running at high speeds, but actually reduces the crankshaft's centrifugal load by more than three tons when the shaft is revolving at top speed. The force which is necessary to move this weight is now converted into useful power for driving the car. The elimination of this tremendous load naturally results in an unusual degree of smoothness and freedom from vibration. To make crankshaft steadiness absolutely certain, counterweights are

STRAIGHT EIGHT MODELS BRINGING MARMON IN FAVOR

The first complete offering of eights in all major price fields ever manufactured by any company has resulted in placing the Marmon in an unusually strong position this year.

Exhibits at all the important automobile shows this year stressed straight eight models. The Marmon company has been manufacturing exclusively eights since 1926 and has been perfecting its models over a long period of time.

This year the company is offering four lines of eights in four major fields. The company is showing for the first time two new lines of straight eights and two other lines of eights.

MARKET QUOTATIONS

GRAIN MARKETS.

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15

Grains closed lower today. Wheat was off 1@¾c, corn ⅛ to ¼c and oats ⅛ to 1¼c.

Wheat started easy and as much as 1¼c lower with scattered selling on weakness at Liverpool and Winnipeg. Short covering and buying on resting orders later steadied the market. There appeared to be liberal buying orders for May around $1.20. The cold wave over the winter wheat belt attracted little attention.

Liverpool closed 1⅞ o 1¾d lower and Winnipeg ¼ to ⅝c off. Weakness in Liverpool was attributed to increased offers of Argentine wheat and pressure of Manitobas. A message from Washington indicated wheat production in 43 countries in 1929 was 3,285,520,000 bushels or 14 per cent below the 3,810,791,000 bushels in 1928.

Corn was moderately lower early in sympathy with wheat and continued favorable weather conditions over the belt for movement to market. Commission houses and locals were on both sides of the market after the start. Oats also ruled lower with other grains.

Estimated carlot receipts were: Wheat 11, Corn 256 and oats 41.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15

The rise in industrial stocks and utilities was halted at the week-end by a heavy selling wave which engulfed the leaders in the recent advance. United States Steel was under selling pressure during most of the two-hour session and lost 3¼ points of its closing price of 186. For the week as a whole this stock showed a net gain of 3¼ points.

The oil stocks weer also under selling pressure as the result of the recent cuts in prices of crude oil and gasoline, standard and independent oils alike declining to the year's lowest levels. Though the week-end business and industrial reports painted a favorable picture of industrial recovery, the uninterrupted rise of the last two weeks had placed stocks in a position at which profit-taking was the next logical step.

Prices of practically all of the speculative leaders were lower at the close. Bethlehem Steel lost 1½ at 100½. American Can was down about a point at 142¼. General Electric down ⅞ at 75½, Eastman Kodak down 6¼ at 198½; Standard Oil of New Jersey down 1⅞ at 60; Atlantic Refining down 1¼ at 39¼.

Lima Locomotive, in the rail equipment group, closed about 3 points higher, at 47 and Vulvan Detinning, in the odd lots, rose 6½ to 125. Transactoins for the half-session totalled about 1,700,000 shares.

The stock market was unsettled at the week-end by increasing weakness in the one, the mercantile stocks and many of the specialties which have been leading the forward movement in the last week or two. Fox Film dropped off to 28 for a new low on the move as the result of uncertainty over the final outcome of the financial gangle, which in the next step remove before the stockholders for solution.

The majority of the Standard and independent oil shares flopped to the year's lowest price as the disruption in the industry caused by the recent oil price cut loomed larger and larger on the horizon. Flooding of the eastern markets with "cheap gas" is now being pridected in some sections of Wall street.

Standard Oil of New Jersey sold about a point lower, at 60¼; Standard of New York at 32; Sinclair broke 2 points to 23 for the first time this year; Barnsdall and Pure Oil were again scraping bottom and Texas Company, Pan-American and Standard of California were offered at the lowest prices of the year.

Against a flood of profit-taking and short selling sales which poured into the market, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and other leaders in yesterday's brilliant advance could make no headway. Steel fell back about 2 points to 187½, while American Can lost 2 points and Westinghouse 1½. The favorite utilities rose only fractionally before encountering stiff selling.

In contrast with the trend in railroad stocks, a few of the well known railroad equipment stocks were in good demand. Baldwin Locomotive, an old favorite of many a bull campaign, advanced to the year's highest price of 35½, up 2 points. Lima Locomotive was also active and strong.

International Tel. & Tel. was strong enough to carry its new rally above 70, up 1½, probably at the expense of the shorts. Gillette recovered 3 points by the same process and Simmons rallied moderately on short covering.

The week-end business reviews cited further improvement in national industry and a noted economist was quoted as saying that the business reaction had ceased—though the recovery in many important lines was not yet in sight. The European exchanges were again weak with French francs and British sterling at the low for the year. The Week-end cotton and grain markets were slightly reactionary.

Irregularity, with narrow price changes, featured the opening of the stock market today.

Steel stocks were steady, with Bethlehem up ½ at 102½, Republic up ½ at 19, Vanadium down ⅝ at 73 and U. S. Steel down ⅛ at 188¼.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15

COTTON—After another nervous and fitful day yesterday the cotton market was more stabilized in the early trading this morning. Prices were between 7 and 9 points higher at first call on the exchange, and throughout the first hours trading held close to the opening figures. March, who had opened 8 points higher at 15.85c, traded fairly actively at a point below that figure. May likewise experienced a net decline of 1 point from its opening figure of 16.12c. October, after opening 8 points higher at 16.49c, sold off to 16.46c. Other deliveries held firm with July at 16.30c, December 16.62c and January 16.65c.

The most important cotton news of the morning on the local exchange was the announcement by the board of managers of proposed change in the laws of the New York cotton exchange which will virtually eliminate New York as a point of delivery. These proposals would wipe out the 35-point differential at present allowed to sellers who deliver in New York over the prices they are entitled to receive for deliveries in southern markets.

The government report, issued late yesterday, estimated the amount of untendered cotton ginned up to January 16 at 23.6 per cent, against 16.68 per cent untenderable up to the same time last season.

The 11:30 cotton market was firm. March sold at 15.84c, May 16.09c, July, 16.29c, October 16.47c.

NEW YORK BONDS.

by International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.

The week-end bond market was uneven and irregular, with the demand for prime and speculative issues tapering off considerably from the full sessions of the week. Convertibles were unsettled by the reactionary movements in some sections of the stock market. American Telephone & Telegraph 4½s lost about a point at 149½, but International Telephone 4½s sold up fractionalyl as the result of the strong market for the stock of the corporation. Atchison Railroad 4½s were unchanged at 140.

Liberties and foreign government issues were dull and inactive. Liberty fourth 4¼s sold up fractionally at 101⅛ and Swiss 5½s were up ¼ at 103¼.

LINCOLN STAR

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conformings to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Careful attention given to mail orders. Cash in full must accompany out-of-town advertisements.

Advertising offered for irregular insertion takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.

Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES.

Daily rate for consecutive insertions. Count six average words to a line. These special cash rates apply to advertising paid for within seven days after last insertion. Minimum cash rate is 36 cents. Cash rate per line per day:

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15

There was a noticeable absence of aggressive support in pivotal curb issues this morning, and prices of the general rank and file of stocks backed and filled within narrow limits, although there were several individual group favorites which moved up sharply out of the trading range. To import a decidedly erratic appearance to the market as a whole.

Opinion in speculative circles still stressed the likelihood of a technical setback, because of the past week is believed to have left the market on a rather uncertain footing, with any adverse news development likely to cause a sharp reaction. The trading element has therefore guided their commitments with more than the usual caution, with the general reluctance to add further to their holdings at the present, an important factor in the see-saw action of the main body of stocks.

Utilities were mostly on the downgrade today with Electric Bond & Shar reacting to 99⅛ for a loss of ⅝. Other losses were sustained by American Gas & Electric down 1 at 135, American Superpower down ⅛ at 31¼, Commonwealth Edison down 2 at 282, Eastern States Power B down 1⅝ at 26½, Niagara Hudson Power down ⅝ at 16⅛, and Standard Power & Light down 2½ at 75¼.

Strength was evidenced in Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, which moved up 2¾ points to 114, while fractional headway was made by Middle West Utilities and United Gas.

Cities Service is apparently meeting good buying around present levels for it fluctuated in a fractional range with many of the sales taking place at itspreviouscosing price of 32½.

Investment trusts held comparatively steady with practically all of the activissues maintaining their position near their best levels of the week. Special activity was responsible fo ra gain of 1½ points in Marine Midland to 42, and heavy turnover featured a fractional advance in Blue Ridge to 9⅝. Other minor advances were scored by Central States Electric, up ½ at 27½, Goldman Sachs up ¼ at 39⅝, National Investors up ⅜ at 26, and Prudential Investors up ⅛ at 18⅞. Slight declines were recorded in Insull Utility down ¼ at 68¾. Lehman down ½ at 85, Shenandoah down ⅛ at 12, and Trans-America down ⅛ at 45⅝.

Vacuum was the weak spot in an unsettled oil list, dropping 1⅜ to 91. Other oils moved fractionally lower.

Sharply divergent trends were followed by individual industrial issues with Smith setting the pace with an 8-point jump to 173, other buoyant performers were Blumenthal, up 1⅝ at 43, Davenport Hosiery up 2 at 22, Niles Bement Pond up 1¼ at 39⅝, and Republic Steel up 1 at 77. Deere reacted sharply, falling off 9 points to 631. Fox Theatres turned weak, declining ⅝ to 6½.

Curb bonds moved irregularly higher.

SHARE ITS PROSPERITY!—Western South Dakota. Rich Lands, Low Prices, Easy Terms. High quality lands and on easy terms in Western South Dakota, in localities served by The Milwaukee Road. The entire territory is improved with roads, schools, churches and railroads, an enjoys a friendly neighborhood spirit. Its record is good for production of non-perishable crops of wide demand, and climatic conditions are favorable to comfortable family life; also for development of livestock. Surface of this territory varies from large level areas or slightly rolling lands—suitable either for tractor or horsepower farming—to rough or hilly lands, ideal for grazing. Prices vary according to location and quality, ranging from $5 to $25 per acre for unimproved, and from $15 to $40 per acre for improved lands. Real opportunities exist in this South Dakota region for men seeking to engage in grain, diversified or stock farming. Corn, wheat, flax, oats, barley, alfalfa, sweet clover, vegetables and small fruits profitably grown. Production of alfalfa seed extensive. Horses, cattle and sheep thrive on the nutritious native South Dakota grasses. Poultry, hog and dairying industries are successfully carried on and are rapidly increasing. Residents of this section also have easy access to the scenic, fishing and hunting advantages of the Black Hills. The Milwaukee Road seeks to aid qualified settlers; to protect them against unfair statements about conditions, to help secure maximum land values for prices paid; to advise before and after locating. Write for illustrated booklet and detailed information. Ask questions. All answers cheerfully and carefully given. Reliable information on all parts of this territory. Low Homeseeker Fares every Tuesday. R. W. Reynolds, Commissioner, The Milwaukee Road, 942-K, Union Station, Chicago.

STATE CHAMPIONSHIP BOWLING

FIFTEENTH ANNUAL TOURNAMENT

—TO BE HELD AT—

THE LINCOLN BOWLING PARLORS

232 NORTH 12th Street

FEB. 21 — MAR. 3

Crack bowlers of Nebraska will assemble in Lincoln this month for the fifteenth annual tournament of the Nebraska State Bowling association, the ten-pin classic being rolled over the alleys at the Lincoln Bowling Parlors, February 21-March 3.

One hundred teams are expected to compete for the prize list estimated at $2,000. Competition will be in the singles, doubles, all-events and team events with six special prizes for booster teams and six specitl prizes for out-state bowlers.

The tournament carries with it official A. B. C. sanction and promises to be one of the high spots in Nebraska bowling history. The bright new alleys and beautiful quarters of the Lincoln Bowling parlors make possible the staging of this state event. Team games will be rolled across six alleys with doubles and singles events also across six alleys, thus sending every competitor over the same route and preventing any top-heavy scores by easy alleys.

Officers of the Nebraska State association are President, H. R. Baker, Beatrice; vice presidents, Stanley Taber, Lincoln; H. Stevenson, Omaha, P. Wadhams, Lincoln; C. Neilson, Grand Island; D. S. Sherrel, Norfolk;, secretary-treasurer, Frank Cerney, Omaha. The tournament secretary is P. A. Brown of Lincoln.

While the tourney will be one of the largest in Nebraska ten-pin annals, it also will be one of the most representative in history. Entries received include the crack bowlers from every section of the state

Informal Affairs Gain Attention Of Society

Following Beaux Arts Ball And Valentine Dinner Dance At University Club Smaller Parties Will Be In Vogue During This Week.

WITH two major social events passed, society settles down again to its routine of foursomes and informal affairs. Occasionally there is a party which includes a large number of guests, but in these days of informality, it is rare.

Practically all of the activities of importance are for brides-to-be, with an out-of-town guest as honoree every now and then.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnicle entertained informally at dinner Friday evening at their home, complimenting their house guests, Dr. and Mrs. Fred Wrightman and Miss Lillian Dreibelis of Sabetha, as. Saturday, Miss Dreibelis entertained a very small group of guests at luncheon at the University club.

Saturday evening, Mrs. M. Bolton entertained ten dinner guests at Oak hall, as a courtesy to her sister, Mrs. E. L. Smith and Mrs. Smith on the fifteenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Smith. An informal evening followed the dinner.

Mrs. W. E. Straub will entertain an eightsome at luncheon and bridge Wednesday at Oak hall, and on Friday, Mrs. Ed Dierks will have a table for a no-host group of nine, with bridge following.

Monday evening, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. George will preside at a dinner followed by bridge at their home, 1826 South Twenty-sixth street. Thirty-two guests will be included.

Many Attend Valentine Dance.

Quite the most important event of Saturday evening was the Valentine dinner dance given at the University club for 150 members. Appropriate appointments for the tables were bowls of red carnations, tall red tapers, cut out hearts, and runners of red crepe paper. During the evening Miss Elizabeth Gilbertson and Miss Dorothy McKenzie gave a series of tap dances.

One of the largest parties at the affair was given by Mr. and Mrs. Al DuTeau who entertained fifteen couples at their table. Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Cox had for their guests Mr. and Mrs. Payson Marshall and in a dutch treat foursome were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Putney and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kinsinger. Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Righter entertained Dr. and Mrs. James J. Podlesak.

In a no-host group were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pegler, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reeves, Mrs. Jessie Seacrest Hollenbeck, Thomas Wake of Seward, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Walt, and Al Dallas.

At a table with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hellmers were eighteen guests. Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Towle had twenty-four guests at their table which was made attractive with red tulips. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McKelvie, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Sweeny, and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Towle entertained groups of four.

Mr. and Mrs. Camp To Preside.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Camp will preside at dinner at the club on Friday for sixteen guests. Following dinner they will play bridge at

Parties To Compliment Miss Hall

Miss Catherine Goss and Dorothy Davis Also To Be Honored.

A trio of interesting spring brides are the incentive for a number of social events this week.

Miss Marion Hall, whose marriage to J. Keith Walker will be an event of March 12, is to be feted at several affairs, which begin Monday, when Mrs. Walter Wilson will preside at a luncheon for eight guests, with bridge following.

On Friday, Miss Catherine Goss will share honors with Miss Hall at a luncheon for which Mrs. Max Beghtol will be hostess at her home, 2500 South street. Covers will be arranged for ten. Bridge will be the afternoon diversion.

On Saturday, Mrs. J. M. Miles, 2912 Ryons street, will preside at a luncheon and bridge, honoring Miss Hall.

Mrs. Charles Brother Towle will preside at a luncheon for Miss Hall and the members of the bridal party, including attendants for both Miss Hall and Mr. Walker, on March 11.

Miss Catherine Goss is to be honored at a luncheon which Mrs. Vance Traphagen will give at her home, 2336 Bradfield drive, Monday. There will be twelve guests included in the affair. Tuesday Mrs. F. B. Baylor will entertain at her home, 2530 Rathbone road, for a group of eight friends of Miss Goss who formerly belonged to a bridge club. Mrs. Donald Pettis and Mrs. Edwin Gould of Omaha, will come to Lincoln for the party.

Wednesday Miss Goss will be entertained at a luncheon which Mrs. Howard Rushton will give at her home in Omaha. Mrs. Melvin Bekins and Mrs. Lee Huff, jr., of Omaha, are giving a luncheon together for Miss Goss Saturday, in Omaha.

To Honor Dorothy Davis.

Parties for Miss Dorothy Davis include an evening bridge which Mrs. Phil Sidles is giving at her home, 3310 East Pershing road, Monday. There will be three tables. Saturday evening the teachers of Belmont school were hostesses at a party for Miss Davis at the home of Mrs. E. S. Place, 2227 South Nineteenth street. Twelve were present and the evening was spent with bridge. A supper was served at a table decorated with a center bowl of yellow jonquils and end tapers of yellow tied with lavender tulle. One gift was presented to Miss Davis.

Dinner at University Club.

Joining to entertain for Miss Davis Saturday evening, will be Miss Maryann Cornell, Miss Winifred Mayhew and Mrs. Harry Carson. They will give a 7 o'clock dinner at the University club, and afterward will play bridge. Sixteen are on the guest list.

Honors Miss Harlan.

Miss Viola Oberlies will honor Miss Lora Harlan with a dinner for ten guests Thursday, at her home, 2003 South Twenty-third street.

Shower After Dinner.

Miss Coleita Aitken will entertain honoring Miss Dorothy Davis Friday at dinner, at the University club. A shower for the honor guest will follow dinner. From sixteen to twenty guests are expected.

Bernice Hager Married In Attractive Wedding

Becomes Bride of Dr. L. S. Perry of Wayne, at Chi Omega Sorority House, Saturday; Weddings Misses Lorraine Phillips and May Burt Arranged For Sunday In Lincoln and Council Bluffs, Ia.

Perhaps it is the romance of the Valentine season, or a harbinger of spring romance, but there seems to be an unusually large number of attractive and interesting marriages being solemnized this month.

A lovely wedding took place Saturday afternoon when Miss Bernice Hager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hager of Waterville, Kas., was married to Dr. L. S. Perry of Wayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perry of Norfolk, at the Chi Omega sorority house. Rev. Ervine Inglis read the service at 4 o'clock before an improvised altar banked with ferns and palms. Floor candelabra held tall tapers of blue tied with yellow tulle, on either side.

While the one hundred thirty-five guests were assembling, Miss Cornelia Gant played piano selections. Miss Thelma King sang two nuptial numbers, "I Love You Truly," and the A. T. O. sweetheart song. An aisle of blue and gold crepe paper was formed by Miss Marguerite Hagerman, Miss Dorothy Tow, Miss Maxine Johnson, Miss Evelyn Simpson, Miss Leona McDonald, Miss Helen Wilkie and Miss Betty Jonas.

Harold Turner played the march for the entrance of the bridal party. The two bridesmaids, Miss Georgia Wilcox and Miss Dorothy Hyde of Kansas City, were gowned in sky blue chiffon made with the swathed hiplines and full flare skirts. Miss Wilcox' dress had a large collar of chiffon and the dress was draped longer on the sides.

The frock worn by Miss Hyde had a lace yoke and tiny puff sleeves. Both bridesmaids wore corsages of yellow roses and violets.

Merle Lyon Matron of Honor.

Mrs. Merle Lyon, who was matron of honor, wore a frock of gold and blue figured chiffon, made with a long, very full, and flared skirt, and a high waistline and a sleeveless jacket of chiffon. Her bouquet was of yellow calendula and blue sweet peas. Archie Perry of Iowa City was best man, and the ushers were Dorsey Baldwin and Calvin Hager.

The bride's gown was of old ivory lace, fashioned in a modish style with a long fitted bodice, long, closely fitted sleeves, and a full skirt with four points reaching to the floor. There was a cape collar tied in front. She carried a shower bouquet of yellow roses and lilies of the valley, tied with pale blue ribbons holding tiny California acacias.

After the service, a reception was held. Mrs. Lily Williams invited the guests to the dining room where the girls who had formed the aisle served. The gift room was in charge of Miss Phoebe Searlen, and Miss Grace Melberg had the guest book. The serving table was appointed with a bowl of yellow roses and blue tapers.

Dr. Perry and his bride left immediately for their home at Wayne. Mrs. Perry wore a traveling outfit of green with a hat to match.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hager of Waterville, Kas.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perry, Mrs. Ed Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Milo Pery, Bruce McGrain, Mr. and Mrs. George Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Walling, and Mrs. W. Wiggenbachan and Lloyd, of Norfolk; Merle Jones, Miss Ruth Jane O'Neil, and Miss Bernice Welch of Omaha; Miss Ona Marvel of Hastings; Miss Grace Melberg of Ogallala; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Buchenhauer, of Wayne; Miss Arlene McCrinon of Wayne; Mrs. Melvin Hagerman of Niobrara; Don Miller of Wakefield; and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Whalen of Hastings.

Miss Pierce To Be Honoree At Four Parties This Week

Pre-Nuptial Dinner Is Given at Chi Omega House For Miss Bernice Hager and Dr. L. S. Perry; Showers Arranged Are For the Misses Green and Hochheim.

Miss Grace Pierce will be entertained at a group of parties this week before her marriage on February 25, in Philadelphia.

A 10 o'clock breakfast is being given this morning for Miss Pierce, by Mrs. Ed Crowley and Mrs. Frank Dougherty, at the home of Mrs. Dougherty, 2322 C street. Ten guests are included, and the time after breakfast is informal.

Miss Cecelia McManaman will give a dinner at 5 o'clock today at her home, 821 South Fifteenth street, with Miss Pierce as honored guest. Places will be laid for fourteen. The after dinner time will be spent informally.

As a courtesy to Miss Pierce, Miss Grace Dunne will give a bridge party this evening at her home, 714 South Seventeenth street, for sixteen. A shower has been arranged for the honoree, and at the conclusion of the evening a supper will be served at one large and several small tables appointed in green and white. An out-of-town guest will be Mrs. Edward R. Crowley of Cambridge.

Twelve guests will be entertained at dinner Monday evening by Mrs. P. L. McManaman at her home, 740 South Twenty-first street, in honor of Miss Pierce. Pink roses and tall pink tapers will decorate the table and the evening will be spent informally.

Boudoir Shower.

A boudoir shower for Miss Mildred Green is to be given Saturday evening by Miss Dixie Lee Lowry at her home, 5127 Leighton avenue. Fifteen guests will be included in the affair and will spend the evening making a bride's book for Miss Green. The late supper will be served buffet fashion from a table appointed in yellow and white.

For Miss Hchheim.

Several parties are to be given for Miss Mayme Hochheim of Cortland this week. Monday evening Mrs. Henry Beal will give a green and white kitchen shower at her home, 2710 Sumner street. The evening is to be spent informally and supper will be served later.

Also in compliment to Miss Hochheim, Miss Veronica O'Brien will entertain at a rose crystal shower and bridge party at her home in Cortland, Friday evening. Twenty guests will be present and at the close of the card games supper will be served at small tables adorned with suggestions of Washington's birthday.

Engagament Announced.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Genevieve Kumpf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto W. Kumpf, to Hughes A. Heizer, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Heizer of Atkinson, was made at the Beta Phi Alpha sweetheart formal Friday evening at the Lincoln hotel. The Valentine motif was carried out in the decorations. A taper in the center of a large red heart formed the centerpiece of each table. The place cards were small red hearts tied to a red rose. A silhouette couple in old-fashioned costumes marked the front of each program. During the dinner, Jeanette Neigh, violinist, accompanied by Miss Elma Mae Crane, played old-time and modern sweetheart songs. At the close, Constance McBride, 5 years old, dressed as cupid with her bow and arrows, gave a cupid dance before a tall red heart. Immediately after the dance, the heart was broken, and Miss Maxine Mathers, frocked as an old-fashioned sweetheart, stepped through, and sang songs typical of different periods. As she sang "Love," she passed among the tables to distribute heart-shaped red boxes tied with white tulle, in each of which was a concealed crimson heart, announcing the engagement of Miss Kumpf and Mr. Heizer. Forty-three couples were present, including the honor guests, Miss Alice Slama, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lawrence, and Mrs. W. S. Payne.

What Will the Spring Silhouette Be?

....as seen by a fashion-right store

Is the silhouette modified?

Indeed — The somewhat difficult fall silhouette has been tamed in the salons of the French couturiers this season until it appears quite mild and amenable, whether you are 14 or 40.

Is the ensemble important?

Emphatically this spring. Not only the ensemble which includes three or four pieces—but the distinctive type of ensembling—the harmonizing of coat, dress and accessories for every hour of the day.

Will one dress suffice for all day long?

Indeed no! The spring mode is highly individualized. Each frock has a time of day for which it was created—and it is perfect for that hour or occasion and for none other.

What trends are most important?

These seven trends illustrated. But you may find many other interesting interpretations of 1930 Fashions awaiting you.

Russian

YOU'LL recognize the dashing Russian Cossack when you wear little flared belted—in coats like this one this spring.

St. Leger Cowley and Deborah Avery Groups Select Delegates For Annual Meeting In Lincoln March 18, 19 and 20.

The thirtieth annual state conference of Nebraska Daughters of the American Revolution will be held in Lincoln, at the Cornhusker hotel, March 18, 19 and 20, with Deborah Avery chapter as hostess, according to an announcement by Mrs. Adam McMullen, state regent.

Registration of delegates will begin Tuesday, March 18. At 2 p. m. Tuesday the state board will meet and at 4 p. m., a tour of the new state capitol. Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the conference will open formally in the ball room of the Cornhusker. The program will be followed by a reception.

Wednesday, March 19, will be devoted to the business and at 6:30 a banquet will be held in the main dining room.

A continuation of the business sessions will occupy Thursday, March 20, and election of officers probably will come Thursday afternoon. Nebraska Daughters have adopted a plan of electing half their officers one year and half the following year. This year the following offices are to be filled: corresponding secretary, which has been filled by Mrs. Frank Baker of Omaha; treasurer now Miss Fanny DeBow of Coleridge; historian, now Miss Mabel Lindly of Lincoln; librarian, now Mrs. Roy Northup of York; and chaplain, now Mrs. C. H. Mullin of Omaha.

The officers held over are Mrs. Adam McMullen of Beatrice, state regent; Mrs. E. H. Westcott of Plattsmouth, vice state regent; Mrs. H. J. Cary of Kearney, recording secretary; Mrs. R. E. Knight of Alliance, registrar; and Mrs. Fred C. Laird of Fremont, auditor.

Thursday evening the Chicago Civic Opera Co. is to present "Carmen" in Lincoln. Two blocks of seats will be held to order until March 1, Mrs. Samuel Avery, 2905 South Twenty-seventh street, Lincoln, has charge of reservations.

Among the subjects which will be considered during the conference is the D. A. R. room at Arbor lodge. It is hoped that in each chapter at least one or more members can be found who will be able to loan some article or piece of furniture of historic interest for this room. A built-in wardrobe already in the room, has been fitted with shelves and glass doors, by the order of the state regent, and will make a suitable place for the display of small articles.

A room at the Cornhusker will be reserved during the conference for genealogical books and a committee will be present to assist any seeking information.

WHAT SCREEN-GRID MEANS TO YOU IN CROSLEY RADIO—

Better tubes mean better radios. One screen-grid tube has eight times the merit of an ordinary tube. That means that Crosley Radio backed by two years of screen-grid experience will outperform all existing sets. Here is what screen-grid as found in Crosley Radio means to you.

Screen-Grid means abolition of ground and aerial for both local and distance reception.

Screen-Grid means getting one station at a time—and only one. Sharp tuning of local stations.

Screen-Grid means sensitivity twice as great as any other set. Sensitivity is the power to register stations. That means better tone, reception and enunciation from distant stations.

Screen-Grid means marvelous tone—naturalness .... best only when properly engineered as in Crosley Radio.

LET'S SHOP WITH MODERN EVE

Tied Treatments Effective

TREATMENTS of this sort frequently occur in skirts that wrap or describe tunic handlings, and the same wrapped idea is also noted in jackets that suggest two-piece frocks. Other tied treatments are observed in frocks with belts or half-belts that tie at the back in youthful manner.

When You First Visit

MAGEE'S Co-ed Campus Shop, you almost wonder where you are—can this be some charming little rest salon where one meets her friends to exchange littel tid bits of gossip or is it really a shop where everything but shoes worn by women may be purchased? It's almost impossible to believe the latter when you take in the coziness and elegance of the place and the lack of anything to buy being in evidence. But it's true and those tomato red curtains hanging from scrolls of silver and black are not alone, for furnishings but are concealing shelves of luxurious undies, hose, scarfs, sweaters, etc. I just must not tell you more, you must see for yourself. This shop at 1123 R street, opens tomorrow for business while Tuesday has been chosen as the formal opening day and will be open in the evening.

Friday Morning.

WILL find the Giffen Beauty Shop all moved and settled in its new home at 1209 M street, in the Lafayette building, and meanwhile they will be so busy moving and packing that their former shop in the Telephone Building will be closed. Remember, Friday morning, they will be ready to see you.

Spring Uses Brown

SHADES of "waikiki" and "chocolate drop" dominate those clever hats at Gold's. I haven't figured out whether it's the clever rolling of the smart brims, the intricate moulding of the crowns or if—it's just the things left off that makes these hats so smart. The new straws of Baku-sole and bankok are charmingly adapted and occasionally combined with lighter material.

With All the New Feminine Modes

AND their popularity, with all of the exquisite frills we're beginning to recognize, there still remain those smart women who just can't feel that their wardrobe is complete without at least one smart sweater and skirt, so, Dame Fashion got to work and the ones she fashioned for this spring are in a class by themselves. I'm speaking of the ones I saw at Gold's. Imagine an eggshell colored sweater with modernistic designs worn with a cleverly flared skirt, or, any pastel shade, peach, orchid, nile, green, linnen, blue, these are only $2.95. The skirts of light weight woolens and tweeds have flare and pleats for only $5.95.

Bobette Beaute Shoppe Announces Its Opening

EVERY one knows Bob Dyer and Esther Johnson. They are the managers you know, and have a force of experienced and very popular beauty operators to assist them in all lines of beauty culture. Ann Hanson and Ruby Parrish Harlan are there, too, and just eager to see all of their old patrons and new—the location—one of the best in town for parking conveniences and handy to get to on the ground floor at 1216 M street. The Vapor marcel and Frederic permanents are the featured ones of their shop.

There Is No Reason

WHY anyone's kitchen should be unattractive these days, when color is so important and when almost the entire furnishings may be purchased in color, including linoleum. Every new spring shade has been utilized in the new patterns of Armstrong's linoleum at Griswold-Comstock and all are that dirt resisting accolac finish. Don't redecorate your kitchen until you decide on your linoleum then make the rest in keeping with these colors.

Peplums and Flaring Hemlines

JACKET costumes sometimes include a frock with wide cape collar which is worn outside the jacket, this cape idea being a recurrent one. The peplum theme is also accented, with the flaring ruffle sometimes posed at rather a low hipline, the same flaring outline also obtaining at the hemline of the skirt.

This method of introducing a flaring line at the shoulders and repeating it at the hipline is noted frequently, with the same jaunty expression manifested in little ruffled sleeves.

It is also interesting to note the adjustable handlings that dominate skirts, making it possible to fasten them as snugly as the wearer wishes, due to the introduction of bows which tie at the waistline, sometimes at each side and again at one side only. This method of skirt closing also gives emphasis to the higher waistline.

BOLERO and cape themes are conspicuous, the boleros appearing in frocks fashioned of plain and printed crepe as well as printed tafefta. An added air of femininity is provided in crisp little white lingerie collars and frills on sleeves, the latter often abbrevated, and in some instances dispensed with entirely, brief flaring ruffles taking their place.

Lincoln Woman's Forum.

The Lincoln Woman's Forum met Friday at the Y. W. C. A., Mrs. C. E. Burton, presiding. Mrs. H. E. Owens acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. H. T. Guinn, Mrs. E. S. Luce said that folk songs of any country sprung from the people and picture their every day life. The Russian folk songs reek with horses and slaves and war; and the Italian is filled with rippling waters and sunshine. British are sturdy and strong. The Welsh get all together. The Irish sit on grass and sing on sunny slopes. The Spanish speak of bullfights and gaudy dress. We are not sure whether ours should be from the western cowboy, the southern mountains, or negro minstrels.

Mrs. A. O. Taylor said everyone should read about the commission recently appointed by the president. Mrs. Hannah Moran quoted Senator Howell's talk to the Woman's club of Omaha that he was not yet sold to the Root formula. Mrs. W. W. Day spoke of a secret visit to Paul Revere's home in Boston and deplored the fact that it

Fat Folks Eat Less Than the Thin

A Gland Is Weak

VERY often we find that fat people eat less than thin people. They are naturally careful in their diet. So it is evident, generally, that something else causes excess fat. There is usually an under-active gland. Modern physicians, in treating obesity, seek to supply the deficiency.

The factor they use is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. It largely explains the results. A book in each box of Marmola gives the formula and states why it leads to reduction.

Marmola is prepared in a famous medical laboratory, to deal in the right way with excess fat. People have used it for 22 years—millions of boxes of it. They have told the results to others, until people now employ it in a larger way than ever.

Do what those people have done. Don't starve, don't over-exercise. There is danger in both. Let Marmola supply the gland factor which is probably too scant. Watch the results for a little while, in lower weight, new health and vitality. Those results will tell you if this is the right way for you.

Do this for your own sake, for your family and friends. If your condition is abnormal, correct it. Go try Marmola now

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

MINERVA'S MAIL

The Marital Whip.

THERE is a theory which is gaining some vogue, especially among the younger married couples of today, that a wife stands a pretty good chance of spoiling her husband if she does not assume a sort of indifferent, almost hard-boiled, attitude in making demands for those things which she wants from her husband. If she wants a new dress, the question is not approached upon the basis of "can we afford a new dress this week," but with a demand which is something akin to a threat that the wife "is going to have a new dress." Or it may be a theater party or some other item of expense instead of a dress.

It is no doubt true that some men do respond more readily, and seemingly more satisfactorily, under these high pressure methods. At least, it would seem that they did for a while.

But when a wife's needs affect the family budget, I am, indeed, skeptical about the threatening theory of obtaining results as being a basis for a long and happy married life. After the first blush of married life wears off, marriage becomes a process of adjustments, understandings, sympathies — all woven together by that ever golden thread of love. If sympathy and understanding is lacking, the golden thread is going to be very sorely tried, and possibly it will not stand the strain.

A young married man's respect for his wife is something far different than mere acquiescence following an unfeeling demand for a new dress, and besides the proverbial worm will and does turn. A husband may jump at the crack of the marital whip for a time, but when he does rebel, it is apt to be too late to keep the matrimonial ship off the rocks.

Undated Seventeen.

In my mail comes a letter from "Martha," who says she is 17 years old and has never had a date. She wants to know if I think she should deliberately have a date the next time a boy asks her even though she does not care a thing about it.

I'll admit it is somewhat unusual these days for a girl "Martha's" age never to have been with a boy, but I certainly see no reason why she should do something she does not care about. In fact, "Martha" is probably getting a lot more out of life right now than girls of her age who are going with boys. I suspect she is devoting considerable time to self-improvement such as school work, reading, etc., and if such is the case, she will be happier for it by the time she is old enough to really benefit by the companionship of men.

Sarcastic Remarks.

Dear Minerva: I have been reading your Mail and seeing what good advice you are giving I am coming to you with my problem.

A few months ago I was going steadily with a young man of eighteen of whom I was very fond. We went together for about five months and he seemed to care for me a great deal. Then we began seeing less and less of each other and finally stopped going together at all.

I care for this boy a great deal and I think that he still likes me but lately we have been saying mean sarcastic things to each other and this hurts me sincerely. I see this young man practically every Friday and Saturday evenings and would greatly enjoy going with him again or at least resuming our friendship and comradship again.

What can I do? Can you tell me any way that I can remedy this situation?—LONELY.

A:—Well, for one thing I would quit saying "mean, sarcastic" things to him. Perhaps his similar remarks to you are merely inspired by your own two-edged comments. At any rate, I think if you checked yourself in your smarting remarks, he would soon quit saying them to you. Such banter is hardly a solitary proposition.

If you conduct yourself in your former manner, when both of you were good friends, and if meet him upon the common ground of good fellowship, there is scarcely anything more you can do to renew his interest. If he does not care for you when you are your normal self, it is not likely that his friendship would ever prove lasting.

At Forty.

Dear Minerva: In answer to the little note Forty and Alone, I will say as "M. G. L." said that it is impossible for an older woman to meet any men that are worth while. Women forty or older are very lonely for just a good pal for companionship. But men seem to think they are not at all worth notice. If the men did but know the truth these older women are worth a dozen younger women for real company. In the first place few older women expect men to spend a lot of money on them as the younger women do. They want mostly just companionship. I know because I am in that class myself and have had plenty of experience along that line.—G. W.

In Name Only.

Undecided: Since there are no children to consider, I see no reason why you should let this man ruin your life as he is apparently doing. If you feel that through your love for him you cannot win his loyalty, you are bringing only unhappiness upon yourself by continuing to live with him as his wife in name only. If you are certain of his infidelity you will have no difficulty in obtaining a separation.

The Flatterer.

"What is the difference between halitosis and flattery?", the wag asks. The answer is "Just nine out of ten are susceptible to halitosis."

The assumption is, of course, that all are susceptible to flattery.

Probably we are. But we do like to have flattery couched in plausible as well as smooth terms, and we like to feel convinced that it is sincere.

In a recent luncheon conversation between a group of women, the question of popularity was discussed.

"I like the person who gives me the impression when she is with me that she is interested solely in me and my affairs, who dwells upon my remarks as if they were pearls of wisdom, who laughs at my sallies as if they were gems of wit," one woman remarked.

"But if that woman turns to the next person with that same subtle air of vital interest, how do you feel then?" she was asked.

"It doesn't make one particle of difference to me to know that she treats everyone the same," was the answer. "I enjoy being with her because she makes me feel entertaining and charming and I like to feel that way."

Most of the group agreed with her.

And so do I, with one qualification. If there is an air of practiced technique, a false note of assumed interest in the air of that seemingly absorbed companion, she or he is not popular with me.

I believe the interest must be genuine, that it cannot be successfully feigned. I believe the man or woman who is universally beloved and enjoyed is the individual who has a sincerely vital interest in human beings and who is truly absorbed in their problems and their reactions.

I believe the flatterer is always detected eventually and cordially shunned by the majority.

is in the midst of a foreign colony, the same as many sacred places in New York.

Mrs. Nelson Allen said our earlier immigrants were fine and came for education and religion, but many of the later ones came only for money and crime. Mrs. H. E. Owens spoke of the butter situation in Nebraska and thought the farmers themselves mostly to blame. If they would all use butter instead of substitutes it would help decrease the 40,000,000 pounds now in storage.

Mrs. Lillie Harm was glad of Major Crosby's appointment as prohibition head, and Mrs. Fern Upton regretted Judge Taft's sickness, but rejoiced in the appointment of Charles E. Hughes. Mrs. Burton recalled a visit of President Taft to Colorado. Mrs. Lillie Atkinson sat next him at the state fair and saw her favorite horse win the race while his choice lost.

The Thursday Luncheon club was entertained by Mrs. Guy J. Crook Thursday at the Cornhusker for 1 o'clock luncheon. Following luncheon, bridge was played at the home of the hostess, 1745 A street. Mrs. Clark Varner made high score, while Mrs. F. J. Miller, won the consolation prize. February 27, Mrs. Charles Rumbolz will entertain at her home, 849 South Fortieth street.

Entertain Wimodausis Club.

Mrs. I. M. Clark entertained members of the Wimodausis club Wednesday at her home, Fifty-third and L streets. Fifteen were present for an informal afternoon, followed by refreshments. The club will meet again in March.

value of ancestry not as something of which to boast, unless it has given good bodies and minds so that they in turn may become good ancestors.

The meeting closed with a tribute to the two great Americans, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, whose birthdays come in February.

The next activity of the chapter is the tea to be given February 22 in commemoration of the birthday of George Washington, at the home of Mrs. H. W. Meginnis. The house will be decorated with roses and flags with lighted tapers in Colonial blue. The past regents of the chapter will receive, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Weaver.

The chapter officers will serve tea at a table made beautiful by red roses in a quaint blue bowl and lighted with tapers of colonial blue in silver holders. Many of the appointments are cherished heirlooms of Mrs. Meginnis and other members of the chapter.

DRAWING BY MISS MARTHA TURNER

BY LULU MAE COE.

NEBRASKA only gets credited with seventy-five years as a state and territory.

Of course, that's about all its historical due. Before that May of 1854, this part of the world had little legal claim on the cognomen.

It has just had its diamond jubilee, with no more chance for another grand birthday party for twenty-five years. It must do all it has done just that much more intensely before it is again a candidate for honors.

A century is comparative. To the world, it is but the time of a thought. To a man, a long, long time, whether he be one of the few who looks back upon it, or of the many who realize in it a mortal eternity.

To Nebraska, it represents more than its life as a recognized entity. Its development has been accomplished in three-quarters of that period.

Century To Make State.

Strangely enough, a century has gone into the making of the state. Just one hundred years ago in 1830, the unrealized and unnoted movements that were to merge into a state some day to be known as Nebraska began.

That quarter of a century from 1830 and ending in the territory was the minor period of the yet unnamed and unthought of Nebraska. A youthful period, leading up to its majority.

The United States had acquired the Louisiana territory in 1803. About twenty-seven years later life in the potential Nebraska was assuming some sort of form, even though it was under the frontier conditions of the crudest and roughest kind. That year did not mark the coming of the white man, for Fort Atkinson had been established and abandoned and Bellevue presumably lay as a rugged little settlement on the Missouri. Traders and trappers had come some time previously.

It did mark the beginning of the two decades and a trifle more that were to open the great trails, to bring in scattered settlers, sometimes against their own purpose, missionaries, the church, noted men to go east again to tell of this broad new country, and to give a part of this section a name, the twenty-four years to end in Nebraska as a territory.

Made Journey In 1830.

The first wagon wheels on the Oregon trail to cross Nebraska were made in the spring and summer of 1830. April 10, 1830, Jedediah S. Smith, William L. Sublette and David E. Jackson, all noted explorers and trappers, took ten loaded wagons, and one milk cow from St. Louis to the Wind river mountains. They returned in the summer with their pelts and the cow, and had made their little record on the Oregon trail.

Two years later, Captain Bonneville took twenty wagons and followed Sublette's trail. In the same year, an expedition of Nathaniel J. Wyeth and William Sublette followed the Big Blue to its headwaters and across from there to the Platte, and on to Oregon, opening a great wagon highway from the Missouri river to the Pacific. This route, with some changes, was followed for many years.

From 1836 on, and particularly in the decade from 1840 to 1850, thousands of men, women and children crossed the country that not so long in the future was to be Nebraska. No broad highways follow the lanes of these western treks, but they are marked forever in history by the unknown who died in that great western movement. In those years, as a city moved out from Kansas City, St. Joe, Nebraska City and Omaha, over the Mormon, Oregon and Pike's peak trails; thousands of wagons were left abandoned by the road, quantities of merchandise was abandoned, and hundreds of oxen died from exhaustion by the wayside, and men and women struggled into the great west.

Astor's Trip In 1813.

The Astorians had covered a part of the Oregon trail in 1813. The first wheeled vehicles, with the exception of a cannon, were made in 1830. The first Oregon homeseekers and adventurers went west through the coming Nebraska between 1830 and 1840. Dr. Elijah White's party of 120, bound for the Pacific, crossed this section in 1842, and began the important Oregon emigration. The following year, a great band of 1,009 persons took the first loaded wagons through to the Columbia river, and for the next seven years long crawling caravans of the hopeful wound across the plains, little seeing the rich country that was to be, in visioning the wealth beyond on the coast.

In 1849—this part of the world had generally become known as Nebraska in the years of the emigration—the California or Mormon trail was generaly used. The Mormons had started the first important travel over the Council Bluffs route in 1847, when they left their winter quarters for Great Salt lake. In the later year, the gold seekers found it an admirable road for their use.

Many less well known roads were opened in these years. The Fort Kearney road. The Missouri river to Denver road. The various cut-offs.

Called "Nebraska Country."

Ten years after the first dim movement that was to end in Nebraska as a territory, the region between the Missouri river and the Rocky mountains and between the forty-third and thirty-seventh parallels came to known as "Nebraska Country." The river, now called the Platte," had carried the name for a century previously. In the early '40s, they called a great region by the name later to be applied to a portion gouged out of the whole.

When it was first recognized that this portion of the United States was unwilling to remain forever as Indian country, and that at least a part of it was habitable and somewhat productive, it had to have a name. William Wilkins in November 30, 1844, said in a report: "The Platte or Nebraska river being the central stream would very properly furnish a name to the territory."

All honor is not due to Wilkins for the thought. John C. Fremont, who spent much of his time exploring territories that the rest of the world hadn't yet visited, called the central river by the name of Nebraska. The secretary of war later used it in his report.

The land later to be comprised in Nebraska was a wilderness or a desert in those days, both names having been used in descriptions. True, one looking for many settlements would have found only disappointment. But the country was not quite as desolate as a Maya village.

Bellevue A Pioneer Outpost.

Bellevue was the center of an early and interesting life. Everyone who was any one visited the outpost when in Nebraska, and all those who had fur business lingered there, lending a picturesque atmosphere to the low log rooms.

Some of the names might well lend distinction to a register in any hostelry today. John C. Fremont visited Bellevue when on his way west, in 1842. He was in charge of an expedition to explore the plains and Rocky mountains, and the first step in a governmental ambition to open the Indian country west of the Missouri for settlers. Starting June 10 from the mouth of the Kansas river, he followed the Ore-

STAGE SET FOR TAKING NEBRASKA CENSUS

MR. CITIZEN MUST BE WELL INFORMED ON HIS FAMILY FACTS IF HE SURVIVES HUNDREDS OF QUESTIONS ENUMERATORS WILL ASK.

WE SAY that this is the year the census is taken. And to most of us it means merely counting noses of Uncle Sam's subjects.

In fact, four censuses are to be taken. Counting noses is about the simplest part of the census endeavor.

The census of distribution, the manufacturers' census, a third for the population, and the last, but of highest importance in 1930, the agricultural, make up the quartet.

During the past week in this district, the eighth Nebraska, composed of Lancaster, Cass, Otoe and Sarpy counties, census enumerators began to take the distribution and the manufacturers censuses in towns of less than 10,000 population, that in this district means all centers outside of Lincoln. These will be taken in Lincoln later and supervised by a different department of census bureau. These two censuses are being taken at this time in all districts of Nebraska in centers having less than 10,000 people.

The enumerators have until April 1 to complete this job. The population count in the cities must be completed within two weeks, beginning April 2, so there will be no joke about it. The enumerators have the month of April for the agricultural census, which includes the population compilation and the farm schedule.

Parsons Is Supervisor.

Each Lincoln enumerator will take the statistics on about 2,000 people. In the rural districts, each numerator generally has a township. Each town and village is a separate enumeration district, but the same person may have both in lightly populated sections. The census in institutions, each one an individual enumeration district, is taken by some person within the institution. The census bureau works directly with the university to determine where the six thousand odd of its students from three dozen states shall be counted.

More than 300 persons have applied as census enumerators, and of that number fifty or sixty will be chosen for Lincoln and 140 or 150 for the work in the four counties. Harley Parsons, census supervisor for this district, is beginning to select his enumerators, but they are not to be notified for three or four weeks. It is now too late for applications to be received.

To each applicant, the federal bureau sent a test schedule, to be filled out by the individual. The schedule is the same as that used by the enumerators, and had to be filled out in the applicant's own writing, without assistance, from a long and complicated narrative of several families. This was sent to the Washington bureau and graded. some of those returned having received 98 per cent—and others considerably less.

If the application is intelligently filled out and the handwriting legible, the test schedule is returned to Mr. Parsons. Those which obviously can not qualify are not sent back. From these questionnaires, Mr. Parsons is to make his selections. He also considers the past business or clerical experience of the applicant, but age or education are not necessarily qualifications for an enumerator.

Many Are Women.

A large number of the enumerators this year are women, many of them college graduates with teaching or business experience. Married or not employed at this time, they find it possible to devote a short time to this census taking.

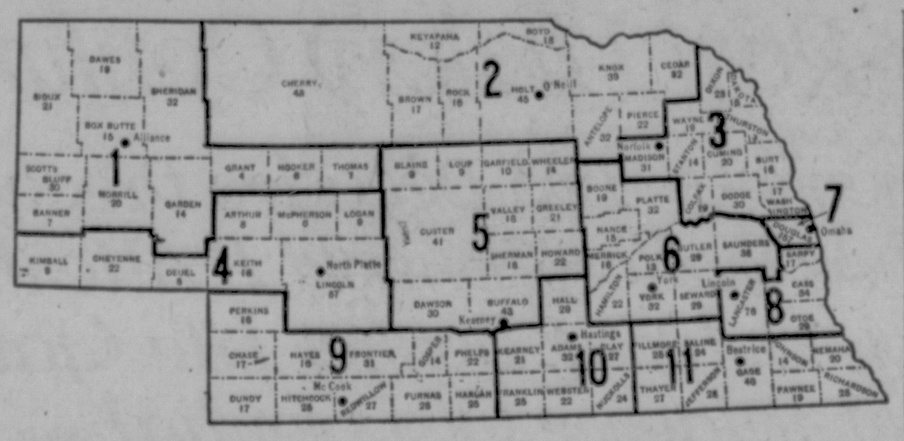

"From my observations, I think this district is to have enumerators showing a higher average degree of intelligence than any other district in the United States. So many of them are highly educated, and are undertaking this work as much from patriotic and public spirited motives as much as from any monenetary gain," Mr. Parsons emphasized.

Each enumerator is of course responsible for the statistics on all the homes in his district. In cases where a family is absent during the entire census-taking period, blanks are furnished the enumerator to record this fact. When the time is completed, a follow-up squad will visit these homes, so that the census can be as complete as possible and each village, town, and city have the maximum of population.

The population census is the most familiar to us, and it is the least complicated of the four. The enumerator records the street, the house number, and the number of the school September 1, 1929, and the number of the dwelling house and the family in order of visitation. Each member of the household is listed, and one designated as the head of the family, and the relation of all others to the head must be cited. All persons living April 1, 1930 are included in this fifteenth census, but children born after April 1 are not mentioned this time.

Records Confidential.

The census taker asks whether the home is owned or rented, and if owned, whether or not it carries a mortgage, and whether the person lives on a farm at this time, or did a year previously. The sex, color, age—census facts are confidential, so no one need fear—whether married or single, whether attending

Nebraska is divided into eleven districts for the fifteenth census, with a supervisor in each of the districts. In the past, the enumeration districts have corresponded to the congressional districts, but each one has been made smaller this year. The map shows the section assigned to each supervisor. They are as follows: District No. 1, Elbert C. Laing, Alliance; No. 2, Claude P. Hancock, O'Neill; No. 3, Mrs. Marie Weekes, Norfolk; No. 4, Albin W. Sandall, North Platte; No. 5, Henry A. Webbert, Kearney; No. 6, J. G. Alden, York; No. 7, Victor D. Reynolds, Omaha; No. 8, Harley Parsons, Lincoln; No. 9, Theodore F. Barnes, McCook; No. 10, Harry E. Bowman, Hastings; No. 11, Walter A. Vasey, Beatrice.

Records Confidential.

The census taker asks whether the home is owned or rented, and if owned, whether or not it carries a mortgage, and whether the person lives on a farm at this time, or did a year previously. The sex, color, age—census facts are confidential, so no one need fear—whether married or single, whether attending school September 1, 1929, and the number of the dwelling house and the family in order of visitation. Each member of the household is listed, and one designated as the head of the family, and the relation of all others to the head must be cited. All persons living April 1, 1930 are included in this fifteenth census, but children born after April 1 are not mentioned this time.

Each person must give his birth place and those of his parents, and the status of citizenship, and date of naturalization, if any. The occupation of each person is required, housewives having an occupational standing this year, and the industry in which he is actively employed, and whether he works for salary or wages or has his own business. The men must state whether or not they have had military or naval service, and in what war.

The agricultural census is a real job, for every bit of land over three acres is considered a farm. With agriculture the great fundamental industry of the United States and the wide national attention and the specific congressional attention the farmers have received in the last few years, the 1930 federal census is devoting much attention to the inventory of all farm property together with reports on last year's production of crops and livestock products to show the value of the investment in agriculture and the volume of the farmer's production.

In this census, the general farm schedule contains approximately 350 possible questions, more than 50 of which have never been asked before in an agricultural census. While the first census of population was taken in 1790, a census of agriculture was not authorized by congress until the decennial census of 1840 and contained thirty questions. The census of 1850 was the first in which a special agricultural schedule was used and it carried forty-six questions.

Given Careful Study.

The joint committee on the farm census received and discussed more than 2,000 suggested questions for th efarm schedule. The final one prepared, the one to be used, is the thirteenth. Members of the committee, by personal contact and by correspondence, consulted agricultural colleges, state departments of agriculture, agricultural publications, students of agriculture, and many dirt farmers before deciding upon the makeup of the final farm schedule.

This schedule is divided into seven parts. They follow: Personal information regarding the farm operator, general information regarding farm acreage, farm values, and farm expenses, farm tenure, an inventory of all livestock, including poultry and bees on April 1, 1930, a statement of the quantity of livestock products produced in 1929, with the quantity and value of certain products sold, a statement of the acreage and the yields of all crops harvested in 1929, as well as the quantity of the principal crops sold or to be sold, miscellaneous information relating to the farm.

The record is made from the person living on the farm. He must state his status, whether he is owner, cropper, tenant, or hired manager. In addition to certain information asked in the population census. He must also state the number of days he worked for pay in 1929 on jobs not connected with the operation of the farm.

Must Know His Farm.

A man must be a good mathematician, for in the question on farm acreage, he must subdivide his land into crop land, pasture, waste space, area for house and yard and buildings, woodland, land able to be reclaimed, land suitable for irrigation —and the whole must equal the number of acres he lists in his farm. Farm values is the value of the land and buildings, the amount for which it would sell, and the values of all buildings, of the dwelling house, and the farm implements and machinery must each be listed.

Every farm operator is asked how many acres in this farm he owns, how many he rents from others, and whether or not he operates the farm as a hired manager. The government is interested in learning the status of the United States farmers. It would like to find out if we are becoming a nation of farm owners or of farm renters, if the farmer still owns and operates his farm, increase or decrease of absentee landlords.

In the livestock inventory livestock means all common domestic farm animals, poultry, and bees. Domestic animals are classified according to age and sex, cattle will be divided between beef and dairy, purebred and scrub stock. The classifications for all domestic animals will show the kind and the number by age and sex for not only the whole United States but also for each state and county.

Under miscellaneous information is listed a number of inquiries. Among them are the mortgage indebtedness, amount of taxes paid in 1929, modern facilities of the farm, and values of various minor products sold or traded, of certain commodities from the farm used by the family, and the gross receipts from lodgers, boarders and campers. This portion of the schedule also queries the number of persons residing on the farm who had moved from a city or incorporated place during the last year, and the number which had gone cityward within the same period.

Want Basic Facts.

The census of distribution is being taken to find out basic facts about our national distributing system in order that these facts may be used to make this system more efficient. Data is secured from every distributor or retail or wholesale merchant.

It will give a classified account of the various classes, types and sizes of retailers, wholesalers, and all other merchandising concerns in the entire country, their sales, expenses, inventories and employes. It will give as much information as possible concerning the goods sold by these various distributors. The effort will be concerned with recording the type of enterprise, co-operative, stock company, or individual ownership, principal lines and amounts of goods sold, number of employes, wages, amount of rent and interest paid, other expenses, and the stock on hand. The work has been simplified by arranging a different schedule for the different types of stores.

As the compilation of these statistics will help merchants, manufacturers, and farmers, and, eventually, the consuming public, so the manufacturers census will bring pertinent facts of manufacturing to others in the same industries and to those who use the products. Each manufacturing concern is to be visited by an enumerator to determine the products of the industry, material uses, number of persons employed, salaries and wages paid, total value of the products, and the type of power used. No attempt is being made in either census to obtain information concerning the profits of the industries, as there are no questions showing the gross margin between purchases and sales,

Smallest Gift Looms Largest in Favor of Lincoln Girl, Who Has Unique Hobby

When friends of Miss Gretchen Fee return from a winter in Spain or Easter week in Rome, they bring her the tiniest gifts they can find.

The smaller the present discovered for Miss Fee, the happier the homecomers from California or Connecticut, Quebec or Guadalajara.

Not that their interest in bearing gifts is measured by the size of any one of them. Rather is it in inverse ratio, for now and again one must do considerable poking about to find the small and the unique.

They have learned about gifts from the recipient.

For when Miss Fee goes traveling, she also presents herself with the smallest of the small.

Paris frocks, English etchings, Spanish shawls, Italian leathers may have their proper feminine interest for Miss Fee.

But she'll leave them all for another day to pursue one of her trifles into a dusty corner of a curio shop or to bring it into daylight from beneath larger and costlier but less enticing pieces.

Miss Fee is a collector of minutiae. Suits of armor and marble statues and Rembrandts have no place in this collection.

Two Cabinets Full.

It is only open to tinies. But if the two full cabinets of more than five hundred odd and fascinating bits of workmanship tell a tale, there's not much made on a grand scale that isn't reproduced in the most delicate miniatures.

Miss Fee became a collector by accident, rather than by intent.

As a little girl seven or eight years ago, she started her collection. Samples of soap and perfume were her first choice. Those early perfume bottles, chubby and very thin, tall and pencil-like, tall and rotund, short and plump, flat and broad, in the shape of dice, deer, mice, and swans, still retain their corner in one of her cabinets.

From that beginning has come a most unsual collection, parts of which would charm antiquarians. The window sill where the first pieces reposed soon was abandoned, and the old cabinet with its bottles and its first dolls soon grew too small. A new corner cupboard was installed, and it bulges with extra shelves.

Friends of Miss Fee know of her hobby, and they seldom return without bringing some tiny back to her. When she is traveling, she may have one eye on the scenery, but she keeps the other and at least half her interest for some bit of Dresden or china or wood.

Dogs Most Popular.

Dogs probably lead the list in numbers, and at last count some time ago, her cabinet kennels had sixty canines. They are in Dresden, iron, wood, bronze, china, ivory, and silver. One is an antique silver number, with a shamrock on his back. Another is a wicked little number in green china. There are dachshunds, collies, poodles, Great Danes, wolf hounds, setters, hunting dogs, police dogs, and just plain dogs to add their variety to the crowded dog shelf.

Miss Fee's first tiny has a place of honor. It is a minute eloisonne shoe in blue, which she picked up in Denver some time ago.

The tiniest tiny—and who shall not say the most extraordinary—is a pair of dressed fleas, with which some California soul passes her time in preparing, and which came to the collector from there. The magnifying glass reveals their past, even to their stiff little whiskers, and each one stands in his little box, about one-half inch square, which leaves plenty of room for the surrounding atmosphere.

Collectors of antiques and those with an eye for choice wares would be delighted with her old pewter set, aged and gray and worn in the proper fashion of the alloy. A small tea set, made several generations ago in Dresden, a replica of the one like grandmather uses. It has the fat little tea pot, cup and saucer, sugar bowl, and pitcher for hot water. As thought such a delightful set were not sufficient, with it is a tiny little candlestick, as though the doll users might need illumination to prepare their brew of tea.

It would be possible to furnish a miniature house from Miss Fee's cabinets. Just of a few of her little furnishings include a sewing machine, kodak, ash trays on standards, thermos bottle, perfect little ivory fire set, a book, and a candle. There is a fruit dish with fruit, coffee set, toast, tea sets in various styles and designs, shaving mirror, and knives of more or less deadly design. Nt all her tinies are antiques—one is the modern style iced drink set, with its glasses and spoons in its handled carrier.

Among the prides of Miss Fee's heart is one china tea set, quite elaborately painted. It is a copy of the tea set of the late queen dowager of England, Alexandra, from the original of which she presided at tea for her royal circle.

The ivories are lovely, some of them showing the most careful and delicate workmanship. In the ivory are elephants, large families standing in a row, single members promenading alone, or groups trumpeting to an unresponsive air, cats, lions, mice, pigs of varied colors, some not normally seen in the wayside pastures, dogs, a flyaway little cupid.

One clock does more than tell the time. It is a respository for dice. The most engaging little what-not, all fitted with its various bric-a-brac, is in ivory. An exquisite old pin, numbered among the antiques, is heavily carved, and within is an ivory deer. A little ivory flower pot has its ivory blossom, some one has fashioned a totem pole from the ivory, and another ambitious workman made a grand piano from the ivory.

An Ivory Automobile.

Quite outstanding is the automobile, the ivory duplicate of the first models that chugged along the highways, with their funny little seats and cramped bodies. It was an heirloom in the family of the donor.

A most interesting little clock tells the passing hour in an equally interesting fashion. It is a bird cage, made of fine gold wires, with the long-tailed bird in the gilded cage moving its tail backward and forward for the seconds. The dial is on a standard, on top of which is a basket of tiny eggs.

Miss Fee is a traveled young lady, but if she forgets her many journeys, she can make a map from the mementoes in her cabinets. Many of the states and most of the civilized countries of the world, and some where the veneer is very thin, are represented among her tinies.

A small black cat, that seems not to have brought ill luck, marks Southampton in her mind, and a bronze kitty, with wide whiskers, is a bit of Vienna. She has two tiny dogs from Dresden, and one pair of gray green, very graceful, pottery vases recalls Italy to her.

Wooden shoes, a sleigh with its driver, and a native doll mean Norway and around at the other side of the world is a lei from Hawaii. John and Priscilla and their spinning wheel came from Plymouth and a wooden basket of equally wooden, but very attractive, blossoms, came from the base of the Matterhorn. Pompeii sent a tortoise shell guitar, Gettysburg a very bright little canteen, and Mexico, a cocky little matador with his hat at an angle and seated on a rampant little steed.

Pair of Ancient Vases.

Miss Fee has a pair of Chinese vases two hundred years old, a skil jumper that should be from Sweden, but is from Paris, a carved farm set from Germany, and a tiny little mummy in a case, which she found in Gibraltar. A hair hat from Mexico, nut halves with scenes almost too small for the eye, a charm, the hand of Fatima from Algiers, and a very lovely virgin from Lisbon. In her cabinets is a Budda, a Viking boat from Norway, a painted totem pole, a skull from Pompeii's lava, and a wooden cow from Lucerne. A small Chinese tea set has the little handleless cups that are so fetching to view and so overly warm to use.

One of the daintiest of her collection is a wood coffee set, a century old. With it is an infinitelsmal candle stick, a half inch high and about a sixteenth in diameter, with its miniature hole for the taper. The tea set has a tiny grinder, sugar and cream, coffee pot, and cup and sucer.

A little reed powder box in bright blue has perfectly modeled wax flowers in miniature topping the cover. Included in the collection is a pigeon with a bright blue eye, two of them, in fact, of sapphire, two little black shoes with their bright hob nails, and a pair of vases dating from 1700. A tiny pearl-handled gun shoots with a very Chicago-like noise, and an Italian filigree gondola and a wedding chese are both very lovely.

Miss Fee has a furnished room—but not to let. It is a kitchen made in Munich. The small interior has its little grandfather's clock, blooming plants in the window, table prepared with food, spinning wheel, chairs, Dutch oven, pictures on the wall, and mirror.

For the front portion of the house there is a Dresden parlor suite. It has two chairs, davenport, table, and basket of flowers, which is two more pieces that one can purchase in adult size in a set. Another Dresden piece consists of two dancers, seated in posed ease on two yellow backed chairs, as though they were waiting for enough applause to give an encore.

An ivory ship upon an amber ocean is an exquisite bit of workmanship. A miniature skate, an umbrella which conceals its dice, a miniature salt dish, an old-fashioned ink well, a very small pack of cards, all ready for contract, and gon trail to the forks of the Platte, where the party divided, each of the two groups following a different route. Returning from his explorations, he arrived at Bellevue in October, 1842, undoubtedly glad to see the fire and the yellow lighted windows of the Sarpy post.

Fremont spoke kindly of the section. In Nebraska, he saw a little of the Nebraska it has become. He knew that the soil was rich and undoubtedly productive, he saw the thick grasses, which mean pasturage if the section could be developed, and he had eyes to see the beauty of the prairie landscape.

Noted Visitors at Bellevue.

Names that have endured gathered at Bellevue in those days that were forming a Nebraska. Peter A. Sarpy, Henry Fontenelle of the Omaha Fontenelles, Prince Maximilian, who traveled up the Missouri on the Yellowstone on its second voyage, George Catlin, early painter of Nebraska scenery and Indians, and Brigham Young were among those who visited Bellevue in the days when it is possible certain civic-minded Bellevue citizens were thinking if this should become a territory—and if Bellevue has this location—and if—and if.

For the first four years of the 1830 decade, this part of the world was without government, and had been since 1821. The fur traders and the Indians were always in trouble, and to end the disputes and worse, all land west of the Missouri river belonging to the United States outside of Missouri and Louisiana and the territory of Arkansas was made the Indian country, and placed under strict laws. Ten years later in December, Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois introduced the first bill to organize the new Nebraska territory. Nebraska was in the making then, with three more bills introduced before consent was gained for territorial formation.

The visitors to the Indian country, a part of which was to be the Cornhusker state, found life quite natural in those days. Instead of being given definite sections and told to stay there, newcomers might and did always meet the Red man in numbers on all sides. There were about 1400 Pawnee, 1600 Otoe and Missouri, 10,000 Pawnee, 800 Ponca, 10,000 or more Sioux, and another thousand or less of Iowa, Sauk, and Fox Indians roaming around, so that it is not always surprising that eastern guests or tradesmen doubted that this would be anything but Indian country. However, the natives probably felt the coming tide of civilization, for they were even then watchful, often sullen, generally resentful.

Missionaries Come In 1833.

It is probably that the white man's religion first came to Nebraska with the Rev. Moses Merrill and his wife. They settled at Bellevue in 1833 as missionaries to the Oto and Missouri Indians. The Pawnee missionaries, Rev. John Dunbar and Samuel Allis, came to Bellevue the following year.

What was to be Nebraska was the undeveloped frontier in that quarter of a century preceding its territorial organization. A few steamboats, of which the Yellowstone is the most notable, worked their way upward from St. Louis as far as the changing Missouri would let them. White fur traders plied their efforts, the missionary-teachers were bringing the gospel and its attendant lessons of health and mild education, the great streams of western travel was daily growing heavier and the train of freighters longer. Men looked with regret as Bellevue slipped into the river mists and they started toward the sunset, and peered with longing eyes toward Fort Kearny, which meant a night or so of gossip, safety, and fellowship before going out again onto the plains among the Indians, toward Laramie, with buffalo, coyotes, and prairie dogs for companionship on the way.

The river brought men in for the first years. Peter A. Sarpy established a ferry across the Missouri to Bellevue in 1842. Eight or nine years later, William D. Brown started a second ferry venture, with the flat ferry leaving Council Bluffs for the Nebraska shore.

Direction of Former Army Leader Enables Employes' Band to Become Pride of Burlington

Lower row: A. C. Jones, J. F. Mercier, Jack Ledgway, E. F. Comerford, C. R. Freeborn (secretary), Louis Janda, Ben Green (manager), A. C. Naruszewicz (director), L. M. Tuthill, Ira Dillon.

Anton Naruszwicz has been playing instruments and leading bands for a long time. Just about a decade ago, a courageous unit wearing uniforms with U. S. collar insignia stirred and soothed the flagging spirits of the doughboys in France. The boys are out of the trenches now, but Anton still lives with his music. For the past year he has waved his baton before what is officially designated as the Lines West Burlington route band, a group of Lincoln employes of the railroad that voluntarily organized themselves some two years ago.

Make Radio Debut.

The organization had made a modest beginning by January, 1929, but felt the handicap of having no competent leader. This they found in "Tony," as he is affectionately called. Since he became director, the unit has been officially recognized by the company, and has been sent on numerous occasions to play at public events. Among the forty appearances made in that period were at the dedication of the new depot at Cheyenne, Wyo., the Armistice day parade in Lincoln, the Diamond Jubilee parade in Omaha, and acted as the official band for the "Days of '76 celebration at Deadwood, S. D. On Saturday night, the band completed its introduction to the public by making its radio debut in the Spanish-American War Veterans' anniversary program over KFOR.

Born in Russia, and a graduate of one of the most famous music schools in that country, Tony came to the United States in his early twenties.

Joins Army.

After spending some months in New York City he joined the United States army. At the time of his enlistment he was unable to speak a word of English. Due to his musical talent he was detailed to assist in the organization of the fifty-third infantry band. In 1908 he was promoted to the position of chief musician of the band. During his time as a member of the band he played the clarinet, and also wrote music for the band.

Shortly after his promotion as chief musician he was again promoted to the rank of director and band master. In this position he served until 1917. He went to France as a director of music on the general staff, and with his band, he played at many rest camps and hospitals near the battlefields.

Near the close of 1917 he was suddenly transferred to the Sixth infantry band, an organization which had lost many of its members and had become greatly disorganized. Before the close of the war he had completely reorganized the band, and had it upon an efficient basis, as letters from chiefs of staff prove.

Leaves Army.

Upon the return of the expeditionary forces from France he was detailed to a training camp outside of Chicago. Within a short time he again joined the Sixth infantry band in Chicago, and, with their aid, served as a recruiting officer. While in this service he was detailed to the Polish section of Chicago and in less than three weeks he had signed more than four thousand recruits for the depleted infantry ranks.

Asked To Stay In Service.

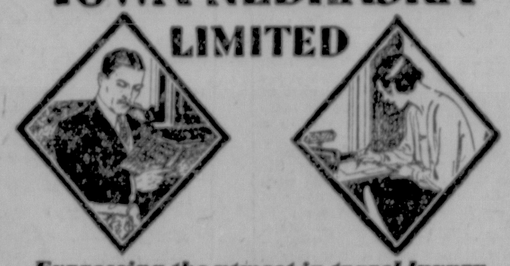

In 1920 Tony applied for his discharge. Letters of protest came to him from civil as well as military officials. General Pershing wrote a personal letter to him asking him to remain in the service as chief musician and bandmaster. Other members of the various staffs with which had come in contact were anxious that he not return to private life.

When he finally decided that he would retire, unsolicited letters from high officials in the military ranks came to him to aid in gaining a position after his retirement. An attractive offer was made to him by a Philadelphia concern to direct a band, but he had decided that he would go into business for himself.

With this thought in mind he returned to New York and established a repair shop. Not satisfied with his success he decided to come west, and shortly after left for Omaha. When he arrived in Omaha he heard of an attractive shop in Lincoln which he now owns and operates.

After Tony had taken the Burlington band in hand, but a few short months, E. P. Bracken, operating vice president of the road, designated the band as the official Lines West Burlington route band. A benefit party sponsored by the Traffic Tip committee, given at the university coliseum, provided needed funds with which to purchase more instruments, music and uniforms.

STORM SIGNALS.

Literally Charles Evans Hughes was confirmed for the distinguished post of chief justice of the United States supreme court by the skin of his teeth. A shift of one vote would have blocked Mr. Hoover's appointment. The tenseness and closeness of the battle is emphasized to an even greater degree by the reflection that had one of the regular republican majority been absent at the time the roll call was taken, Mr. Hughes would have failed of confirmation.

He is one of the outstanding lawyers in America. He was a former candidate for the presidency of the United States, a former governor of a great state, and a former member of a president's cabinet and a former member of the same court. His life has been filled with glowing deeds and achievements, and to a certain extent he has enjoyed an unusual measure of popular respect and esteem.

When these facts are recalled, it must be recognized that the great contest waged in the United States senate during the past week is significant and portentous. That a man of the superb talent of Mr. Hughes, of admitted personal integrity and honesty, of wide and useful experience should be subjected to such a withering fire of criticism as was directed against his qualifications is not natural. It invites analysis and study. It should serve as a warning to business and industry, particularly Big Business, and to political leaders in every section of America.

The fight against Hughes was not personal. It is merely the forerunner of a struggle which has been drawing nearer and nearer in these last few months and which may flame forth fiercely at any time now. The fitness of Hughes for the supreme bench was challenged because it was said he was the symbol of great corporate wealth in the United States. In his private practice of law in recent years he has applied the economic philosophy of these vast organizations of capital and industry. He has represented them in cases where their interest conflicted with what was conceived to be the public interest. He was a champion of their theories and their practices, and because he held those views, and spoke them so eloquently and so forcefully, he was not fitted for service upon the supreme law tribunal of this country.

There is a disposition to sneer and scoff at the United States senate because it discussed and fought over the appointment of Mr. Hughes. A great many people say Mr. Hoover's nomination should have been put through without delay and without a dissenting vote. But the constitution of the United States expressly provides it should do what it did. It expressly says that appointments by the president should be discussed by and voted upon by the senate. Certainly, then, Mr. Hoover and his appointee, Mr. Hughes, should take no offense because the senate performed its full duty in a thoroughly conscientious fashion.

The fact is President Hoover in appointing Mr. Hughes, and the latter in accepting that appointment, may have served their country far better than they realize.

America has been rushing pell mell and breathlessly into far-reaching and revolutionary business and industrial practices and methods. She has mocked and ridiculed every political principle to which she gave ardent, unswerving devotion for more than twenty-five years. She planted a smacking kiss upon the brow of Big Business—the very same fellow Roosevelt induced her to kick in the pants. She said the bigger the better, that this fellow had reformed, had been humanized, had become a regular guy who shared his pocketbook with everyone. And then she awoke. She heard the cries of mobs in Cleveland, in Philadelphia, in Milwaukee and in other American cities crying for work. She found unemployment had increased alarmingly, that wages were tumbling, and that after all the reformation which she had acclaimed, may not have been so thorough as she thought it was.

That is the full significance of the fight on Hughes. It is a symbol of economic trends. It is a warning that doubts have come to disturb the American people that these mergers and consolidations do not increase human happiness and accelerate human progress. Will business take this warning, or must it be a drawn fight to the finish?

The American people are not submissive and unthinking although frequently they are misled and confused. But once aroused they have a mighty capacity to correct mistakes and to punish those responsible for those mistakes.

It should not be forgotten that democracy owes no man a living but a civilization and a system of government which do not provide men with the opportunity to make a living are not fit to survive. When hundreds of thousands are thrown out of employment and beg piteously for a chance to use their hands and their brains then it is time to awaken to the true situation.

That fight in the senate last week was an echo of an old cry which has been heard in this country for more than half a century. It was not against Hughes, but directed towards what he has in popular imagination come to symbolize. It will be well to give it the respect which it merits for if it is contemptuously treated, it will add to its chorus the voices of millions of people who share its views.

A $30,000,000 ESTATE.

In 1915 a Wisconsin man drafted a 36-word will disposing of an estate at that time valued at $400,000. He died Tuesday and his holdings, it developed in probate court, had grown until he was worth $30,000,000 at the time of his death. The old will, leaving everything to his wife, will govern distribution of his wealth.

Either he had unlimited confidence in the business judgment of his wife, or he was exceedingly thoughtless and heedless. A man with the ability to amass a fortune of $30,000,000, it is reasonable to assume, would be sufficiently far-sighted and prudent to arrange for its conservation after he has passed into the beyond.

And yet the incident reveals one of the great weaknesses of many of America's business men. They are exceedingly cautious and careful in like in arriving at decisions affecting their property but they give no thought to what may happen after they are gone. There is no reason why any man should die today troubled with the thought that all he has labored to amass may be squandered and lost. There are agencies in existence which make it reasonably certain that his wealth may be kept intact to supply the necessities and luxuries which his family craves. If this Wisconsin millionaire previous to his death did establish a trust it is reasonably certain his fortune will be safe. If he did not then its preservation will depend entirely upon the business sagacity of the wife.

LINCOLN FINANCES.

The city council has a momentary obligation to meet. More than $6,500 must be raised to pay the appraised value of property to be condemned for a right of way for the re-routing of the new Cornhusker highway through the city north of Oak creek. Thus far every effort of the commisioners to find the cash, has been fruitless.

No more striking example of the pressing need of the municipality for more money with which to carry on business could be asked than is revealed in the present crisis. It is a crisis. The city is obligated to raise the amount. Until it does large sums voluntarily accepted as their own obligations cannot be spent inside the city by the railroad companies and the federal and state governments.

By raising slightly more than $6,500 and acquiring the right of way, the work can start at once. The railroads are ready to build bridges and state and federal agencies are prepared to start grading. To commence operations before the right of way is furnished will place both the carriers and the governments in the position of a trespasser on private property.

While the promoters of the plan fret over where the money is coming from, and while members of the council confer in an effort to evolve a plan whereby the amount can be acquired from private sources, apparently the only course open is to wait until September when a new budget is approved, and taxes begin to come in along in October or November. Then it will be too late for this year and the work will have to lay over until the spring of 1931.

Just one thing is responsible for this situation—failure of the people to vote additional funds a year or so ago when the council asked for them. The present council is now preparing to again submit a proposal. If it is denied nothing but repeated similar situations can be expected, with Lincoln receiving a setback that will be little short of tragedy.

Lincoln has far outstripped the half million dollars voted about ten years ago. So short are the funds that with the coming of September 1, this year, it is likely not a cent will be on hand to carry on activities between that date and the time money begins to come in on the new assessment.

During the past two years what money has been available has been spread out so thinly that only a fraction of the needs have been cared far. With College View a part of the city, the spread will be even thinner in the event the proposal to be submitted in August, fails.

Whether it carries depends considerably on how much longer the mayor and the council continue quibbling while attempting to frame the proposal. Much also depends on the leadership. The city needs money. The commissioners know it and should take the bit in their teeth, frame a policy, have their arguments prepared, and then go out and make a strenuous fight to put it across.

DANGEROUS SCHOOLS.

Lincoln citizens can readily sympathize with the feelings of the Chicago mothers and fathers who refused to let their children go to a school to which they had been transferred because the children would have to cross six unguarded railway crossings. Few are the pafents who care to have their children pass daily over even a single railroad crossing, so easily can children forget their surroundings in the midst of unrestrained play.

The Chicago situation has raised, however, an interesting problem. The school board threatened the parents with arrest for violation of truancy laws. No attempt was made to coerce them; the thing not going further than threats. The parents organized a temporary school of their own.

The whole situation is an indication of the dangers of excessively removing fundamental civic problems too far from the individuals concerned. No school board truly representing the parents of a district would deliberately force children to cross six unguarded railroads. It could not happen in a small community. It could only happen where control had been too far removed from the persons concerned.

No reasonable person would order or threaten arrest of parents who were intelligently giving their children the educational requirements demanded by the public school system. Parents on numerous occasions have employed private tutors for their children or sent them to small private schools. Such conduct was no different in its ultimate consequences than the action of the militant Chicago group which set up its "rump" school in a church.

The problems of civic and social life in this country need the application of the best thought of the nation. In essence, this can only be applied effectively by keeping thought close to the practical exigencies of life. A state system which ignores the welfare of children, and assails the protective interest of parents, can not hope to remain effective. The institutions which society has developed for its improvement must be made effective in the interests of society, not in the interests of some abstract theorizing if such institutions are to be preserved. Mechanization of life and industry, centralization of financial resources, the interwoven chain of economic connections, have not eliminated the fundamental hopes and desires of individual souls. The basic prerogatives of individual development must be preserved if a wholesome and progressive society is to be maintained.

AN ELEMENTAL INSTINCT.

An Oklahoma City father Thursday demonstrated the sublime heights to which parental love can rise. His tiny daughter had been given a dose of poison by her mother through mistake. The father decided upon a heroic course in an effort to save the life of the little girl. He himself swallowed some of the deadly drug, waited a short time while noting its reactions, and then took what he thought might prove an antidote. It did relieve him and he then gave the same simple remedy to his daughter.

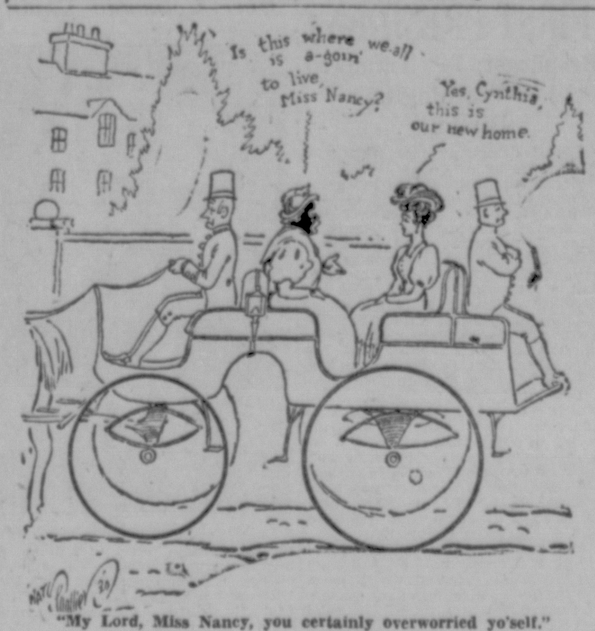

He deserved better success than that which rewarded his efforts. The girl died but it was lung trouble which killed her and not the poison.

One of the most glorious phases of life is parental love. It illumines fathers and mothers, strengthens them for sacrifices which call forth the greatest qualities of courage and daring. Countless mothers have denied themselves the ordinary comforts and pleasures of life in order that their children might have better opportunities. Hundreds of fathers have deliberately shortened their lives through overwork and strain that their children shall have their wish gratified.

That love is elemental in humankind and has not changed since the beginning of man. It is just as fierce and primitive, just as overwhelming, just as ennobling and inspiring as it was when the earliest mothers and fathers experienced the thrill which comes with the first cry of the new born babe. The veneer of civilization has changed the mode of living, the habits and thoughts of men and women but it has not altered in a single particular that instinct which impels the ordinary man or woman to die, if need be, for their children.

It is interesting at this time to recognize that Soviet Russia is attempting to stifle and crush that which is so much a part of men and women. It has been decreed that children born in Russia shall belong to the state. That part of the Soviet program was doomed to failure before it was put into effect. Parental love will overcome any obstacle.

Round The Acreage With Lady Astor.

"My Lord, Miss Nancy, you certainly overworried yo'self."

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I see in the old country. Of all the places I visited on this last trip to England, the one that really was the most impressive was the country place of Lord and Lady Astor. I had been lots of times at their London residence. But this one out about an hour from London was the real McCoy. Its got one of those long records that take you back and maby was where old Henry the 8th did a big percentage of his marrying. I expect Caesar was registered there.

Its right up on a hill overlooking the winding Thames river. I dont know the acreage but the chances are that old Cromwell filed on the original 160 acres, and then had all his hired help homestead on adjoining 160's, and then when they had proved up on em, why "Cronny" conveniently sent them off to some little Nicaraguan uprising. But before going he had them make their cross on some parchment, saying that in case of their not returning the holdings of the said cross'ee were entirely at the disposal of party of the first part, which was Cromwell. So the Astors practically hold all the country lying east of the Thames.

A Modest Place.

The house is a modest bungalow of not over seventy-five or a hundred rooms. Its laid out a good deal like Westminister Abbey, only without the towers. Its rambling, but still kept within the bounds of good taste. There is a landing field in each wing, where you can take off and make the dining room by lunch. The ceilings are high enough that they give you plenty of altitude for taking off and landing. The first room you enter is kind of a cosy corner. Its about ten acres cut off from the rest of the subdivision. But now they have made it a lovely homely place.

It was a lovely Sunday afternoon, the sun shining bright, a kind of a historic day for that time of the year near London. The door tender told me that Lady Astor was out in the tennis court and she had left word for me to come out, and sure enough she was out there. She was going it great guns. You know she has more energy, can get more things done in one day, and have more of them to do than any creature either male or female that I ever saw. Well she quit the tennis racket and when I started in blowing about what a place it was she said, "Come on I will show you around." We were then out in front of the main house, and I was gapping at it, and then she told me:

Right where you are standing is where my old colored woman, that I brought with me from Virginia when I was married, she got one look at the place and said to me: 'Miss Nancy is here where we all goin to live'? 'Why yes, Cynthia, here is our home.' 'My Lord, Miss Nancy you all done outmarried yourself.' Well what a kick she got out of repeating that old favorite of hers.

Then we started in to see this wonderful place. We walked for about three quarters of an hour then she saw a little old car there and she said "Come on we will ride." I asked her can you run this thing. Well then we commenced seeing the place right, a golf course, steeplechase course, flowers, beautiful colored pheasants running about, stables where he breeds his great thoroughbreds, and then we walked down a beautiful walk. There was a fine big monument with names on it. It was all the men killed in the war that worked on the estate. Then on down on the side of a beautiful wooded bluff or hillside, and there was a kind of a lovely sunken garden effect, about 100 feet long, and maby forty wide, in oblong shape, with a marvelous statue of an ange faced woman with arms outstretched, and she standing at the back and over this garden effect, facing a wide strip of clearing through the trees away down below so you could see out across the river.

She knew Them All.

What was in this spot? You wouldent guess in a million years. Well during the great war they had given up their place for a great hospital, they had used a part of the house and built in addition great temporary buildings and in this was the grave of boys who had died on their place, that lived in almost every country, both England and all overseas. The stones were laid flat over the graves, all of one shape and kind, with their names and home; several of our boys, Canadians, Australians. There must have been as many as fifty in all and she could stand at any grave and tell you about each boy. She knew them all personally. She had held the hands of many as they passed out.

She would move from grave to grave and tell you the characteristics of each. How she had promised one a wrist watch if he would live till she could go to London and buy it, and he did, and he had it on smiling as he passed on. How she would go into a ward and say, "Now you boys either got to die or get well, we are not going to have you sick here all the time." She is the greatest jollier in the world. If I was sick and dident even know her. I know of no one I would rather have come to see me. There she stood with tears in her eyes as she spoke of each boy as though he had been her own, and related stories of them.

This woman that can get up in the House of Commons and stand the "ragging" and "chaffing" of the roughest old politician, an American born woman, and first to s't in the great parliamentary halls of England, the center of every drawing room crowd, the famous Lady Astor, but here she was, just a plain mother, all the fight, all the alertness of mind, all the social graces, all the wit and sparkle gone, there almost under the shade of her great house lay buried these lads she had tried ot help and learned to love. She was just walking among "her boys."

Symbolic of Mother.

She had had a great artist do the statue, it was symbolic of the mother looking across these graves to the west, as they had "gone west." The spot had been consecrated for those of its religions that asks for that. One woman knew of her son being buried there and she wanted to move him. Lady Astor paid her way and had her come from Canada and when she saw the spot she said, "I wouldent move him for the world, no spot could be more beautiful than this." How many will turn their beautiful estates into a burial ground?"

And when I hear some political or social opponent ever say aught of her, I won't even go to the trouble of telling them of her wonderful heart. I will just smile satisfyingly to myself and rake up that vision of that woman walking among "Her Boys" with tears in her eyes yet telling jokes of each one. So let no woman, mother of a son, ever say evil against her.

Then we come back to the house and thats when I demanded the port wine instead of tea, and got it.

A Word of Praise.

University Place, Neb., Feb. 14

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I wish to tell you that I believe your editorial appearing in last evening's issues is the best in its line that has appeared to date with reference to the banking question. I wish it might be read by every member of the legislature.

If our people can only be big enough at this coming special session we can place Nebraska as a star of the first magnitude in the middle west. As a native son who loves the state of his birth dearly I know with a little self sacrifice on the part of its citizens, this horrible nightmare can be dispelled and our fair state can emerge into the sunlight of a new day and prosperity be apparent on every hand.

Are we big enough to do it?

JOHN M. McALLISTER.

A Republican Product.

College View, Neb., Feb. 13

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I am asking permission to add my mite to the discussions in the People's Forum of The Lincoln Star. I want to ask the older readers to go back to the time of President Lincoln. Saloons were unknown then, and only now and then a bar to be found, and then in a tavern or hotel. Liquors were to be had by the gallon or more from your grocer, who had such in barrels in the rear of his store. Nearly everybody had their liquors and yet a drunken man was a rare sight.

Then the republican congress of 1862 passed a tax bill that more than doubled the tax on liquors. Each successive session of congress boosted this tax and then began the adulteration, and consequent drunkenness, and then came the saloon.

Now I assert that the saloon as we know of, was entirely a product of the republican party, who has had seventy years of practically unbroken missrule. When the republican party found such a white elephant on the country, they got rid of it in the form of a grand piece of legislation as the Volstead law, that makes everybody good and times prosperous and a happy people, as witness conditions in Cleveland, Chicago, Washington, and virtually everywhere. Even Nebraska supplied eight thousand gallons of con-

Here and There

Catching the Procession.
(Chicago Herald-Examiner.)

Professional literary critics are now thumping tables and talking purple in praise of Ernest Hemingway. They have finally reached the point where they declare that his "Farewell to Arms" is the best novel written by any living American.

It would be intresting to know just what Hemingway, over in his simple Paris apartment, is muttering to himself. For the critics were slower than the reading public to recognize hs genus. They dismissed him as a newspaper reporter who "ought to stick to newspaper reporting." He stuck to creative fiction and he has emerged as a great and vital literary figure.

Determined writers might do worse than to ignore printed criticism during the period when their spirits are in danger of being carelessly crushed by tired sniffers.

Flowers of London.
(New York Times.)

During the past year England suffered from almost every variety of freak weather. The only consolation is that many misfortunes can be laid at its door. Anything from bad business to ill-favored vegetables can be attributed to the "unseasonable weather."

Just now London is suffering from a dearth of flowers, caused by the long drought last summer. Before Christmas the street sellers were offering violets and lillies of the valley in the Strand, a pleasant sight for tired eyes. But now flowers have become so scarce, and consequently so expensive, that flower girls have disappeared from the streets.

Carnations, tulips, roses and daffodils may be had, but only in the regular florist shops, and for a good price. Narcissi and chrysanthemums come a little cheaper, but are not especially fine specimens. Flowers from the Continent are late in arriving, so there are no reinforcements for the slim home crop.

Londoners will miss the flowers, which are generally to be bought more cheaply than in America. They will have to turn to the results of the Naval Conference for good cheer, and it is to be hoped that fog and bad weather will not have an untoward effect on the blooming of the flowers of peace.

High Theater Tickets in 1775.
(Kansas City Star.)

Comfort comes from the most unexpected sources. Thus, reading Professor Fay's new book, "Franklin, the Apostle of Modern Times," we discover that when Frank in was in London, just a trifle more than 200 years ago, gallery tickets in the theaters were selling at 50 cents and orchestra tickets from 75 cents to $2.50. And, if history is to be believed, money was then worth several times its present value.

Prefer Cars to Diamonds.
(St. Paul Pioneer-Press)

Belgium's diamond trade is suffering a depression greater than any since 1914. The trade of cutting and polishing the precious stones which centers at Antwerp is trying vainly to find the cause. Most of the merchants blame America for the new indifference to the attraction of the diamond.

Women all over the world who might be buying diamonds are buying American automobiles and riding in luxury. Other women are buying up-to-date labor-saving electrical contrivances made in America. Electric stoves, toasters, vacuum cleaners and refrigerators seem to contribute more to their contentment than many diamonds. Whereupon the diamond dealer rails at the fickleness and inconstancy of the fair sex. That helps not at all to lure feminine fancy back to articles of adornment.

Other Antwerp merchants qualify the sweeping charge of desertion leveled at the women. They say that the collapse of the American stock exchange has had its influence on diamond demand. There is also to be considered the recent penchant for wearing imitation stones so cleverly made as to rival the genuine, at a fraction of the cost of real gems. These are doubtless contributory factors in the diamond market slump.

But the fact that the American automobile and American electrical devices are regarded as competitive with diamonds is noteworthy. It may yet happen that the young man will be expected to present a fully equipped automobile instead of the customary solitaire and may even be called upon to substitute a complete electrical equipment for the home in lieu of a wedding ring. Antwerp just now feels that way about it.

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1929, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.
Philadelphia.

Will you give a list of recent theological books of real merit?

ANSWER.

Read Lippman's "Preface to Morals," Ellwood's "Man's Social Destiny," Eddington's "The Nature of the Physical World," Morrow's "Splendor of God," Niebuhr's "Leaves from the Notebook of a Tamed Cynic," Atkin's "The Making of the Christian Mind," "Effective Preaching," by various authors; McConnell's "Biography of Borden P. Browne," Barth's "Word of God and Word of Man," Kagawa's "Love the Law of Life," Orchard's "The Present Crisis in Religion," and the Abingdon Commentary.

QUESTION.
Macon, Ga.

I am a man who takes great pride in the achievements of my ancestors and have spent considerable money looking into various branches of our family. I received a rather severe jolt the other day when I discovered that one of my forebears had been hung in England, after being convicted by the crown. This has taken considerable wind out of my sails, as you can imagine, and I am somewhat at a loss to explain how a man of his circumstances could have come to such an end.

What do you think of pride of ancestry?

ANSWER.

It is justifiable if it induces in its possessors the resolution to emulate the worthy deeds of their forebears. Instances could be quoted of splendid service rendered for hundreds of years by single families, the generations of which kept pace with the advancing good of their respective times. Nor have social groups been lacking whose motto "noblese oblige," was fulfilled to the letter.

But in many instances the insolence and pride fostered by ancestral adulation go far to outweigh the benefits enumerated. The depressing spectacle of fond devotees of their household deities who should become "ascendants" instead of "descendants" has strongly counteracted aristocratic pretensions. In fact in free commonwealths superiority based on blood is openly challenged. Personal character is the rational test of a democratic society. It is foolish to argue that a man or woman inherits ancestral greatness any more than they inherit ancestral shame. To themselves alone they stand or fall. Scotland's most moving preacher in the last fifty years was an illegitimate child, and his luster shines the brighter against that natal cloud.

I regret to learn that one of your ancestors was hanged. But even this is better than for you to be the degenerate son of noble sires who himself deserves hanging. Do not worry about the rope dangling athwart your long line of descent. Perhaps after all the supposed villain was a hero of persecuting days, who gave his life for a worthy cause in which he proved it sweet to die. It is desirable to have fine traditions and revered names behind you. It is commendable to keep them unsullied. But there is something which far outranks these. Life's real achievement is to take a name which others have disgraced, and by your own integrity and courage lift it from the dust to the sky.

QUESTION.
Des Moines, Ia.

Can you tell me how to reconcile what scientific knowledge I have with the traditional theism about a Supreme Being? I am a student in college, and ask this question for others as well as for myself.

ANSWER.

Lord Kelvin, Geddes, Lloyd Morgan, Sir Oliver Lodge, Hans Driesch, Conklin, Matther, Pupin, Einstein, Slosson, Millikan, Osborn, Whitehead, Eddington and Steinmetz were or are scientists whose standing is not questioned by students of organized knowledge. They were also believers in a Supreme Being.

Other eminent scientists list themselves as agnostics on this issue. But their position only shows that if scientists themselves divide on the value of the evidence for God which science gives the evidence itself is not conclusive. So the great scholars and thinkers who believe in God do so for reasons other than those offered by science; while those who reject that belief refuse to give due weight to such reasons.

You will see, I trust, that the problem is not one of settling theism by science. It is rather the problem of an expanded theism which includes all the laws of nature as dependable modes of God's activity. This expansion leaves science free to do its needed work of investigating and utilizing those laws. And why not? Surely, increased knowledge of truth must end in increased knowledge of God!

Therefore the advance of science cannot invalidat the idea of God as th euniversal intelligence from whose activities the life and being of all else proceed. Pursue your studies, but do not allow a single branch of learning to monopolize your soul. You possess powers no science can fully engage and have necessities which nothing but faith is an act of the will, responsive to your personal requirements and to the vision of Himself which God vouchsafes to the sincere seeker.

DEAD SEA HAS NO OUTLET

(A. Edward Newton in the Atlantci Monthly).

The Dead Sea is, in itself, an interesting phenomenon. It is about 1,300 feet below the level of the not far off Mediterranean, and it receives its water chiefly from one source, the River Jordan.

There are no especially saline features in the basin itself and but few in the waters which enter into it, but there is no egress whatever. Water leaves the Dead Sea by evaporation only, and through countless millenniums such salt as there was has remained in the "sea," until now it is indescribably salty and bitter. The dryness of the atmosphere alone prevents the sea from overflowing.

I reminded myself of Dr. Johnson's remark to his biographer, in reply to his question, "Do you think the Giant's Causeway worth seeing?" "I do, sir, but not worth going to see." That is exactly my opinion of the Dead Sea.

The M. O. club members were 7 o'clock dinner guests of Mrs. Edward Plouzek Thursday evening. Covers were arranged for eleven. The after-dinner hours were spent socially.

The Venus club was entertained Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. W. Sedlacek. The affair was in the nature of a valentine party and after a short business session, a valentine program was enjoyed. Late in the evening a two course luncheon was served at one large table.

The Pythian Sisters' kensington met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Ray Whitney as hostess, and Mrs. Rudy Hokuf, assisting hostess. The time was spent in quilting for Mrs. Whitney, and at 4:30 o'clock the sixteen members present enjoyed a plate lunch.

Mrs. Eugene Haylett presided at a 1 o'clock luncheon, Thursday in the Colonial room of the Cosmopolitan hotel, at which time she entertained the members of the Entre Nous club. Old fashioned ladies in pink and white formed the combination place cards and tallies. Following the luncheon, tables for bridge were arranged at the home of Mrs. Waldo Keitges. High award was presented to Mrs. R. H. LeRoy and

Annual Banquet is Held by University Alumni at Seward

SEWARD, Neb., Feb. 15—The annual banquet of the Seward county alumni association of the University of Neebraska was held Saturday evening at the chamber of commerce. Sixty-five members attended and were seated at one table in U shape with flowers and appointments carried out in scarlet and cream. Mrs. Vera Hughes, president of the association, presided as the toastmistress and Prof. Barbour of the geological department of the University of Nebraska was guest speaker. The broadcast of the charter day program from the university, a feature of the evening, was followed by dancing. At present there are 73 Seward county students attending the university.

Mrs. H. A. Hershberger and Mrs. H. Heumann were hostesses at two affairs of the week given at the Hershberger home. On Wednesday, thirty-two guests were entertained at a 1 o'clock luncheon. Table appointments were of valentine suggestions. The afternoon was devoted to bridge with Mrs. John Oaks winning high score and Mrs. Ben Norval consolation. Friday evening a 7 o'clock dinner was served to thirty-six guests at small tables decorated with red hearts. The evening was spent at bridge.

Mrs. Clemens Schwabe presided at a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Windsor hotel Monday. Covers were arranged for sixteen guests at one table centered with red carnations. Red tapers in crystal holders were placed at the ends of the table and red hearts and cupids were used attractively to carry out the color scheme. The afternoon was spent at bridge at the Schwabe home with Mrs. Harry Rigdon winning high score.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Klute were hosts at an evening party at their home Friday. Seven tables of players spent the evening at bridge followed by a late supper with valentine appointments. Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bettenhausen of Lincoln were out-of-town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Ayres entertained at a seven o'clock dinner at the Community club Wednesday. Red roses and red tapers in crystal holders decorated the long table with places for thirty-six guests. Clever favors in valentine design were used for place cards. Bridge was the diversion of the evening with high scores being won by Mrs. Herman Weiler and Arthur Bek. Miss Rennie Ayres of Central City was an out-of-town guest.

Mrs. Weiler Hostess.

Mrs. Herman Weiler was hostess to sixteen guests at an evening party at her home Saturday. At bridge Mrs. Fred O'Bannon held the high score. A late luncheon was served with valentine appointments.

Mrs. D. Mayland celebrated her eightieth birthday at a family dinner at her home last Sunday. Those present were her children, Henry, Will, Charles, Mrs. Otto Meyer of Seward, Mrs. Van Slonecker of York and families.

Mrs. F. E. Thomas and children of Omaha were present at a family dinner given in honor of Mrs. Thomas's mother, Mrs. S. B. Nunemaker, who was celebrating her eighty-first birthday Wednesday.

Mrs. J. J. Thomas was hostess to the Afternoon Bridge club at a 1 o'clock luncheon at her home Thursday. Sixteen members were seated at one table centered with lavender sweet peas. At bridge, Mrs. W. S. Williams held high score.

Mrs. Walter Herpolsheimer entertained the Sew and So club at her home Wednesday afternoon. Ten guests were present and the afternoon was spent socially followed by an early supper. Red hearts were used for decorations.

Mrs. L. H. Diers and Mrs. I. N. Kuhl were hostesses to thirty-two members of the Community club at a six o'clock dinner at the club on Thursday. Valentine favors appointed the tables. The evening was spent at bridge.

The Elite club met at the home of Miss Inez Peterson Wednesday evening. Various games formed the evening entertainment with prizes being awarded to Miss Nellie Gumbel and Loleta Applegate. Refreshments were served at small tables attractively decorated with valentine novelties.

The Magazine club met Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Green. Rev. Harry Hansen had charge of the program, his subject being, "Present Trend Toward the Church Unity." Refreshments were served?

Commerce Members Guests.

Sixty-five members of the Seward chamber of commerce were guests of the Milford organization, at a dinner given at the Masonic hall Thursday evening. Dr. J. G. Muir, president of Milford chamber of commerce as master of ceremonies introduced the principal speakers, Rev. Runyon of Wahoo, Rev. Travis of Lincoln and Harry A. Cummins Seward president.

The following births have recently been announced at the Seward hospital Jan. 31, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ficke, boy, Pleasant Dale. February 7, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Schlueter, girl. February 13, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Kellner, boy. February 11 Mr. and Mrs. Otto Zienke, girl, Waco. Mrs. Zienke was formerly Miss Sadie Vorderstrasse, a nurse at the hospital.

The churches and schools will resume activities Sunday after being closed a week by orders of the Seward board of health. The recent meningitis cases at Garland and the smallpox at Seward made this action advisable.

The marriage of Miss Lydia Ebers daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ebers and John Scott, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. I. Scott of Lincoln took place at Clarinda, Iowa, February 8. Mr. and Mrs. Scott will make their home at 1343 Peach street, Lincoln.

Celebrate Wedding Day

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pittenger were at home to their friends Wednesday at their home, 873 North Twenty-sixth street, in honor of their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Pittenger have made Lincoln their home for ten years, coming here from Beatrice, where they had resided for fourteen years. Immediately after their marriage, they resided on a farm near Diller, removing from there to York.

We All Want Larger Incomes

There isn't a man or woman anywhere whose money is bringing in from 4% to 5% but who has the desire to have it earn 6% or 7% provided it could be placed at this higher rate where it would be equally as safe as on the lower earning basis.

There isn't anything mysterious about business. Many people think it mysterious—they think of it as complicated and difficult to understand; but the fact is, business, whether it is big or little, is simply putting money to work, and successful business is the art of making this money earn an income greater than the cost of operation and the rate of interest the business man pays for the money. An interesting phase of business operation is that an increased volume of business of, say, 25%, 50% or 100% over the usual volume will earn a much larger percentage of income than can be done on the regular volume. Take our own case as an example:

Woods Brothers Corporation can take on additional construction work from year to year to the amount of several million dollars. To do this involves additional equipment and working capital, which means cash outlay, but we make a much larger percentage of profit on this additional work. That is, the last million which we take on returns a much greater proportionate profit than the first, second, third or fourth million. We have to provide more equipment, but it does not involve any more office buildings or executives; it doesn't materially increase the overhead.

That's why we offer to the public our preferred stock which pays 7% annual dividends. Its security as an investment rests in the earnings of the corporation and the accumulated assets. Our assets now exceed $11,000,000. During the past 19 years since our business was incorporated we have paid to our stockholders regular quarterly dividends. Four years out of five we have increased our undivided profits; that is, earnings that we have made above operating costs and interest charges. Today our undivided profits exceed a million dollars. Occasionally in any business a year comes along that, thru some unforeseen conditions, profits cannot be made. We have been in business 40 years and we know, as every business man of long experience knows, that every year cannot be a profitable year. Consequently we accumulate and leave in our treasury this surplus to tide us over an occasional bad year. Our present surplus would tide us over a number of such years and still allow us to pay dividends regularly to our stockholders.

With the expansion of our business we have an unusual opportunity to increase our earnings. We provide the money for the necessary outlay to handle this business thru the sale of our preferred stock. This will make a safe investment for you and a larger income than you can ordinarily get elsewhere. Come in and talk with us about it or write us.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I am a regular reader of the Movie Fans' letters and your answers, and I thought you might be able to tell me what I would like to know, so here goes. What has become of Constance Bennett, William Collier, Jr., and Ruth Mix? Are they retired?

I would like to know everything you can tell me about the following: where born, how old, height, real name and if married: James Hall, Rex Bell, Stanley Smith, Mitzi Green, George Lewis, Tom Tyler, Nancy Carroll and David Rollins.

My favorites are Clara Bow, Joan Crawford, Billie Dove, Bebe Daniels, Dolores Del Rio, Alice White, Mary Brian, Mary Pickford, Dorothy Gulliver, Sue Carol, Nancy Carroll, Colleen Moore, Fay Wray, and Janet Gaynor.

Among the men I like Buddy Rogers, Jack Stone, Frankie Darro, Tom Tyler, Nick Stuart, Gary Cooper and Bob Steele.

Although I have quite a list of favorites, I like Clara Bow, Nancy Carroll, Buddy Rogers, Bob Steele and Barry Norton best. I think they are swell players and very nice looking.

What is Barry Norton's, Buddy Rogers', Clara's and Bob Steele's next pictures?

Just one more question, then I will take my leave. Will the girl who advised girls not to join Hollywood and said her uncle, I believe it was, is a director and one of the stars her cousin, please write to me? Her letter was the first thing in either January 12 or January 5 Sunday Star. I would like very much for her to write me. She can secure my address through you. A REAL LOVER OF MOVIE STARS, Aurora, Neb.

Such a long list of favorites. I should say you just about love them all.

William Collier, Jr.,'s latest is "College Coquette."

Ruth Mix has no new picture announcements.

James Hall was born in Dallas, Texas, twenty-nine years ago. He is single at present, but is thinking seriously of taking the fatal step to the altar. Mr. Hall is five feet eleven inches tall, and I've never heard him called by any other name.

Mitzi Green is only nine years old. She is the daughter of Joe Keno and Rosie Green, a famous vaudeville team, and was born in New York. Mitzi grows so rapidly it's no use keeping a record of her height.

Rex Bell claims Chicago as his birthplace, twenty-four years ago. He is six feet tall, and was christened, George Beldam. He is single, and so is David.

Mr. Rollins lacks an inch and a half of being as tall as Rex. He is only twenty, and was born in Kansas City.

Stanley Smith is another youngster from Kansas City. He is six feet tall, and single.

George Lewis is married to Mary Louise Lohman. He was born in Mexico City, Mex. in 1903, and is five feet ten in height.

Port Henry, New York was Tom Tyler's birthplace, twenty-six years ago. Tom is a big boy, an inch over six feet in height. I've never heard of any other name for him, nor of a Mrs. Tyler.

Nancy Carroll is Mrs. Jack Kirkland in private. She is from New York City, five feet four inches tall, and twenty-two years old.

"The Saturday Night Kid" is Clara Bow's latest release. She will start work on another picture soon, probably "Quarantined."

Buddy Rogers is working on "Young Eagles." His next is "Safety in Numbers." I have no recent picture announcements for Bob Steele or Barry Norton.

Dear Movie Editor—I have never written before, but I've been a faithful reader and Ithink you have a wonderful corner.

I do not remember the title of a show shown here recently, featuring Marion Davies. She was a French girl, and it was a war picture. Do you happen to know the title? Who played opposit her?

He certainly was a marvelous singer. Who was the man that played the song, "I Get a Lump In My Throat?

Bessie Love and Anita Page are my favorites, along with many others. Will you please tell me their age, weight, real names, birthplaces and their address.

Clara Bow certainly strikes me right. She was swell in "Dangerous Curves" and "The Week End Party." Who played opposite her in "Dangerous Curves?" Nancy Carroll and Betty Compson are both good, too.

Did Betty Compson play in "Weary River?"

Richard Barthelmess, Charles King and Buddy Rogers are my men favorites.

Will you please give me the cast for "Oh, Yeah!"

What is Billie Dove doing now?

This is my first time writing you, so I hope you'll excuse me for asking so many questions. Thanking you in advance, I am a CUBAN GIRL.

I'm sure you will enjoy the page much more now that you have decided to take an active interest in it.

"Marianne" is the picture to which you refer, in which Marion Davies was the star. Lawrence Gray was the leading man in the talking picture, and Oscar Shaw had the honor in the silent version. Cliff Edwards played "Soapy" and Benny Rubin was "Sam."

Bessie Love's name was originally Horton, and she was born in Midland, Texas, but spent most of her school years in Los Angeles. Bessie is only five feet tall and weighs 100 pounds. She has recently become Mrs. Hawk. Bessie was born in 1898, and you may write her and Anita both at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Cal.

Anita's name was Pomares, and she was born in Flushing, Long Island just nineteen years ago. She's about five four in height and weighs 115.

Richard Arlen played opposite Clara in "Dangerous Curves."

Yes, Betty played in "Weary River" with Richard Barthelmess.

The Duncan girls are really sisters, and very much devoted to each other. Rosetta is the older. Vivian is the one that's engaged to Nils Asther. You will see them "as is" in "It's a Great Life," as Rosetta does not apply her blackface make-up.

Billy Dove is working on "Sweethearts and Wives," at the First National Studio. Sidney Blackmer is her leading man.

Here is your cast for "Oh Yeah:" "Dude," Robert Armstrong; "Dusty," James Gleason; "Pinky," Patricia Caron; "The Elk," Zasu Pitts; "Pop Eye," Bud Fine; "Hot Foot," Frank Hagney; "Splinters," Harry Tyler; "Superintendent,' Paul Hust.

Dear Movie Editor—Now get in a pretty good resting place for you'll have quite a long list to answer. I was reading in the paper of Miss Inquisitive No. 2's letter not reaching you, and the same thing happened to me.

How does a person get in to the movies?

I'm tired of everybody knocking Clara Bow and Mary Brian. Clara is my favorite, and so is Buddy.

What I think is disgusting are the western shows. There's nothing to them. They all turn out the same. As soon as you see one you have seen them all.

All I'm asking is for people to lay off knocking people. I'm with that guy Johnny, who said, "If you can't say anything good about a person, why say it at all?"

I haven't heard anything bad or good about Lupe Velez. I think she is wonderful. Of what nationality is she?

Please give me the ages of Anita Page, Clara Bow, Lola Lane, Greta Garbo, Buddy Rogers, Jack Mulhall, Jackie Coogan and Lupe Velez.

Is Clara married yet? I heard she was engaged. If so, who to? I was wishing Clara would never get married. She is not going to quit the movies is she? Please give me the cast of "The Saturday Night Kid."

I don't see much of Don Alavarado. Has he quit?

I guess I'd better ring off and give the rest a chance. Thank you,

JUST LUPE,
[illegible], Nebraska.

Perhaps you didn't look long enough for your letter, Lupe. If they reach me, they are printed, unless for some reason they require a personal reply. It is often a month or more after you write before your letter is answered, because of the long waiting list.

Right now the best way to get into the movies, is to be an opera star, a famous stage player, or a famous dancer and singer. With the advent of the talking pictures, an entirely different type of player came into being in the movies. An inexperienced person has very little chance in Hollywood just now, even in the extra ranks. Of course, if you could qualify as a linquist, you might get in as extra in some of the foreign versions that are being made, otherwise its the voice with a personality and the feet that can dance that are called just now.

The Central Casting Bureau is the medium whereby a player is employed by a studio. All of the big studios are expected to draw their talent through this bureau—that is ordinary talent, such as characters and extra work.

Personally, were I Clara Bow, Mary Brian, or any of the other players under discussion, I'd much rather be talked about in any way, than not mentioned at all. I'd rather be at least enough interesting to make some sort of an impression, than so perfect and insipid that I couldn't be discussed. It's talk or mention in some form that keeps a player in the limelight, and once they are of sight, htey are out of mind so far as the public is concerned.

Lupe is a little Mexican girl, twenty years old.

Anita was born in 1910. Clare is twenty-four, Lola's also in the early twenties. Buddy is twenty-five, Greta has passed twenty-three; Jack Mulhall was born in 1889; and Jackie is fifteen.

Clara is still single at this writing, and hasn't even set a wedding date. Harry Richman is the young man to whom she announced her engagement. Her contract calls for her services for two years yet at the Paramount studio.

You will see Mr. Alvarado with Dolores Del Rio in her next release, "A Sailor's Sweetheart." He is moderately busy most of the time.

The cast for "The Saturday Night Kid" is: "Mayme," Clara Bow; "Bill," James Hall; "Janie," Jean Arthur; "Lem Doodruff,' Charles Sellon; "Ma Woodruff," Ethel Wales; "Ken," Frank Ross; "Miss Streeter," Edna May Oliver; "Ginsberg," Heymen Meyer; "Jim," Eddie Dunn; "Pearl," Leone Lane; "Hazel," Jean Harlow.

Dear Movie Editor—I've come to say "hello" and ask a lot of questions about my favorite stars.

Tell me all about Jack Mulhall, please, color of hair and eyes, age, and height. Is he married and if so to whom? Same about Rudy Vallee and Charles Farrell.

Did Bessie Love ever live in Lincoln? If so, when?

Please give me the cast of "Prisoners," "Companionate Marriage" and "The Vagabond King."

How old is Lupe Velez? Also Grant Withers, Ronald Colman, Bessie Love, Helen Kane and Olive Borden?

Who is Charles Mack Brown's wife? Does she act in pictures?

Why doesn't Ben Lyon, Ralph Forbes, William Bakewell, Bebe Daniels and George Lewis act more?

My letter is getting a little over the boundary line, so I will say "goodbye." Lots of luck in 1930 is my wish to you.

DIXIE,
Havelock, Nebr.

Thank you for your kindly wishes. I feel that I am unusually lucky to have the opportunity of receiving letters from so many Fans.

Mr. Mulhall has been a screen favorite for ever so many years, in fact his career dates way back to the days of the old Biograph company. He was born in New York in 1889, and educated at Columbia university. Mr. Mulhall has brown hair and blue eyes, is five feet eleven inches tall and weighs 150. He is married to Evelyn Winans.

Rudy Vallee was born at Westbrooke, Maine, twenty-six years ago, and is still single. He's a blonde and his real name is Hubert Prior Valee. He's a six footer.

Charles Farrell is a native of Onset, Massachusetts, and a graduate of Boston university. He is six feet two inches tall and weighs 170. The wedding bells have not yet sounded for Charles, either.

Bessie Love never lived in Lincoln, but she did visit here with Mrs. McKelvie at one time. It has been about ten years ago. Bessie was born in 1898.

And while we are on the age question, I may as well tell you that Lupe is twenty; Grant gave his age as twenty-four when he applied for a license to marry Loretta Young; Mr. Colman was born in 1891; and Olive Borden is twenty-two. Helen Kane prefers to leave us in doubt as to her age.

The cast of "Prisoners" is: "Riza," Corinne Griffith; "Nicholas," Ian Keith; "Sebfi," Otto Matiesen; "Kore," Baron Von Hesse; "Lenke," Julanne Johnston; "Aunt Maria," Ann Schaeffer; "The Man," Bena Lugosi; "Warden Rimmer," Charles Clary.

Here is the cast for "Companionate Marriage:" Cally Williams, Betty Bronson; Judge Medeith, Alec B. Francis; Mr. Williams, Wm. J. Welsho; James Moore, Edward Martindel; Mrs. Williams, Sarah Padden; Mrs. Moore, Hedda Hopper; Donald Moore, Richard Walling; Tommy Van Cleve, Arthur Rankin; Ruth Moore, June Nash.

I wonder if you didn't mean "The Vagabond Lover, instead of "The Vagabond King." "The Vagabond King" features Dennis King and is not yet released. I'm going to take a chance and give you the cast for "The Vagabond Lover: Rudy, Rudy Vallee; Jean, Sally Blane; Mrs. Whitehal Marie Dressler; Officer Tuttle, Charles Sellon; Swiftie, Norman Peck; Sam, Danny O'Shea; Sport, Eddie Nugent; Mrs. Tod Hunter, Nella Walker; "Ted Grant, Malcolm Waite; Manager, Alan Roscoe; Dudy Vallee's Connecticut Yankees.

Mrs. Charles Mack Brown is a non-professional. She has never been in the movies.

You will see Ben Lyon soon in a super-production called "Hell's Angels." He takes the role of an aviator, and he needs no double, either, because he can pilot a plane to perfection.

Ralph Forbes plays with Corinne Griffith in her current release "Lilies of the Field," and Bebe Daniels is working all the time. Didn't you see her in "Rio Rita." Her latest is "Love Comes Along." I have no recent announcement for Mr. Lewis, but William Bakewell is working in "Miss Kitty Bellaires."

Dear Movie Editor—Although I haven't written to you for ages, I have never missed reading your page. I have been very busy with my studies.

I would like to have some information about the leading man in "Glorifying the American Girl." I think he is very good looking. Is he a new star? What was the name of the girl he married in this picture?

I wonder why Ramon Navarro isn't more popular with the Fans. I don't see many questions about him in your columns. I saw "Devil May Care" and I thought it was very good. Ramon certainly can cat, and he has a wonderful voice. What was the theme song for the play?

What has become of Lois Wilson? I haven't heard from her for a long time. What is her next picture? I think she is a good actress and she has such a good voice, too.

Will you please give me the date of Sally Blane's birthday? Are there any stars whose birthday fall on either the second or fifth of February?

I guess I had better stop before you grow tired of reading all of these questions.

I hope your readers wont follow the advice of one person who wrote in your columns, saying something about don't say anything if you can't say something nice. I like to hear the pro and cons both, and enjoy very much other people's views on pictures and the stars. I enjoy discussing them, so I hope all of your readers don't stop writing their opinions, even if they aren't for the star or the picture. I like both sides of the questions.

Thanks very much for answering my questions. Wishing you good luck, THERESA.

Don't desert us so long again. I wondered what had happened to

The Musical World

THE ROBBINS STUDIOS.

On Wednesday evening, February 26, the Robbins Folk Song Singers will appear in costume program for the business women of St. Paul church.

Ethel Kudrna, mezzo-soprano, was the soloist for the Cornhuskers at the program and banquet, last week. Ruth Randall, accompanist.

Gladys Loetterle, contralto, has been selected for the university girls' octette. Miss Loetterle appeared on the Sigma Alpha Iota musicale at the home of Mrs. Joseph Grainger, Tuesday evening.

The Bel Canto Oratorio society will repeat the dramatic oratorio "Ruth" by Cowen, in the near future. The members have begun the study of Costa's "Eli" for presentation in the spring. New members are now being received for the balance of the year. For try-outs consult the director, Edith Lucille Robbins.

Edith Lucille Robbins gave an illustrated lecture-recital on "Carmen" Thursday evening, for the Business and Professional Women's club of this city. The program will be repeated for members of the piano and voice departments of these studios, with special guests, in March.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The public is invited to the program to be given this evening at St. Paul church by the school symphony orchestra, under the direction of Carl Frederic Steckelberg.

Maryel McCormick, student with Vera Upton, Ruth Hird, student with Herbert Schmidt, and Naomi Randall, student with Charles B. Righter, gave a program for the ladies of the Second Presbyterian church last Tuesday afternoon.

The Augustana college choir of Sioux Falls, S. D., a nationally known group, will appear in concert in Lincoln April 25 at St. Paul M. E. church, under the auspices of Trinity Lutheran choir. O. H. Sunderman, director of the Trinity choir, is serving as local manager.

Under the direction of Carl R. Youngdahl, the singers made their first tour in 1920, and have made an annual tour since that time. They have visited the Pacific coast, Chicago, where they sang before the National Federation of Music clubs, and many other places. Last summer, the group of fifty choristers made a month's tour, which took the choir to Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Niagara Falls, Albany, New York City, and Boston. In the latter city, the group appeared in Symphony hall before an audience of 5,000, which was thrilled by the brilliancy of the singing.

Charles E. Watts writes of the Boston concert in the "Music News" as follows:

"The Augustana college choir of Sioux Falls, S. D., admittedly one of the best ever developed in America, which has been giving extraordinary successful concerts all over the country, sang a splendid program and did it with ease, a beauty of tone and conception of text value which was wonderful. The conductor is Carl R. Youngdahl, a musician and an artist of first rank."

"Blue Danube" Waltz Observes Birthday; Retains Popularity

"The Beautiful Blue Danube," the most beautiful of the 200 waltzes composed by Johann Strauss, "The Waltz King," observed the sixty-third anniversary of its introduction to the public last Thursday. The melody is based on a Viennese folk tune, many great masters having proclaimed it the world's most beautiful waltz.

It first was played in Vienna Feb. 13, 1867 by a Viennese choral society. Its success was immediate and spread throughout Europe. In Austria, however, it became almost a national anthem and was played on all festive occasions. It was introduced to America in 1872 when Strauss made his only visit to this country. He conducted "The Blue Danube" waltz at the World's Peace Jubilee in Boston, a chorus of 20,000 voices and orchestra of 1,000 musicians participating in the performance.

Long the outstanding favorite of the ballroom, its popularity in recent years has been eclipsed by jazz. But the radio and talkies are musically educating the public, according to many authorities, who predict "The Blue Danube" will regain its partially lost fame. Many radio programs of both classical and popular music are now featuring the waltz. Walter Damrosch has announced it will be included in his music appreciation hour Feb. 28.

you. You have sort of grown up with the column, haven't you?

Edward Crandall was the young hero of "Glorifying the American Girl." He is a recruit from the legitimate stage, and my information is very meager concerning him. Olive Shea had the role of "Barbara" in the picture.

Ramon is no matinee idol, but he has a good well balanced following among the fans. I usually have a flood of questions after each picture he makes. The four feature songs in "Devil May Care" are "The Shepherd's Serenade," "Charming," 'If He Cared, Why Waste Your Charms," and "March of the Old Guard."

Miss Wilson is working with Jack Mulhall in "Murder Will Out.' She takes time off between pictures to appear on the legitimate stage in Los Angeles.

Sally Blane was born July 11, 1910.

There are no birthdays listed in the days you mention in February, but Eddie Nugent comes pretty close. His is on the seventh. Mary Brian, Adolph Menjou and Jack Luden also celebrate their birthdays in February.

Children of Needy Families Rid of Deformities at State Institution

There is no object in all the world that attracts so much sympathy as a crippled child. And that explains in a very large measures why the work of rehabilitation being done at the Nebraska Orthopedic hospital atrracts so much attention and has universal approval as one state intitsution deserving of generous appropriations of public money.

At this institution located at Lincoln, such deformities as clubbed feet, clubbed hands, cleft palates, harelips and other defects with which children are born, are successfully treated by skillful surgeons and nurses. Deformities due to disease, such as infantile paralysis, tuberculosis of the bone and various bone infections, and deformities due to accidents are also treated.

Home Waiting List.

To the fullest extent within their limited means, the members of the state board of control, by whom the hospital is conducted, are generous with the purchase of hospital equipment. A modern and complete operating room with all necessary equipment for orthopedic treatment is maintained. During the course of a year several hundred cases of deformities are treated. The hospital has a capacity of 100 children, and there is a large waiting list.

Almost daily children who came to the institution crippled and unfit are discharged either cured or so far advanced in treatment that their ultimate rehabilitation from deformity is certain.

While the children are undergoing treatment, they are also in school. Instruction up to and including the eighth grade is given in the institution. Special teachers from the Lincoln schools give instruction in high school branches to children that far advanced.

Various kinds of handwork are provided to keep the youngtsers busy at some easy labor certain periods of the day. Other periods are devoted to entertainment. There is a radio in every ward. Frequent entertainments are provided in the assembly room by Lincoln organizations and by the nurses. A well stocked library entertains and instructs the older children. The training of children under the care of the state while they are undergoing rehabilitation assures parents that their loved little ones are in safe and thoughtful care.

Admission to the hospital is denied to all children whose parents are able to provide treatment for them. But a deformed child whose parents are financially unable to procure treatment for him or her will be promptly admitted from any Nebraska home upon guaranty by parents or the county where the child resides that transportation to and from the hospital will be furnished and clothing provided. After a child reaches the hospital the state of Nebraska is his generous host until his discharge, no matter how long that may be.

Plan New Building.

The institution is accredited to class A by the American College consists of a superintendent, four of Surgeons. The nursing staff supervisors and sixteen student nurses. A modern home is provided for the nurses. A dentist is employed to look after the children's teeth.

In many instances the treatment of a deformed child is a slow process. He may come to the hospital undernourished or in a run-down physical condition. He must then be treated in preparation for the surgical correction of his difficulty. And after the surgeon's work has been successfully done the child may have to be kept until he is completely restored to health before he can be sent back to the environment from which he came.

A new building, plans for which are now being drawn, will be erected this year. It is to cost $100,000 and will be constructed on open ground just west of the present main building. It will be a modern hospital structure, much better adapted to the work of the institution than the present hospital, which was formerly a children's home and later converted into a hospital by the state.

W. JOSEPH COFFMAN.

Stromsburg, Neb., Febr. 13

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The prohibition inquiry of congress is loud and empty, just like any common ordinary barrel. What the wets lack in argument and reason they supply by noise. This has been the way ever since Adam.

The wets claim that prohibition is a failure because some people drink, and because prohibition agents are hypocritical. From these findings they draw the most curious conclusions. If people disobey the law by drinking, the logic of the situation does not say, that you should change the law, but stop the drinking, or put the drinker in jail, until he stops. That is the way we do with the thief, the robber, and the murderer. If the wets argued law enforcement, they would at least sound sincere, even though they might not be sincere. Now the arguments sound like beating on a barrel—lots of noise but no goods.

And if the prohibition enforcement contains those who drink, the best argument is to throw them out of the service. Clean the prohibition enforcement from such pests, and make it stay clean.

If the wets are ever going to get a hearing in this country, they must be using better arguments. The things that hold true in other places of life, will also hold true as for prohibition. When the wets by the logic of circumstances prove, that it is better to be swine and wallow than to keep clean and respectable, then they will get a hearing.

dolls, Japanese, Dutch, Indian, Chinese, old-fashioned, with her wide-open eyes, startled at the world, and great poke bonnet, a tiny wooden doll, whose feet move most realistically, Red Riding Hood, a china doll in a crocheted frock—that's not five hundred ties by many dozen—but only picks out the oldest and the most ancient and the most traveled of Miss Fee's collection.

Wesleyan Notes

Convocation on Thursday morning was given over to a report of the convention of the Anti-saloon League of America held in Detroit in January. Gaius Watt of Arvada, Wyo., set forth the important features of the sessions and delivered his oration that won him the privilege of a free trip to Detroit.

Beta Pi Theta, national French fraternity, sponsored by Prof. Bertha W. McProud, gave a pledge program on Wednesday evening, February 12, in Expression hall. Two short plays were given in the French language. Gerald Thompson, Jean Tyler, Evelyn Huestis, Alice Ackerman, and Frances Gustafson were the actors and actresses in "Les Deux Sourds." He one-act play "Cupidan Dentiste," was produced with the following cast: Violet Johnson, Martin Fritz, Genevieve Kumpf, Merna McGlasson, Alice Ackerman, and Pauline Raitt. Minerva Trulson directed these productions. Mrs. H. P. Fox has been elected honorary member of this organization and will address the club at a later meeting.

Prof. Gladys Marie Lux of the school of art has just been informed that her theme, "Crocus," a block print, and her oil painting, "The Hill Road," have been accepted for exhibition at Kansas City Art Institute exhibit being held this month in Kansas City. Work from artists of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, and Colorado make up that exhibit.

Taylor gave a musical program at the Burwell church in the evening.

Dr. Abbott M. Dean, who is associated with his father, Dr. Frank Dean, '86, in special medical practice at Council Bluffs, Ia., has been engaged to give the special chapel address net Wednesday morning, Feb. 19. His subject is "How We See and Why We Do Not See."

Bishop E. V. Shayler of Omaha gave the special chapel address Wednesday morning, Feb. 12. His address was in memory of Abraham Lincoln.

The Dayton Daily News for January 28, features Neil R. Baker, '20, of Columbus, Ohio, manager of the Fairmont Creamery plant at that place, and president of the Ohio Association of Creamery Owners and Managers. The paper carries also an article by Mr. Baker on "Why Is Butter So Cheap?"

A. R. Dean of Dean and Dean, Architects of Chicago, came Thursday, Feb. 13, for a short business trip in connection with completing the plans for the proposed women's dormitory.

Cotner Notes

Rev. J. Kinney O'Heeron of the Bethany Christian church spoke at chapel Tuesday on Abraham Lincoln.

The Nebraska Educational Journal for February carries an in memoriam notice of the late Thomas A. Blakeslee, '16, president of the Lincoln Schol of Commerce. The Christian Evangelist, St. Louis, national weekly of the Disciples of Christ, also contained a notice in a recent issue.

Dr. Vernon Cooper, professor of history, has been engaged to teach history in the 1930 summer session of Bates college, Lewiston, Me. He will offer two courses, one dealing with the European background of American history and the colonial policies of European countries, and and other on revolutionary movements in Europe from 1789 to 1873.

Rev. R. E. Hunt, '09, of the First Christian church, Lincoln, was elected president of the Lincoln council of Social Agencies at its annual meting Friday. Clarence G. Miles, '11, was elected to the executive committee, representing the Bethany community.

World Call, international magazine for the Disciples of Christ, published monthly by the United Christian Missionary society, at Indianapolis, Ind., contains articles by four Cotner alumni in its February issue.

Schools and Colleges

Doane College Notes

The freshman Sunday school class, under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. Harold Cooper, celebrated the opening of the second semester with a waffle supper, Friday evening, Feb. 7. There are about thirty in the group and it is needless to say practically all of them were present for this occasion. This is the second event of the sort the class has had this year.

Professor Burrage, of the department of Greek and Latin, was in Lincoln Saturday evening, Feb. 9, at the dinner given by the Lincoln chapter of the archeological Institute of America of which Dr. Burrage is a member.

Dean and Mrs. J. E. Taylor and family were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hunt, Saturday evening, Feb. 8.

President Edwin B. Dean left Saturday, Feb. 8, for a short business trip to Northfield, Minn. He returned Tuesday. President Dean stopped off between trains at Council Bluffs, Iowa, to inquire concerning the condition of Mrs. Frank Dean (Sarah Meston, '87e), who has been critically ill. He found her much improved and they are quite hopeful of her recovery.

Doane day services were held on Feb. 9, in the churches at Burwell and Taylor. Secretary L. W. Johnson presented the interests of the college at Burwell at the morning service and at Taylor in the evening. Both of these churches at the present time are pastorless. Professor Kettering and Miss Ruth Harold E. Fey, '22, professor in Union Theological seminary and pastor of Taft Avenue Christian church, Manila, writes on "Some First Impression of the Philippines." Miss Dale I. Ellis, '16, who returned to the Philippines last summer after four years of absence, during which time she was dean of women and instructor in education in Cotner college, writes on "Years and the Changes." Paul D. Kennedy, '20, contributes "What Mean These Stones," an interpretation of the walled city of old Manila. Grant K. Lewis, '98, home missions secretary of the United Christian Missionary society, reports on the interdenominational council on Spanish-speaking work which held its eighteenth annual meeting in Denver, December 10-15, 1929, in which he represented the Disciples of Christ.

Wesleyan Notes

The conservatory of music will present Minerva Trulson in an organ recital on uesday, February 18, in the auditorium, he following is the program:

Suite Gothique, Boellman. Introduction—Choral. Menuet Gothique. Priere a Notre Dame Toccata.

Toccata and Fugue in D Minor, Bach.

Sontata, Op. 42, Pastorale Finale. Guilmant.

The Thrush, Kinder.

Toccata in E Major, Mireaux.

Concert Overture in C Minor, Hollins.

The department of expression sponsored the following last Thursday evening:

The Punishment of Robert, Harriett Hoehne.

Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, Margaret Morrell.

Spendthrifts, Margaret Kirkpatrick.

Man Buys Perfume, Lauren Gilbert.

The Unfinished Story, Maxine Wolf.

Sixty Wesleyan men are or have been Boy Scouts. This was shown at the convocation last week in which troop 34, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Kenneth McDaniel, gave a demonstration of first aid, resuscitation, signaling, and the like. At the close of the exercises Scoutmaster McDaniel asked all who were or had been scouts to take their place on the platform. Eugene Pester, an Eagle scout of Lincoln, recited Lincoln's Gettysburg address, accompanying it with the Indian sign language. Mr. Pester is one of the four Lincoln scouts who attended the Jamboree in England.

The Rev. John H. Hall, graduate of Wesleyan with the class of 1919, now pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Papillion, was a recent visitor on the campus. He is planning to take the ministerial training course next summer.

Prof. F. M. Gregg of the department of psychology gave his illustrated lecture on the life of Abraham Lincoln during the Indiana period as the Wesleyan observance of the Lincoln anniversary on February 12. One point emphasized by Professor Gregg was the influence of his mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, and his step-mother, Sarah Bush Lincoln. From these the boy received training and religious instruction that became a lasting influence in his life. Lincoln's first interest in law as a profession, according to Professor Gregg, was a case in which he was the defendant. Certain men were licensed to transport passengers across the Ohio river. Lincoln had a flat-boat ferry, by which he occasionally made small sums of money. He upon one occasion took two men down a tributary and into the Ohio river, where the river steamer lay in wait for passengers. The men licensed to carry passengers proceeded against the enterprising youth in the court. Lincoln's defense was that they were licensed to carry passengers across the Ohio river. He urged that he was carrying passengers only half way across and thus was not infringing upon their license. The magistrate acquitted him. Professor Gregg showed views of
